REGENSTREIF

Analyst Sees Grit Majority

By PETER REGENSTREIF

OTTAWA — A Liberal majority is in the offing for November 8.

Prime Minister Pearson's forces should be somewhat in the 137-150 seat range as a result of this country's fifth general election in the last eight years.

It would take an unbelievable catastrophe — one beyond that which even the Liberals in the palmiest moments could conjure up — to blow the deal now.

The Conservatives should score somewhere in the 80's or low 90's, the NDP, in spite of a fantastic increase in popular vote, will probably be just short of 20, leaving Social Credit and the Creditistes with a smattering of support, the former in Alberta and British Columbia, the latter in Quebec.

The major factor, perhaps the only one in this campaign, was that of leadership — or, more correctly, the lack of leadership. The electorate had no positive preference for either of the two leaders of the major parties. A simple question posed to voters across the country as to their choice for prime minister among the four party leaders irrespective of party label evoked the voluntarily-offered response, "none of them," "they all stink," "we need new blood," or some variant, over one-quarter of the time.

In this leadership preference race, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas ranked highest of all the leaders when measured against the performance of their respective parties in terms of actual votes. Robert Thompson of the Socreds also performed reasonably well in this area.

This single finding, probably more than any other, underlines the deep disaffection of the public with the course of this country's politics.

Pearson's popularity has never been very high and since taking office in 1963, he has been plagued by all sorts of misadventures. The public continues to see him as an indecisive man.

This is why the majority government argument of the Liberals has fallen flat. They are winning in spite of themselves.

As I've pointed out so often, in these columns and elsewhere, for an appeal for majority government to take hold, the electorate must be able to ascertain which political party has the best chance of obtaining that majority and it must have a firm and pronounced preference for the leader of that party for the post of prime minister.

★ ★ ★

Both elements are essential. They operate simultaneously. One is useless without the other.

This is obviously not the situation this time. The effect of an appeal for majority government for the Liberals is to involve them in a silly numbers game. All they can do is claim that they are the ones with the best chance at the majority.

But this is a game in which any number of people can play. Diefenbaker has joined in and has succeeded in convincing some sectors that the Conservatives have a real chance of forming a minority government.

All the evidence is against such an outcome.

As for John Diefenbaker himself, his standing is at an incredible low. That his party should be doing so well in spite of this handicap is a tribute both to his own past performance on the prairies and in some rural sectors elsewhere and to the quality of his party's organizational machinery in Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

If this election proves anything, it is this: There are no votes in scandal-mongering. The Liberals found this out fighting Maurice Duplessis in Quebec in the 1950s and John Wintermeyer made no head-way against John Robarts in Ontario with the issue in 1963.

★ ★ ★

Diefenbaker has harped so much on the topic of corruption in this campaign that he has alienated potential Conservative voters.

He is losing support right in his own backyard. A Saskatoon housewife who was uphappily deserting the Conservatives

GALLUP POLL SHOWS LIBERALS WELL AHEAD

Party Chiefs Make Their Final Pleas

FIVE LEADERS in Monday's general election present voters with great contrast in platform styles. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has been described as the last of the old-time, thunderous campaigners. Prime Minister Pearson's trade mark has been a grin and relaxed approach. Tommy Douglas stirs his audience with his appeal for social justice. Real Caouette, a thundering, two-fisted orator, works up a hearty perspiration during his speeches while Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson makes a quiet appeal in a well-modulated baritone. 10 Million Eligible To Vote on Monday

By The Canadian Press

Political exhortations have passed the climax and party leaders are homeward bound to await the outcome of Monday's vote in Canada's 27th general election.

Voting hours for some 10,200,000 persons eligible to cast ballots Monday are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. The turnout is expected to be lighter than the near-record 79.6 per cent in 1963. The record is 79.8 per cent in 1958.

Today Prime Minister Pearson makes for Ottawa from Toronto with final campaign stops along the north shore of Lake Ontario.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, are in their home ridings of Burnaby-Coquitlam, British Columbia, and Red Deer, Alberta, respectively.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is in Quebec's Labelle riding for a speaking engagement on behalf of his candidate son, Gilles, before returning to his home constituency of Villeneuve.

Mr. Pearson told a cheering, overflow crowd in a Hamilton theatre Friday night that he will go anywhere, including Viet Nam, in search of peace.

'Almost Sweep to Liberals'

Earlier, in Kitchener, he said "there is a swing, almost a sweep," to the Liberals and that a vote for the New Democratic Party could accomplish no more than another Diefenbaker minority government.

Mr. Douglas said in a statement at Vancouver that Mr. Pearson was resorting to "scare tactics" in urging voters not to support the NDP.

"The facts are that Mr. Diefenbaker has no chance of forming any kind of government," Mr. Douglas said. "The battle in this campaign is between the NDP, which has a program, and the Liberals, who have only their record."

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Regina rally that the Liberals are trying to encourage votes for third parties in an attempt to defeat Conservative candidates.

"I am asking you to vote for yourselves," he said in an appeal to the crowd to "stand with us again."

At Vancouver, Mr. Thompson said there were no major national issues in the election other than that the election should not have been called.

At Quebec City, Mr. Caouette repeated his charge, frequently denied by Mr. Pearson, that the government has made an agreement with the U.S. to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam.

The electorate has 1,011 candidates to pick from, 12 fewer than 1963's record, in the fifth general election in 8½ years.

The Liberals and Conservatives are contesting all 265 seats with a minimum of 133 required for a bare majority. The NDP has 255 candidates, Social Credit 86 and the Quebec-based Creditistes 77. There are another 63 running under various other labels.

In at least 60 of the 265 seats,

LINDNER . . . opened the bag

'Bomb' Found At Empress

By DESMOND BILL

It consisted of a flashlight case containing a white powder taped to a clock and two batteries.

Lt.-Cmdr. Ward Palmer of the RCN Diving School said the clock had run down. He described the device as "an amateurish affair" but confirmed that it was rigged as a homemade bomb.

Lt.-Cmdr. Palmer said police are going to make an examination of the powder found in the flashlight case to determine if it is an explosive substance.

The bomb disposal expert said the device was set up to complete an electrical circuit that could trigger an explosion if the substance in the case was explosive.

'JOKE?'

He opened the bag and saw what was in it. Said Mr. Lindner, "I thought it was a joke but of course you never know with these things.

"I decided I better get it out of there. I took it to the steps outside (leading to the garden) and dropped it over the wall."

Mr. Lindner later told police about his discovery. They found the bag lying on concrete near some undergrowth. They called th bomb disposal squad which removed the object and carried it away in a truck.

Flaming Collision Claims Seven Lives

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE (CP)—The death toll in a flaming collision between a car and a semi-trailer carring a fertilizer chemical rose to seven Friday night when the sole survivor died en route to hospital in Winnipeg.

Holly Hope Kosiuk, of Grandview, Man., was critically injured in the accident which killed four other members of her family.

Police identified the other victims as truck driver Charles Hallet, 35, of Winnipeg; Fred Kostiuk, 46, of Grandview, his wife Rose, 39, his mother Mrs. Olga Kostiuk, about 60, his son Theodore, 8, and Robert Hykawy of McGregor, Man.

An inquest opened today.

Police said the two vehicles collided as the car travelled south on Highway 4 and the truck travelled east on the Trans-Canada Highway seven miles west of here. The impact hurled the vehicles 100 yards apart and both burst into flames.

All but one of the six cars passengers were thrown from the vehicle and the truck driver was trapped in his burning unit.

Rhodesia Commission Project Near Collapse

U.K. Poised To Deal With Split

LONDON (Reuters) — British government machinery went on a stand-by basis this weekend in case Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith seizes independence against repeated British warnings.

Prime Minister Wilson, attending a family wedding in Cardiff, Wales, today, will have an air force plane ready to fly him back to London at a moment's notice.

Opposition Conservative Leader Edward Heath, on a speaking tour in Scotland, also has a special charter plane standing by and members of Parliament were warned to be ready for any snap summoning of Parliament. They will be asked to approve sanctions against Rhodesia if the white minority government declares independence unilaterally.

SALISBURY (CP)—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith took another step toward seizure of independence today by rejecting the latest British proposals to resolve the crisis.

Smith told British Prime Minister Wilson he had imposed so many conditions on his proposal for a royal commission to solve the independence issue that it was difficult to believe it was seriously intended.

The proposal for a royal commission on the Rhodesian crisis emerged from Wilson's emergency trip to Rhodesia late last month in an attempt to avert Rhodesia's threatened seizure of independence.

Britain had proposed that a royal commission should test whether all Rhodesians—250,000 whites and 4,000,000 Negroes — favor independence linked to the colony's 1961 constitution.

"I regret to say the impression you left with us (during Wilson's recent visit to Salisbury) of a determined effort to resolve our constitutional problems has been utterly dissipated," Smith said in a letter to Wilson.

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door you for the Liberals spoke for many when she pointed out: "If Diefenbaker would stop all this attacking everybody and just say what his program is, what he will do, I might still vote for him but . . ."

Furthermore, it is bad politics to attack a prime minister. Pearson found himself in this predicament in 1962 and 1963. The public seemed to resent his criticisms of the Conservative performance in office because they implicitly involved an attack on a national institution: the prime minister. Diefenbaker benefitted.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. The more vehement Diefenbaker is in his attacks on Pearson, the worse the situation becomes for the chief.

The Liberals have one thing going for them: prosperity. It murders the Tories in B.C. and hurts them badly in Ontario. It does the same to the Creditistes in Quebec. It holds up defections to the NDP across the country.

Nevertheless, the conclusion must be that the Liberals are winning this election by default. The Conservative problem is that their leader is no longer an acceptable alternative to Prime Minister Pearson; the NDP is still saddled with the third-party image.

★ ★ ★

With regard to the Conservatives, the remark: "If the Conservatives had anyone else in there but Diefenbaker, I'd vote Conservative in a minute" was heard so often that it can be considered the most succinct summing up of public motivation for casting a non-Tory ballot.

What about the NDP?

This exchange with a retail clothing store clerk in Montreal indicates just how powerful a motivation the need to elect a government is for voters and explains why Douglas cannot transform what personal popularity he has into votes for his party.

The salesman, a 1963 Liberal supporter, moaned: "I don't know what to do," when asked about his vote intentions.

I probed: "Why?"

He replied: "The whole situation. All the political corruption that's been coming up an so on."

★ ★ ★

I continued: "Well, if you won't vote Liberal, will you vote Conservative?"

He blurted: "No! I wouldn't vote Conservative. I can't support Diefenbaker."

"What about the NDP?"

He concluded: "If they had a chance, I would but I don't think they do. The few people I've spoken to feel the same way about the situation as I do."

He ultimately came down for the Liberals again.

Finally, turn-out is an important variable. All signs point to a lower rate of voting than in 1963 — and this takes into account the fact that some 250,000 people refused to be enumerated in September, a fantastic indicator in itself. This will undoubtedly help the Liberals, transforming marginal and doubtful seats into victories for them.

It is clear, then, that the Diefenbaker interlude is at an end. Not so the Conservative party. The Liberals may have won this battle, but the war goes on.

The Tory chieftan's effect will be exceptionally long-lasting even after he has passed into history and folklore. The Conservative party outside Quebec is in a solid position as a party to challenge the Liberals next time. With a new leader, even the Quebec obstacle can be overcome.

In the last few years and in this campaign, the Liberal party has drawn upon its last reserve of credit remaining from the King and St. Laurent years with the public.

A new era in Canadian politics is under way.

claimed publicly to have opened," Smith said.

Wilson made his proposal in a letter to Smith Wednesday.

Smith's reply said:

"I regret to tell you that the only conclusion to be derived from your letter is that it is tantamount to, and can only be interpreted as, a rejection of the proposals (regarding a royal commission) agreed with you in Salisbury.

Smith's letter said an agreement by Britain that the proposed commission should test Rhodesian opinion was "hedged with such conditions as to make it difficult to believe that it was seriously intended."

Smith also turned down a proposal which the British premier sent to Salisbury this week that the Rhodesian government's case for independence be put to a referendum by all the people of Rhodesia.

"Such a suggstion at this stage would be a negation of the understandings reached with you," Smith said.

Wilson had proposed that before the three-man commission —one Briton and two Rhodesians—went to work, there must first be agreements on how the soundings were to be made. He reserved Britain's position about the final outcome.

Today's message comes only 24 hours after the government declared a three-month nationwide state of emergency, giving the authorities sweeping powers of detention and restriction.

Speculation was rife here today the state of emergency was a prelude to a unilateral declaration of independence.

Justice Minister Desmond Lardner - Burke said Friday night the state of emergency was enacted because of threats by African nationalist saboteurs. It gives the government wide powers to detain any person, to prohibit gatherings and to censor newspapers.

The white-ruled colony has rejected Rhodesia's current constitution, drafted in 1961, as a basis for independence because it is unsatisfied with the rights the document grants to the country's African population.

Britain refuses to grant independence without being satisfied with arrangements for full political voice for the colony's 4,000,000 Negroes.

White Rhodesian authorities also face the prospect of a rebel black government being formed inside the country.

Police announced that they had seized a number of pamphlets saying that the banned Zimbabwe African People's Union will form a government if Britain did not break off negotiations with Smith by Nov. 16.

Smith said in his reply a proposal by Wilson that the commission should submit a unanimous interim report on how it proposed to determine acceptability "shows a singular lack of confidence in the commission."

REJECTED CONDITION

He also rejected the British leader's condition that the final report of the commission be unanimous.

Smith originally proposed the commission decide whether all Rhodesians want independence on the basis of an amended present constitution.

Gun-Toting 'Tiger Lady' Shot to Death

SAIGON (UPI)—Mme. Ho Thi Que, the pistol-packing "Tiger Lady" of the South Vietnamese army, was shot and killed Thursday during a jealous argument with her husband, it was reported Friday.

A high-ranking Vietnamese army official, who asked not to be identified, said Mme. Que, 38, became infuriated with her husband, Maj. Nguyen Van Dan, for paying too much attention to another woman.

Mme. Que, the official said, pulled a pistol on Dan while the other woman looked on in horror. Dan struggled with Mme. Que for the pistol and it went off, fatally wounding her.

600 Applications Received In B.C. During JEFF Week

First reports from centres throughout the province indicate that between 500 and 600 applications from prospective foster parents have been received during JEFF week.

JEFF, the Joint Effort For Fostering week, was proclaimed from Oct. 24 to 30.

Objective of the drive was 1,000 foster homes, 100 receiving and observation homes, 20 group homes and treatment centres for emotionally disturbed children.

Nanaimo Local Council of Women has decided to sponsor a receiving home and three groups in Prince Rupert intend to help establish group homes.

'Instant Tree' Planted; 20 Firs Removed

The trees, some of which are 300 years old, were considered dangerous due to the threat of falling dead limbs.

At the same time, an "instant tree" was planted in Centennial Square Friday.

The tree, one of several arbutus force-grown by Victoria parks department, was uprooted from Gorge Park and set in a ready-made hole at the square.

The trees were planted two years ago and have since been fed through severed roots on a rich mixture.

Punching Waiter Brings Jail Term

A man who punched a beer waiter and broke his nose was given a three-months jail sentence for assault today.

Russell Bowcott pleaded guilty when he appeared in central court.

Evidence was that the waiter accidentally bumped against Bowcott's chair. Bowcott stood up, hit the waiter, knocking him unconscious and breaking his nose.

. . . 10 MILLION ELIGIBLE TO VOTE

the contest is expected to be extremely close. These marginal seats are scattered across the country but most of them are in Ontario, which returns 85 MPs, and Quebec, which elects 75.

The main battleground throughout the campaign has been Ontario where the Liberals won 52 seats in the 1963 election compared with the Conservatives' 27 and the NDP's six.

Mr. Pearson called the election Sept. 7 with the statement that he wanted a majority government to provide stable government for four or five years. He never wavered from that theme throughout the campaign and in some speeches touched on little else.

He said at one point that if the Liberals didn't get a majority there would be another election in 12 or 18 months. The opposition accused him of threatening the electorate. He denied any threat.

Mr. Diefenbaker predicted that his party would win a majority.

STRESSES UNITY

Mr. Diefenbaker also dwelt on the issue of national unity, promising a new Confederation conference to bring about needed changes in the constitution.

Mr. Pearson said only the Liberals could achieve such unity and he asked for a strong central government to deal with the legitimate but growing demands of the provinces.

The three minor party chiefs argued that most of the better legislation passed by Parliament in recent years resulted from compromises forced on a minority administration.

Mr. Douglas pledged to back a minority winner if agreement could be reached to include NDP policies in the legislative program. He came out for free university education, a universal medical care program, $100-a-month old-age pensions at 65 and legislation to protect consumers.

Mr. Thompson called for an end to patronage and for a voluntary medical care program.

MAKES PROMISE

Mr. Diefenbaker said the latter meant a means test and he promised $100-a-month pension at age 69—the present pension is $75—to be paid out of the Canada Pension Fund.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in an attempt to recapture the big-city vote which he lost in 1962 and 1963, promised deductions of up to $500 to home-owners who pay municipal property taxes.

In the 1963 election, the Liberals won 129 seats, the Conservatives 95, Social Credit 24 and the NDP 17.

At dissolution in September, the standings were: Liberals 127, Conservatives 92, New Democrats 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine, independent two and vacant four.

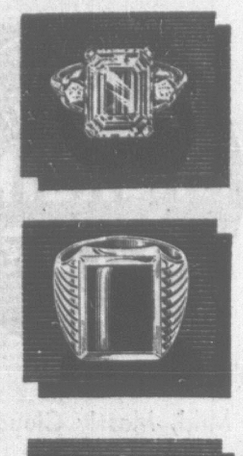

The advance polls, to be counted election night, were held Saturday, Oct. 30, and Monday Nov. 1. The results of the service vote, held this week, are expected to be announced Saturday, Nov. 13.

As required by law, radio and television appeals by candidates ended at midnight Friday night.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A vigorous Pacific storm centred about 300 miles off the Washington coast will move slowly northward during the next 48 hours. A surge of moisture that has moved out of the disturbance was expected to produce light rain over the south coast today and bring showers to the southern interior tonight. Arctic air will continue to blanket the northern interior but is not expected to spread any further south than Williams Lake. In the cold air snowflurries will persist and afternoon temperatures are expected to hover near the 30 above mark.

1003 NEWPORT AVE.,
VICTORIA, B.C.
5 NOVEMBER, 1965

DEAR VOTER:

Now the tumult of the campaign is over we have a brief moment to decide what the shouting was all about. I believe now, as I did at the beginning, that the only big issue in this election is stability in Government. Do we or do we not want to give our nation a Parliament which can get on with the job of running the country for a full four years? Only a very few want to sentence Canada to another "Parliament of Minorities" like the last one. The time has come when you can help set matters right.

Things are going well in Victoria these days. The same is true all across Canada. Business is booming and unemployment is lower than it has been for many years. In these complicated times things like this don't just "happen." The Government must work to create the climate in which our country can prosper. There is much more to be done and it isn't all going to be easy. We will need in Ottawa a strong central government that can't be "pushed around." I believe the Liberal party is in the best position to provide such a government. All the public opinion polls show this. Furthermore, I sincerely believe the Liberal policies and plans, which I have outlined in this campaign, will greatly benefit Canada and all Canadians. As the Liberal Candidate in Victoria, my election will strengthen the Government and support its policies. It will also give Victoria a voice in the Government.

I am grateful for the opportunity you gave me in 1963 to represent you in Ottawa. I have tried my best to live up to the trust you placed in me then, and now I earnestly ask you again for your support so that I may carry on working with you and for you in the next Parliament.

Sincerely,

DAVID GROOS,
Liberal Candidate for Victoria.

'WE MUST ABOLISH NUCLEAR WEAPONS'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Senator Robert F. Kennedy says nuclear weapons "must be abolished before they abolish us," and China should participate "in the effort to prevent nuclear catastrophe."

Kennedy, here for a series of speeches, told a Town Hall audience Friday "no task is more important than to prevent the spread of those terrible arms which modern science has given us."

U.S., Cuba Sign Pact For Refugee Exodus

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson announced today the signing of an agreement with Cuba permitting 3,000 to 4,000 Cuban refugees each month to fly to the United States on American planes.

It was agreed the plan will start not later than Dec. 1.

Johnson expressed his satisfaction with the agreement, saying in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Priority will be given to Cubans who have immediate family relatives already living in the United States.

The refugee exodus will be by commercial airliners chartered by the U.S. government.

The designation "immediate relatives" is defined as parents of unmarried children under age 21, spouses, unmarried children under the age of 21 and brothers and sisters under 21.

The Swiss embassy in Havana, which played a key role in negotiations, will be entrusted by both Cuba and the U.S. with verifying that would-be refugees meet the priority criteria.

U.S. Supreme Court Grants Vote Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court has agreed to hear South Carolina's claim that the 1965 voting-rights law is unconstitutional.

And it has invited other states which may want to fight the law side by side with South Carolina to get their requests in.

This action, announced after the justices had concluded their customary Friday conference, means an early judgment on the claim southern officials have made since President Johnson asked for the law.

The court's decision to take the case directly also means South Carolina will be spared the chore of carrying its battle through lower federal courts.

What South Carolina is seeking is an immediate halt to the dispatch of federal registrars to the state. The quickest way it could hope to achieve this would be to sue the federal government and have the case heard by the highest court in the U.S.

Thus, South Carolina asked the Supreme Court Sept. 29 to accept filing of an original suit —original in that the first action is before the Supreme Court. And that is what the court granted Friday.

Students Raise $2,000 For Cinder Track

Esquimalt Senior Secondary School has raised $2,000 toward the cost of a cinder track which students hope will be completed in three or four years.

The $2,000 was raised at a student-sponsored country fair in the school gymnasium Wednesday.

CABLE CAR RIDE

Princess Enjoys Day of Fun

By DORIS KLEIN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Princess Margaret, a tourist's tour of San Francisco completed, plunges into the official side of her United States trip today.

She is visiting the University of California's nearby Berkeley campus and then experiences her first western-style barbecue.

The meat will be sliced from a 50-pound wild boar on th Monterey Peninsula, 135 miles south of San Francisco.

The princess, accompanied by her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, made it clear Friday that much of her tour is strictly pleasure. She smilingly overrode security misgivings and boarded a San Francisco cable car for an eight-block ride up steep Russian Hill.

Although she appeared delighted with the trip, she froze momentarily when photographers crowded around the open cable car, held back by only a line of security men.

The cable car ride was part of an afternoon tour. In an open convertible car, the royal couple visited Coit Tower on Telegraph Hill and peered through a 10-cent-a-look telescope for a magnificent hilltop view of the city.

TAKE BAY CRUISE

They drove past Fishermen's Wharf and then went for a cruise in San Francisco Bay on the 55-foot yacht of hotel owner Dan London.

"They seemed to enjoy themselves," said London, who showed them the old prison island of Alcatraz as well as Golden Gate Bridge. "It was a little chilly out there, but they didn't seem to mind."

Lord Snowdon, a professional photographer, shot pictures from the yacht.

Later, the princess donned a green chiffon short evening dress and a full-length mink coat to attend a reception given by Michael Stewart of the British embassy in Washington at the San Francisco consul-general's residence.

They dined at their first private party with Whitney Warren, San Francisco patron of the arts, whose list of less than 20 guests included bullfight expert Barnaby Conrad.

Dazzling in a silver-and-white brocade costume and a mink hat, the princess had previously accepted the keys to the city from Mayor John F. Shelley. Lord Snowdon was given a miniature silver cable car.

They also presided over a charity fashion luncheon which featured British clothes.

RUSS BOOSTS PARIS LINKS

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said today France and the U.S.S.R. have started "a new dialogue which may have far-reaching consequences for Europe and the world."

It said they put into effect the principle of peaceful coexistence.

China Debate Monday

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The issue of seating Communist China in the United Nations is expected to come before the General Assembly Monday, diplomatic sources said Thursday. A U.S. source expressed confidence in the ability of the United States to keep the Peking regime out of the UN.

Cabin Cruiser Begins Duties This Month

The $7,000 fiberglass craft will operate out of Sidney and will be used to service navigational aids in the Gulf of Georgia.

It is equipped with a 150-h.p. inboard-outboard engine and is capable of a speed of 30 knots.

The boat, named the Berens, is radio-equipped and in constant contact with the rescue-co-ordination centre in Vancouver while at sea.

The advantages of the craft, explained Capt. Bill Exley of Victoria Marine Agency, is the boat can get on the job in the area it serves faster than the bigger buoy and lighthouse tenders.

And it is also less expensive to operate.

The Voter in the Booth

ON MONDAY THE VOTERS OF Greater Victoria will have a chance to answer the appeal of the Prime Minister who has called for sufficient Liberal members in Parliament to form a government strong enough for the tasks ahead.

The answer can be given by voting for Mr. Gorst in Esquimalt-Saanich and Mr. Groos in Victoria.

Mr. Pearson survived half a parliamentary term on a minority basis before deciding to ask the country for a mandate to continue. He had two main reasons for this. First, he rightly felt that a government which must plan for years ahead cannot operate with full effectiveness on a week-to-week basis; that there cannot be a proper continuity of policy-making when the administration may be turned out of office overnight.

Secondly, Mr. Pearson recognized the need for a strong national government to cope with the problems that face Canada today. These problems are partly external: we must have a government that can speak in international affairs with a voice that represents a majority of the people of Canada—and partly domestic: the federal government must have a position of strength from which to negotiate with the provincial governments in the many common constitutional, economic and sociological problems that now confront us.

On such a basis the call for a majority government is reasonable and necessary. Canada cannot indefinitely remain in the state of national indecision and hesitancy which was reflected in the people's inability to decide which party should have a mandate to govern. Now we have a chance to confirm agreement on a direction in our national affairs by voicing a majority preference.

Mr. Pearson in the course of the campaign has said that if the nation will not return a Liberal majority government then it should elect a Conservative majority government, for another minority administration would not meet the needs of the country and would result inevitably in another election at an early date.

But the choice is not in fact that wide, for a Conservative government would fall short of meeting today's requirements. Mr. Diefenbaker, in six years of office, showed a tragic inability to lead the government. He could sweep the country with platform rhetoric, he could point to northern visions, he could rouse emotions and instil enthusiasm among the people—but he could not run the country, and he could not command enough unity among his own cabinet members to establish workable policies.

By the end of his administration the country was frustrated and divided, it was barely on speaking terms with either Britain or the United States, it was threatened by serious economic and fiscal crises, and many of the government's ministers were in open revolt against their leader.

The situation would be even more serious under Mr. Diefenbaker today, for he has lost almost every trace of support in Quebec and any government he could form would lack significant representation from Canada's population. That would be a serious defect at any time; in today's critical resurgence of French-Canadian political and cultural forces, election of such an unbalanced national government could be interpreted as an open invitation to Quebec separatist forces to raise a new, formidable threat to Canada's national identity.

That is a persuasive reason for rejecting the Conservative bid for office, but even more persuasive are the positive reasons for returning a Liberal government.

* * *

Mr. Pearson has made his mistakes as any man of action must, but the fact remains that he has grappled with issues which no previous administration had tackled and brought into law many measures of vital importance.

He established the national pension plan, increased old age pension payments and lowered the effective age, laid the basis for patriation of the constitution and revision of its contents, launched a large student loan program, attracted world attention by integrating the armed forces, established a non-political system of review of constituency boundaries, provided tax incentives for business, speeded up parliamentary procedures, and effected many other improvements in our national life, including the official adoption of a distinctive flag. Under Mr. Pearson, Canada played a leading part in the formation of United Nations police forces.

These were no small achievements; they involved many areas into which other governments had not ventured, they form a record of which any administration could be proud.

Those voters who are not impressed by the country's need for strong government or the Liberals' record as outlined here must answer still another question. They must ask themselves: What effective alternative is there for which I can cast my vote?

There is none.

We Disagree

IN AN ARTICLE ON PAGE 5 OF today's editions, Mr. Peter Newman, whose pre-election series on voting trends has enjoyed wide readership, expresses the belief that Mr. Pearson should be re-elected.

Mr. Pearson, he says, "is very much the better man to be in charge of the delicate negotiations which will eventually resolve the current dangerous strains on Confederation."

He then adds the odd amendment that he hopes the Liberal leader will not get the majority mandate he seeks. He ends by writing that, in his view, "the Canadian future would best be served . . . by a reluctant, minority mandate for the Liberals."

In effect Mr. Newman says that Mr. Pearson should lead Canada's government in the country's efforts to solve the problems ahead, but that he should not be given the stable parliamentary base which would enable him to tackle the job most effectively.

We find Mr. Newman's thesis both inconsistent and illogical. Nevertheless we publish his opinion in the service of free discussion of a public issue, even though we emphatically disagree with it.

To Dredge the Main Stream

INDICATIONS IN DIPLOMATIC circles of fresh Soviet interest in holding a major international Communist conference suggest that the Russians may feel they are now ready for a showdown with Chinese Communists on ideological affairs.

The Chinese, of course, would be most unlikely to attend a Soviet-sponsored meeting of this kind and could be made to suffer thereby through being shut out of what is still the "main stream" of Communism. This in turn would deepen the rift between the two Communist giants.

It is unlikely, if a new Soviet-sponsored conference is called, that there will be any attempt to impose the old Comintern-style discipline on the international movement; it is several decades too late for this. However, there could be a move toward unifying Communism in general terms, and strengthening the rather random collection of governments and parties now held by quite ambiguous ties.

Target Ottawa

JOHN D. IN QUEBEC — By MAURICE WESTERN

No Triumph, No Disaster

MR. DIEFENBAKER, playing cautiously and for small stakes in Quebec province, succeeded on Wednesday in making his cause look a bit less hopeless than it seemed a few days ago. His meeting at the Maurice Richard Arena could scarcely in present circumstances have been a triumph but it might easily have been a disaster. Not only did the Conservative leader avoid this, he outdrew the prime minister by a fair margin.

Western

In a struggle between two organizations, the Conservatives benefitted from superior planning, bringing more workers on more buses to a more favorable location. It is possible that the excitement of the Liberal rally sharpened public interest in the Diefenbaker visit on the following night.

Professional Shows

But the mark of professionalism was on both meetings; in each case the crowds were overwhelmingly masculine, consisting mostly of party men ready and eager to serve the country to the limit of their vocal chords.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not have to contend with Separatists.

According to one theory, the Separatists would welcome a Conservative victory in the hope that it would further alienate Quebec from Ottawa.

He did face opposition from a student group who eventually staged a walkout. But this merely demonstrated the superiority of the Conservative arrangements.

In the long, narrow show mart, chosen by the Liberals, it was a relatively simple matter for a small group to disrupt a meeting. In an arena, the platform dominates. An obstreperous group in the upper tiers can create a disturbance but they cannot, by their activities, create a human wall between the speaker and at least half the audience as happened at the Pearson meeting.

Tory Problem

Quebec has presented a difficult problem for the Conservatives in 1965. While it offered little of political promise, for national reasons it could not be ignored.

In his first venture into the province Mr. Diefenbaker did his best to create a favorable impression by concentrating on the few remaining areas of rural strength. The hostile island of Montreal he left for a final Quebec appearance in the last week of the campaign.

The same caution was evident in his Wednesday speech. Those who came expecting a response to Mr. Pearson's challenge of the previous evening, a discussion of scandals or a few of the famous stories about Mr. Lucien Rivard, must have gone away disappointed.

The closest Mr. Diefenbaker came to his favorite theme was a single sentence stoutly asserting that "Quebec people have a right to honest government." For the rest, the Conservative leader talked in generalities about the various things for which the party stands in the present campaign.

It is apparently the Conservative view that a dollars and cents theme is likely, at the moment, to have the greatest appeal in the Montreal area. A long series of speeches were rather accurately summarized in the slogans decorating the walls—$555 reduction for home-owners, $100 old-age pensions, no more 11 per cent tax on building materials, reduction in interest rates for small loans.

Apart from these tangibles, the orators relied heavily on sonorous platitudes, to which Mr. Diefenbaker's own best contribution, judging from the applause, was the unexpected sentiment: "I cannot conceive of Canada without Quebec, or Quebec without Canada."

It remains possible, despite Mr. Diefenbaker's confidence, to conceive of the island of Montreal without Conservative members after November 8. But they probably have a better chance now to save their single seat of Ste. Marie, especially as the former member, Mr. Valade, was chairman of the gathering and, in the course of his oratorical duties, enjoyed a measure of public exposure which must have been the envy of less fortunate colleagues.

Mr. Valade, incidentally, is not relying exclusively on Conservative policies but is bidding for additional favor as a champion of lotteries, long a popular cause in this part of Quebec.

The most newsworthy event of the evening was not advertised and evidently came as a surprise to Mr. Diefenbaker. This was the appearance on the platform, towards the middle of the proceedings, of the celebrated political writer, Mr. Pierre Sevigny.

Sevigny Support

Not only did Mr. Sevigny appear, he also delivered an impassioned speech on the themes of Mr. Diefenbaker's courage, Mr. Diefenbaker's integrity, and, somewhat surprisingly, Mr. Diefenbaker's administrative sense. From the visible evidence, Mr. Diefenbaker's emotions were decidedly mixed, although he appeared to mellow as Mr. Sevigny, a prodigious orator, warmed to his work.

In his subsequent remarks, the Conservative leader passed up an obvious opportunity to dwell with equal fervour on Mr. Sevigny's qualities. He did, however, point out that the incident demonstrated the unity of the Conservative Party.

It also demonstrated that "the game of politics" is even stranger (and more moving, at least for party workers) than one might gather from a first reading of Mr. Sevigny's fascinating account of life in the Diefenbaker ministry.

FROM LONDON — By RUDOLF KLEIN

Changed Air at Westminster

BRITAIN'S Labor Government has just celebrated its first year in office. And the present Parliament ten days ago launched out on the second year of its life. These facts are worth recording, if only because at one time—and not so very long ago—it seemed possible that neither event would take place.

Looking back on the Labor Government's first year in office, the most astonishing thing about it is that Mr. Harold Wilson, the prime minister, has survived. Elected by an eye-lash majority—which he then saw reduced by a by-election defeat—Mr. Wilson has defied the prophecies of those who argued that he would hold on only until he could dissolve Parliament and go to the country in the hope of improving his position.

The facts of the situation have not changed. Labor still has a majority of only three in the House of Commons. It is a majority which could disappear overnight if a Labor member of Parliament with a small majority were to die suddenly, or if some of the government's supporters were to rebel against its policies, as some have been threatening to do.

But though the facts of the situation have not changed, the atmosphere at Westminster has. When, at the beginning of August, MPs dispersed for their summer holiday, Labor's prospects seemed grim. The public opinion polls indicated a Conservative victory should there be a general election. The economic prospects seemed threatening, with speculation about the pound crowding into the headlines.

To cap it all the death of the Speaker of the House of Commons—the non-voting MP who presides over its sittings—threatened to reduce Labor's majority. The late incumbent was a Conservative; his successor seemed certain to be a Labor MP. So Labor's majority looked as if it might be reduced still further.

Polls Heavy for Labor

But now, suddenly, the scene has been transformed. The public opinion polls indicate a massive Labor victory should there be an election. The immediate threat to the pound, whatever the long-term weaknesses of the British economy, has vanished. And, as though to symbolize Labor's recovery and newfound confidence, the election of a new Speaker saw Dr. Horace King drawn from the party's own ranks.

Not only was he the first Labor MP to become Speaker, an office of enormous dignity, but the government's majority was not, after all, reduced, since a Liberal MP was found to take on the job as one of the Speaker's deputies. So Labor keeps its majority of three.

It is, of course, a very modest majority. And Labor draws its confidence not so much from the size of the majority, but from the general political climate. After 13 years in Opposition, the Labor Government, after only 12 months in power, has managed to establish itself as the party of office.

Ministers are clad with a new authority. They enjoy the publicity which goes with power. They have emerged as public personalities. They have entered into a new dimension of prestige.

There is a further element in the present situation. The Conservative Opposition, now that it is no longer sure of being able to win an election, seems something of a paper tiger; prepared to wound the government, but reluctant to go in for the kill. The Liberal Party, apart from having its strength reduced by one of its members agreeing to serve as a deputy for the Speaker, is uncertain what to do; it appears to be as unwilling to turn the government out as it is reluctant to give it whole-hearted support.

Moreover, the events of the last few weeks have strengthened the prime minister's hand. At the Labor Party's conference he emerged triumphant. The opposition to him was not so much defeated—it simply dissolved. Leaderless and reluctant to accept the responsibility for turning a Labor Government out of office, the party's left wing has become part of Britain's folklore, like Morris dancing, instead of an effective political force.

Conservatives Indefinite

Conversely, the Conservative Party's conference left open the question of precisely what the Conservatives now stand for. There was little talk of planning, and much talk about competition. But despite the enthronement of its new leader, Mr. Edward Heath, the party failed to present a clear-cut impression of where it is going, what it is doing, and how it proposes to do it. The Conservative image is blurred.

Above all, the initiative belongs to Mr. Wilson. In the Rhodesian crisis he is establishing himself as a national leader, while Mr. Heath has to worry about carrying a divided party with him. In home affairs, it is up to Mr. Wilson to decide what measures to push through. And all the signs are that he intends to give priority to those which will gain the government most popularity.

There is the plan for taxing profits on land transactions. There is the proposal for appointing an ombudsman, a kind of national grievance man. There are ambitious proposals for housing in the pipeline. Whatever the merits of these proposals they will be difficult for the Conservatives to oppose with any hope of gaining votes.

Of course all this could change quickly. Economic squalls could blow up again. The Rhodesian crisis, if it forces Britain to intervene with military or economic sanctions, could divide the country. Unemployment figures could start rising uncomfortably. Labor's Left could regain its nerve. There could be a sudden, unexpected scandal—like the Profumo affair.

But failing such a turn to events, Labor seems better placed than at almost any time since its election victory in October, 1964. It is still walking a tightrope. But the tightrope now seems much wider—and the drop beneath much less threatening—than seemed conceivable a few weeks ago.

HARD WORK AND MERIT — By TONY EMERY

First Novel Jackpot

WHEN I recommended Stephen Vizinczey's book, In Praise of Older Women, to those of you who don't get into a fluster when sex gets the frank treatment in literature that it should get in life, I had two motives. The first was purely (if I may associate myself with such an unlikely adverb) literary. I thought Vizinczey's book was quite the best thing of its kind that I had come across in a dozen years of reading and I hoped that every Canadian aspirant to literary fame would read it, and notice what can be done with a hard-edged, uninflated and elegantly economical style. There is an eighteenth-century simplicity, a directness about the language that remind me of Swift or the Abbe Prevost. I think it would be an excellent carminative for our rather flatulent domestic novelists, if swallowed in deep draughts.

Emery

The other motive may be described as sympathetic. Here was a writer who could easily have given his first book to one of the three publishers who wanted to publish it. He decided instead that it was worth a great deal more than he was likely to make out of a first novel under the terms of the usual contract. He wanted to devote his full time to writing, so he couldn't afford to make any money for the publisher: he needed it all himself. His only way out was to publish it at his own expense, so he scraped up $6,000 and ordered the printing of an edition of 5,000.

He was under the great disadvantage of being without the usual means of advertising his book. The big publishers devote a great deal of time and money to "pushing" the books on their list, and this is one of the services that an author can expect from them if they are accepted for publication. It has been whispered that in Europe sometimes a book is treated with more admiration by reviewers than it deserves, because publishers occasionally have ways of seeing that the book gets into the "right" hands for review, but this I am sure would not happen in North America.

To offset this disadvantage, though, Vizinczey had only one book on his list, and that was his own. An energy that he put into the task of selling his book was bound to be of direct and exclusive benefit to himself, whereas a big publisher spreads his blandishments over several novels appearing simultaneously.

To be honest, I didn't really believe that Vizinczey was going to make it. I have heard that a sale of 5,000 copies of a novel in Canada is phenomenal; I knew that a good many people who might secretly enjoy the novel would shy away from praising it in public, and there was more than a possibility that this segment of Vizinczey's public was capable of writing hypocritical notices expressing shock and digust. It has happened before in Canada.

Well, I have to tell you that I was, as usual, quite wrong. The first edition has sold out in three months since publication, and a second edition of 7,500 is now in print. This means that Vizinczey has got his stake back, and about $2,500 profit, on the first edition, with the prospect of a much bigger profit on the second. But that isn't all.

In Britain

Six months before the book can be published in Britain Vizinczey has had the strange experience of a glowing review from Brigid Brophy, who is not noted for being exactly a dairyful of milk of human kindness. She has the only copy of the book that has reached Britain, but she is unlikely to be the only reader for long after the book is on the booksellers' shelves.

And what of America? Stephen Vizinczey took a trip down to New York and sold the paperback and hardcover rights to Ballantine Books for $40,000. (When Kildare Debbs told me this over the telephone from Toronto I thought I hadn't heard him aright.) That still leaves him the movie rights, for which I understand his figure is $750,000—take it or leave it.

I have been racking my brains to try to think of a parallel case of a writer of a first novel of some literary merit making any considerable sum of money out of it. Even the bestsellingest bestseller usually makes most of the money for the publisher: the writer gets to a lot of cocktail parties and book-signing bees, but he doesn't usually find it possible to retire for a couple of years on the proceeds, in order to write another book, as Vizinczey is doing at this moment, in the enviable surroundings of a villa near Naples.

I would warn those who can hardly wait to start marketing their unpublished novels that Vizinczey's success was not entirely a matter of luck. He invested an enormous amount of hard work and careful planning in his campaign; his judgment in every phase of publishing was vindicated in the finished book. And his success of esteem as the man responsible for Exchange magazine got him the serious attention of every intelligent critic in Canada as soon as he sent out the review copies. I hope his success will help every author to strike a better bargain in future.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

JUST north of Prior Lake, where the land sweeps up in a gentle slope, there is a very interesting area.

Here grow many Douglas firs, some of them three to four hundred years old, with deep furrowed bark. Others are clean and straight, forming a canopy overhead. Undergrowth is sparse except for the salal in numerous places.

Sprinkled among the firs are a number of Maples and a few Grand Fir. Along the edge of the lake the crapapple predominates. The hardhack grows thick, and with it are several clumps of ninebark and patches of red osier dogwood with its shiny reddish-green bark.

On the forest floor there are old logs that fell many years ago. They are now "nurse logs" and growing on them are lichens, mosses, flowering plants, shrubs and tree seedlings, all rebuilding a new forest.

Scattered throughout this area there are many beautiful open rocky knolls. These are now covered with a carpet of bright green mosses intermingled with many fantastically-shaped lichens. One can see the leaves of some of the beautiful spring flowers that will follow in due course.

Around the edges of these open places are a number of stunted, twisted Garry Oaks that fit picturesquely into the landscape.

Here and there among the grey of the fir trunks you can find the dark green of the western yew, while underfoot there are many seedlings of the holly, no doubt brought in by birds.

After Monday's Voting A Period of Blessed Quiet

By DOUGLAS FISHER
Former NDP MP for Port Arthur

There's a large gap between the constituency estimates of the various party headquarters as the campaign comes to a close. Take Metro Toronto to illustrate this. Keith Davey says from Ottawa that the Liberal situation is so good that the question is not one of losing seats but whether the surveys are deadly accurate in their indication that the New Democratis may lose the three seats they hold to his party.

Fisher

Terrance Grier of the New Democrats says the canvassers reports are so much ahead of the '63 reports at this stage that two more seats seem certain and another two are fine prospects. Eddy Goodman of the Conservatives notes a similar buoyancy in contrast to '63 and thus predicts a sharp comeback in the big city.

Which one is either deceiving himself or running a bluff? It is my impression that in each case the confidence is genuine. One has to turn outside of Ontario to get some kind of common ground of opinion.

The generalities seem to be these: that small changes are likely in the Maritimes and the few likely ones favor the Liberals;

That Quebec is going to swing overwhelmingly to the Liberals and no one can be sure about the distribution of the scatter seats left, other than that the Conservatives will not be wiped out;

That Real Caouette himself will survive, and that Robert Cliche stands the best chance ever of breaking the NDP-CCF zero there;

That the Prairies will remain almost solidly for John Diefenbaker; and that there will be some shifts in B.C., probably to the Liberals, perhaps to the NDP.

★ ★ ★

Two early themes of the campaign seem to have disappeared. These are the reunification of the Conservative Party behind its leader and the unfairness of this election call with redistribution on the way.

The rediscovered Tory unity has bucked up party workers but it doesn't seem to have accelerated into any great excitement amongst the voters.

On the other hand the possibility that this unity is merely an election phenomenon is not of great concern and the other parties are not making or getting much marked advantage from it.

The central Liberal slogan that "We must have a majority!" may be affecting a lot of voters but it has not had the editorial support one might have anticipated. The men and women who take a keen interest in politics are not enthused about the idea that a government with a stained record like the Liberals, should have a super-control of Commons seats. This may be too fine a point for a lot of voters who may read a majority as a respite from politicking for a long while.

The favoring factor for the Liberals, above all others, is the booming economy. At least this is how the party planners such as Keith Davey see it. They dismiss the "scandals" as a factor, insisting that the play with it, particularly by the Conservative leader, has been their gain. They cannot see anything that can compete with "Liberal times are good times" or "Liberal times are better."

In other words, the Liberals believe Mr. Diefenbaker on top of other disadvantages, is a depression symbol much like R. B. Bennett was in the '30s and '40s.

Among the regulars of the old parties and even in the NDP there is an acceptance of the reality that leadership conventions are in the offing. Thus individual success is important to Robert Winters and George Hees and David Lewis in this election fight.

It seems a reasonable forecast that if the Liberals win, whether a majority or not, that the Conservatives will have a leadership race, or choice in 1966, the New Democrats in 1967, and the Liberals in early 1968.

One interesting chore on election night will be watching whether the exceptional candidates make it or run ahead of their party. A lot of lip-service has been given to good candidates. Perhaps I am too cynical in expecting that a candidate's quality or lack of it will continue to mean very little in most ridings.

What will be blessed, above all else, is the quiet that will ensue within two or three days after Nov. 8. There seems only the possibility not the likelihood, that some international crisis will resurrect the politicians during the pre-Christmas and Christmas period. They'll begin to stir in late January.

Reporters on Election Trail Don't Expect Many Surprises

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—The end of the campaign sneaks up on you. Not that there's anything more of importance to be said: every issue has been talked out—and from where the campaign reporters sit, talked out ad nauseam.

Waring

But in two months the campaign trail becomes a way of life for the peripatetic politicians, their camp followers, and for the news correspondents and photographers who are the public's ears and eyes. Now it's over, with only the results of it all still to come.

Most of us fresh from the hustings are pretty certain that Monday will have few surprises. The politicians have had the reports of sampling polls conducted during the campaign, which they may welcome or discount, depending on how those results tally with their hopes. And newsmen have had their on-the-spot observations, the vibrations of their ESP antennae, and a great deal of experience with politicians and the body politic in assessing and evaluating what they see, hear and sense.

My evaluation of public reaction to the issues and personalities in the campaign suggests the return of the Liberal government with 145 seats, give or take a few.

A month ago I would have said 140. But in the month I have seen many signs that the Liberals will do much better in Ontario than had appeared likely earlier in the campaign. And on the other side of the ledger, indications now are that Liberal gains in the west, if any, will be few.

"If it wasn't for the scandals," a Liberal Party official told me in Toronto last week, "we'd have a landslide."

That may be. But I don't share his regrets. Good government is not encouraged by an overwhelming majority in the Commons, but by inspired leadership, competent administrators, and integrity. A small majority is more conducive to good government, with a strong and watchful opposition ably performing its duty to criticize.

I expect Mr. Pearson will have a small majority after Monday, and considering the proven incompetence of some of his ministers and the embarrassing pratfalls of his administration he hardly deserves more. Indeed, his record underlies the need and value of a numerically strong and vigilant opposition.

The reasons for majority government that Mr. Pearson has paraded are valid. But there is another reason why this particular prime minister needs more Liberal MPs: to give him a wider choice of men and women for cabinet appointments so he can, if he will, make a clean sweep of ministers who are no longer assets to the administration.

It is ministerial incompetence rather than dishonesty which has tarnished the Liberal image, and Mr. Pearson must be held answerable. Not only constitutionally, but logically as well, because most of the administration's troubles trace back to the prime minister's policy of putting too much confidence in the judgment and competence of untried ministers.

Mr. Pearson may have learned from his unhappy experience—but one might well ask, how many lessons does he need? He was a minister in the St. Laurent government when the then prime minister made the same mistake. Mr. St. Laurent had no curb or check on C. D. Howe, and the administration reaped the result in the Pipeline Debate and loss of the 1957 election.

Splotches of Shame on A Neighborhood's Pride

By ART STOTT

ACROSS the street from our place, splotches of pink paint deface my neighbor's steps, garage door and garage windows. Somehow, I can't accept this as a youthful prank and I hope that the parents of the person who performed the senseless offence feel as I do.

Stott

If they don't, I think they might well take an old bedsheet, cut and fold a hooded top on it, with eye-holes, and let the rest drape down from neck to toes of their boy—if it was a boy who splashed the paint around. The performance is of a kind credited to the bed-sheet brigade mentality that has so deeply shamed some sections of the southern United States.

The indignity was performed on a family of four, a father, mother and two bright preschool little girls. All but the younger daughter have suffered serious impairment of health during the year. The brave soul with the can of color was safe enough from physical retaliation, even had he been caught—and again I'm assuming it was an ill-balanced boy.

I feel sad as I view the evidence of something that runs a little deeper than thoughtlessness on the part of some juvenile—sad in sympathy with the victims, infinitely sadder for the father and mother of the offender. And sad, also, for our neighborhood which, until quite recently, was a source of pride to those of us who lived there.

We don't give ourselves airs down there, but we've enjoyed living in that location and we have been fortunate enough to find a spirit of neighborliness which can be a decoration of community living.

The homes vary in style and financial value. Some are new. Some are expensive. Some are relatively old but, generally speaking, they're well-kept. It's the sort of place where you can talk cheerfully across the fence as you work in your garden to the people on either side who are working in their gardens.

Last year we were a little uncomfortable because a transient batch of would-be beatniks rented one of the vacant houses in the locality and publicized their untidy parties too loudly. They eventually left and we could spare them.

Then again, early this summer, some of the unoccupied youngsters made minor nuisances of themselves with tough talk, bad language and small vandalism at the foot of some of the waterfront lots. Happily, too, their gang dissolved.

Some of us wonder if more hostile members of that crowd used this season of the year to vent their spleen on the people across the street and did it with a paint can. That may be the case, though it's only speculation.

But what depresses some of us who have been there a long time is the harm some undisciplined juvenile—and the term holds even if the individual has reached chronological majority—can inflict on people who go about minding their own business, who are helpful to one another, and who find satisfaction and pleasure in their homes and locality.

I don't know who smeared the paint. I don't know what magnificent development lies ahead for the mind which conceived the idea and put it into execution. But I have the ironical impression that, at some future date, requests will be made to me and my neighbors to help finance the treatment centres which offer assistance to the disturbed.

I grieve a little for the parents of the perpetrator because of the problems their offspring promises them. If they are not upset, then I grieve a great deal more deeply for them.

News Highlights Of the Week

Elections Big Topic

By PETER MURRAY
Times' Wire News Editor

While Canadians prepared to cast their ballots Monday, elections were also making news in other countries this week.

France's presidential election is still a month away but Charles de Gaulle made it almost a formality when he officially declared his intention to run again.

He ended months of carefully cultivated secrecy in a 10-minute television and radio address to the French people. He chose the feast day of St. Charles to make the announcement.

De Gaulle will be 75 later this month and, barring illness, will be 82 when he completes his second seven-year term in 1973.

"I consider it my duty to continue my task," de Gaulle told his people.

With typical grandeur, he added that unless he is given a "massive" vote of support the Fifth Republic which he fathered will crumble and the country will suffer "a confusion of the state that will be even more disastrous than what I knew in other times."

In view of the lack of any opposing candidate with stature it was generally agreed that de Gaulle will receive the endorsement he desires.

●

Attempting to make a comeback against his one-time ally and successor, Premier Levi Eshkol, the 79-year-old Ben-Gurion was soundly beaten at the polls.

He formed a new party earlier this year to oppose the ruling Mapai which he himself had founded, and waged a bitter campaign in an attempt to regain power.

Eshkol, 70, is expected to head a coalition government made up of six of the country's 17 parties. He invited Ben-Gurion to return but "the grand old man of Israel" refused and is expected to retire from politics.

●

In the U.S., the Republican party, desperately hunting for new leadership material, may have found their man with the upset victory of 43-year-old John Lindsay in the election for mayor of New York.

Lindsay, a vigorous, good-looking, liberal-minded politician in the Kennedy tradition, ended 20 years' domination of New York City by the Democratic party by defeating former city comptroller Abraham Beame.

Although President Johnson had kept aloof from the contest, the result was considered a blow to his prestige. However in scattered other state and civic results in the off-year elections the divided Republicans failed to make much headway.

●

The Rhodesia crisis continued in the talking stage following Prime Minister Harold Wilson's success in averting an immediate showdown on the white-ruled colony's. demand for independence.

Wilson and Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith agreed to establish a royal commission to study the existing constitution and suggest possible amendments that would guarantee rights for the Negro majority.

Wilson also acceded to Smith's request for a poll of the Rhodesian people on whether they are willing to accept the 1961 constitution without any changes.

Wilson was also engaged in negotiations with another colony seeking independence, British Guiana.

It is expected that a constitution for the new nation of "Guyana" will be agreed upon at the talks and independence achieved before next summer.

Guyana will be eligible to become the 23rd member of the British Commonwealth.

●

China suffered another blow to its sagging prestige when Afro-Asian leaders decided to call off their planned summit conference in Algiers rather than bow to the Chinese demand for exclusion of the Soviet Union.

The conference was intended to mark the 10th anniversary of the first Afro-Asian conference in Bandung, Indonesia. Now that most of the Afro-Asian nations have won their independence and anti-colonialism is no longer a common bond, there is little unity among the original participants.

DIEF PM AGAIN: 'HORRIFYING THOUGHT'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Many conscientious voters will no doubt spend the few remaining hours until they actually cast their ballots, wondering how they can possibly bring themselves to choose, from the two main candidates available, a prime minister who will move this country forward through the difficult second half of this tumultuous decade.

Here we are, a vibrant, affluent, adventurous young nation—yearning for a political leader who can illuminate our future. Instead during the election campaign just finished, we've witnessed the spectacle of two old men, swaying in the wind of their self-esteem.

John Diefenbaker has fought wildly, out of a sense of personal survival, hoping to mesmerize the voters into granting him one more "appointment with destiny."

Sense of Duty

Lester Pearson has fought dully, out of a sense of duty, pacing himself in the expectation that at the end of it all, he will be able to retire safely behind the ramparts of a parliamentary majority.

No surge of insight intruded into the campaign of either man. Having followed one or the other of them throughout this entire election, I'm just as baffled in trying to divine what they really stand for, as any stay-at-home voter whose participation consisted mainly in switching channels whenever one of these weary political gladiators appeared on his screen.

Since the parties set out no clear policy alternatives, the voters next Monday will not be able to vote on how our national problems are to be solved, but only on who is to be entrusted with their solution.

Up to Individual

Each voter will have to judge for himself which of these two men has the best chance of taming the many forces—both domestic and external—menacing the Canadian future. For the evolution of that future is the real issue in this campaign. The past triumphs and indiscretions of both parties are only incidental; the election's results will not change our yesterdays.

In judging which politician is more suited to the task of shaping our tomorrows, it seems to me that a relevant rule of thumb might be the "men and the boys" theory once put forward by Eric Severeid, the American political commentator. According to Severeid, the "boys" on politics are those individuals who want position in order to be something, the "men, in order to do something.

In my mind, that criterion eliminates John Diefenbaker, because he has demonstrated in this campaign that he desires political power with single-minded ferocity, but has failed to show that he's interested in government as well as politics. It is perfectly possible to have admiration and respect for the man from Prince Albert as a courageous campaigner with all the right human instincts, while at the same time to be horrified at the thought of him occupying the prime minister's office again.

Lester Pearson qualifies as one of the "men" rather than "boys" in politics, because, in my view, he is more interested in what he can accomplish in office, than in the idea of exercising power. It seems to me that he is very much the better man to be in charge of the delicate negotiations which will eventually resolve the currently dangerous strains on Confederation.

Prediction Hard

Nobody can order up the election results, or even predict accurately its outcome. But even though I believe Mr. Pearson should be re-elected, I very much hope he will not get the majority mandate he seeks.

By aligning himself openly during the campaign with the "old guard" elements of the Quebec Liberal party, the prime minister has served unofficial notice that he will interpret a decisive victory at the polls as an endorsement of his handling of the scandals. A Liberal majority on Monday would be a triumph for the anti-reform, old guard elements of the party.

Once the grey cloak of a strong Liberal majority enfolds Ottawa, there will be no way of determining how the Pearson administration might resolve future conflicts between public interest and private conscience.

It seems to me, therefore, that the Canadian future would best be served next Monday by a reluctant, minority mandate for the Liberals.

The Gallup Poll

Liberals Boost Lead Over PCs

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Interviewing conducted across Canada five days before election date shows the following division in popular vote among the more than 7-in-10 likely to go to the polls.

Progressive Conservative	29%
Liberal	44
NDP	18
Socred and other	9
	100%

All areas of Canada contributed to the fact that the gulf between the two old-line parties will be wider this election than in 1963. During the last few weeks of the campaign both leading parties appeared to lose some popular support, most of this loss going to the NDP. This party made most of its recent gains in the metropolitan areas of Toronto and Montreal.

Social Credit losses from 1963, due in the main to the splintering of the party, were such that the Institute includes them with "other parties" in the above table.

The above figures show, in terms of popular vote, political standings of the various parties, based on interviewing carried out on Wednesday, November 3. Interviewers for the Institute, trained to make their own count, wired results on Wednesday night for processing and analysis. It should be remembered that all data released by the Institute is based on popular vote—and it is therefore unsound to translate these percentages into actual seats.

Pre-election studies have revealed a lower interest in this election than that shown in 1963, indicating a smaller turn-out. This in turn could affect the final vote. Turn-out still presents one of the challenges to this type of sampling, as no way has yet been devised to ascertain, almost a week ahead of voting day, whether or not a person will actually go to the polls. The Institute's sample is necessarily based on all eligible voters; if from a third to a quarter do not vote on election day, problems are increased.

In obtaining its information, the Institute uses modern sampling techniques in which a scientific sample of all eligible voters is asked: "If a federal election were being held today, which party's candidate do you think you would favor?"

All sampling is subject to some margin of error. The only claim ever made by the Gallup Poll is that the techniques used constitute the most accurate method yet devised for assessing public attitudes, short of a complete census.

This is the eighth federal election reported by the Gallup Poll on the eve of the actual vote. Up to, and including, 1957, because of the problems of time and distance, final interviewing stopped 10 days before the election. However since 1957, when the poll, because of this 10-day interval, missed the continuing sweep to the Conservatives, and underestimated their vote by 5 per cent, all interviewing has been carried out five days before the actual election. Here is the share of the popular vote actually obtained by the parties in the last three elections.

	Poll	Actual Vote	Poll	Actual Vote	Poll	Actual Vote
Liberals	33%	33%	36%	37%	41%	42%
Conservatives	56	54	38	37	32	33
NDP	8	10	12	14	14	12
Socreds and Others	3	3	14	12	13	13

LOOKING AROUND AT ART

By ROBIN SKELTON

Fables and Moralities in Collages

At first glance the exhibition of collages by Duncan de Kergommeaux at Victoria Art Gallery appears to be technically impressive but emotionally null.

Skelton

The pictures are composed largely in terms of vertical bands of white, off white, and black. These are sometimes modulated by the introduction of near-circles, and by occasional horizontal bands and one or two other fairly simple shapes.

Each picture is beautifully organized and highly decorative, but the effect is ascetic rather than enlivening.

This is, however, only the first impression. If you sit down in front of one of these works and allow yourself to be receptive, you soon become aware that you are on the receiving end of a powerfully rhythmic form of communication.

The pictures appear to expand and contract laterally as your eye dwells first upon this shape and then upon that.

The mauve vertical shape in Number 26 looks at first like the shaft of a stilled pendulum whose black disc is poised above a white stone with a scooped-out top; after a while the color causes the shaft to appear to vibrate, and the black disc seems always upon the point of moving sideways or of being shaken free and falling downwards.

Similarly, in Number 7 you see, first of all, shapes which are reminiscent of city landscapes.

One area appears to be a city of white buildings under a black sun and a black sky; the other appears to be a black city dominated by a white moon and by a huge white pillar.

Obviously, this work is not representational, and I am only using this image of the cities to provide a rough clue to the nature of the shapes involved.

Their true shape, or perhaps I should say vitality, only becomes apparent after a while. Then the black and the white appear to move back into the distance or forward towards the spectator in accordance with which part of the painting is receiving most attention.

Thus if you look steadily at the left-hand edge and then slowly travel your gaze to the right, you receive an impression of constantly moving forms. It seems as if the painting is unable to keep still.

Such an art is not, perhaps, restful, but it is fascinating. Number 19 appears, at first, to be both fascinating and restful, for, though it is multicolored, the majority of the tones are quiet.

Nevertheless, the electric blue to the right of the canvas soon begins to vibrate, and the thinner, but equally vivid, lines to the left vibrate in sympathy. Between these two disturbances the whole area soon appears to be in movement.

It is not easy to see quite how the background tones relate to one another; they appear to melt into one another and then separate, largely according to how much attention the corner of your eye is paying to the blue which appears to be getting even closer to the watching eye.

Now all this, described rather clumsily I'm afraid, could be taken as yet another variation upon the theme of "Op Art".

De Kergommeaux is not, however, an Op Artist. His collages may make use of optical illusions of a kind that Op Artists enjoy, but they are not devoted primarily to creating those illusions.

The optical illusions, in fact, simply add another dimension to the system of related spaces and forms which it is De Kergommeaux's concern to present.

These relationships, moreover, are not without emotional implications. Some works are powerfully suggestive of certain moods. Number 19 presents, for me, a mood of melancholy juxtaposed with one of harsh, even shrill, decisiveness.

In all these works however I sense, in the careful ordering of sharply contrasting forms and tones, and in the restrained yet dramatic use of different textures and elements of relief, an attempt to present the act of judgment itself in pictorial terms.

We cannot remain idle before these pictures. We must weigh this against that, observe the altering relationships of these and those, and remain continually interested by further possibilities.

Thus, finally, what first appears to be the results of mere technical expertise, reveals itself to be the expression of a mood of questioning concern. Indeed, it seems to me that these paintings are fables and moralities of far more significance than many obviously allegorical or moral works.

Do go and see them, and be patient with them. They demand and reward contemplation.

Desert Land on Increase In Most Parts of World

Reviewed by A. R. Fontaine

More than one-fifth of the world's land area is arid desert and unfit for normal agriculture. Moreover, with the exception of North America and Australia where abundant technical skills and wealth have permitted substantial reclamation, desert land in most parts of the world is increasing at a startling rate as a result of agricultural malpractice aggravated by population growth.

The authors of Life in Deserts are scientists at the University of Khartoum who have devoted their research efforts to a study of biological and agricultural problems of desert regions throughout the world.

Their book is a summary of modern research upon the desert environment, and represents an important contribution to our understanding of the complex ecology of deserts.

Following a survey of the physical factors which constitute the desert environment, the bulk of the book is devoted to the adaptations of the flora and fauna to their fierce, inhospitable surroundings.

The authors provide many excellent photographs and some rather poor line drawings of the characteristic plants and animals. The book concludes with a discussion of the delicate interrelationships between plants, animals and man in the desert community.

One factor emerges very clearly from this discussion; that is, how very easy it is to convert a fertile region into a desert and how very difficult it is to reverse the pattern.

As the authors point out, the climate of Northern Africa has not changed significantly in historical times. Yet there are vast areas of desert now surrounding the central Sahara that were once fertile lands supporting large, prosperous populations in Roman times.

As civilized influence withdrew from these areas and as technical accomplishments collapsed, agricultural as well as social decadence destroyed the marginal lands.

The result is a man-made desert region that is creeping southward over Africa as an ignorant, nomadic population continues to destroy its own land by mismanagement.

Modern technical achievement could stop and even reverse the trend at any moment, but only political and economic stability can execute the cure.

Because of its fascinating accounts of the life of desert organisms, the book should have wide appeal for natural historians as well as for professional biologists seeking information on desert life.

But Life in Deserts also provides illuminating reading for political economists, sociologists, historians and others who must concern themselves with the influence of man upon his environment.

Warning Sounded

WHY WAIT TILL MARRIAGE, by Evelyn Millis Duvall. G. R. Welch Co. Ltd. 1965. 128 pages. $3.25.

Reviewed by M. Schierbeck

"Why Wait Till Marriage?" is the latest contribution by a well-known author toward the solution of sexual and related problems. She discusses their various aspects of special interest to teenagers and warns them directly and indirectly against pre-marital sexual intercourse, and too early marriage.

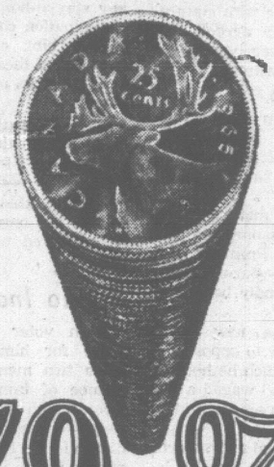

Her answer to Why Wait Till Marriage? is clearly expressed in this quotation from one of the last pages of the book:

"The danger of getting involved sexually too soon" is that you find yourself committed before you find yourself. This cuts short your further development as an individual, and it is not a good way to start your life. Marriage is not child's play. It is a real responsibility calling for genuine maturity."

Observer's Account of Political Gaffs Makes Contradictory but Readable Book

Reviewed by Gordon R. Bell

It is ironic that the most incisive summing up at the Dorion Commission hearings came in the form of a quotation from an American legislator, Senator Fulbright of Kansas, put forward by Ross Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party.

"One of the most disturbing aspects of this moral problem," the senator had said in commenting on the type of hanky panky in American government which often leads to smug comments from Canadians, "is the revalation that among so many influential people morality has become identical with legality. We are certainly in a tragic plight if the accepted standard by which we measure integrity of a man in public life is that he keep within the letter of the law."

Richard Gwyn, in his exciting and compelling account of the "winter scandals" which enmeshed the Liberal government from November, 1964, until they died away this past summer, cites this as the "most telling appeal to authority" made by any of the lawyers in their summations before Chief Justice Dorion.

Contradictions

And yet, for the most part, The Shape of Scandal is written in a manner which elicits the utmost sympathy for the very persons who did, in fact, attempt to defend or cover up morally reprehensible behavior, on the grounds that there was no basis for legal action.

This is only one of a number of inner contradictions in the book that will bother thoughtful readers long after they have put it down.

They will wonder, for instance, whether the government survived the winter scandals because the opposition was so inept in pressing its attack after gaining the initial advantage, as Mr. Gwyn maintains in a number of places; or whether the government survived because Prime Minister Pearson, in Mr. Gwyn's rather breath-taking analysis, is "probably the ablest political tactician the country has known since Mackenzie King."

Did the government win, in other words, or did the opposition lose?

In some respects the contradictions between the story Mr. Gwyn tells and the judgements implicit in his style of telling, are as interesting as the book itself for they reveal the workings of the mind of a young and relatively fresh interpreter of the Ottawa scene.

Mr. Gwynn is a 32-year-old Ottawa correspondent for Time Magazine who came to Canada in 1953 after graduating from the Royal Military College at Sandhurst.

He worked briefly on the Quebec Chronicle Telegraph as a reporter and then went to Newfoundland on the sales staff of The Ensign.

Enmeshed

After a stint with United Press International he arrived on the Ottawa scene in 1959, first with the Thompson Newspapers, then with the Maclean Hunter Business Publications and, finally, with Time in 1962.

Mr. Gwyn is obviously against immorality in politics, as seen in his endorsement of Senator Fulbright's warning against the danger of confusing morality with legality.

But he allows himself to become enmeshed in the same confusion—perhaps along with a good many other Canadians.

For instance, Mr. Gwyn tells us in his prologue that "a true political scandal is an incident that is dealt with in a scandalous manner and which comes about because of scandalous circumstances."

But this neat blending, or blurring, of cause and effect is less than satisfying as one pursues his fascinating account of the tangled trail of events which led to the most serious scandal in a Canadian government since the Beauharnois affair of nearly 40 years ago, and to the ruin of a number of promising political careers.

Mr. Gwyn states the scandals need never have happened, that they resulted from a "series of compromises made in the name of political expediency."

What he really seems to mean is that the "scandalous circumstances" need not have been dealt with in Parliament in a "scandalous manner" had the then Minister of Justice, Guy Favreau, been less naive about his friends and more competent in his office and as a politician.

Politically Inept

This is not to say then that cause for scandal did not exist. Mr. Gwyn clearly points to the roots — from actions taken in the Rivard case which Chief Justice Dorion found merited consideration from both moral and legal standpoints, to the dealings of two cabinet ministers in furniture on credit which, to say the least, were politically inept.

Had the whole affair been handled competently, Mr. Gwyn believes, it need not have culminated in the Prime Minister committing that most serious of parliamentary sins, making a factually incorrect statement in the House as to when he had first been informed that government officials might possibly be involved in attempts to influence the course of the Rivard case.

Tracking further through this labyrinth of confusion about political morality, we find Mr. Gwyn observing that "when an individual is being judged, tolerance and compassion are mandatory." But, "when a government is on trial, these are optional."

In the same breath, as it were, he goes on to say that "an individual is responsible only for what he does; a government has a collective responsibility to set standards for the public and to lead the nation towards its determined goal. Unless a government is prepared to abdicate this responsibility, it must accept judgment for its behavior and the appearance of its behavior."

Where is the option here for tolerance and compassion unless one is led into the error of thinking of government as a disembodied entity, on the one hand, and the men who make up the government as non-responsible individuals, on the other?

Nevertheless—and to the joy undoubtedly of Liberal partisans—Mr. Gwyn has directed most of his acute powers of observation not to the "collective responsibility" of government, but to the individuals involved.

This dichotomy is what makes The Shape of Scandal such an eminently readable book right now in the midst of an election campaign while probably vitiating its worth as an historical document.

Here, just as one example drawn from the many character sketches, is a Lester Pearson who will be unrecognizable to many Canadians (and probably to himself): "the fully indispensable man."

For this is a different Pearson from the honest, honorable, intellectual and statesmanlike (but rather hesitant, vacillating and politically naive) man which is the image most Canadians hold.

Cool Pragmatist

According to Mr. Gwyn, the prime minister's public image has been "carefully nurtured" so that he will appear to the public as a "well-intentioned 'nice guy' who, half in affection, half in irritation, has been paid one of the highest compliments that can be given to a Canadian politician—that he is not a politician."

"Behind this facade," says Mr. Gwyn, "he is a cool political pragmatist with an exceptioally sensitive ear for the public mood. Both in opposition and in government his policies have seldom been far ahead of public opinion, but they have never been far behind.

There is much more about this Pearson whom most Canadians don't know and yet who, according to people who do know him reasonably well, has been quite accurately sketched in this chapter.

For instance: "Pearson's political genius is his capacity for making use of any emergency to achieve progress. To him nothing is certain but everything is possible. Herein lies his glaring political weakness. Pearson will do anything the nation asks of him but he has not yet discovered what to ask of the nation."

Difficult Task

If this neat paraphrasing of the late President Kennedy sounds uncomfortably like an obituary, it is not intended to be so for Mr. Gwyn is unstintingly and, on the record, justifiably full of praise for Mr. Pearson's accomplishment against tough odds in holding Canada together as a nation.

Just how difficult that task has been is the central fact implicit in Mr. Gwyn's revelations of the "winter scandals." From top to bottom, almost, they concerned French Canadian members of the government, involved in what seemed to have ranged from veniality to foolishness.

Whether or not Mr. Pearson can be held accountable for the "Montreal Liberal trashcan," as Le Devoir phrased it, standing outside the back door of Parliament a good half decade after it should have been removed is the vital question readers of this book will ask themselves.

Taste Tempters Plain and Fancy

By CHRIS ROSE

People of all ages for whom books are an essential means of entertainment and information, look to the coming season as a time for the refurbishing of their shelves.

To the bookworm of any degree, it is not possible to have too many books. And the youngsters, of course, out-grow their store almost as rapidly as they out-grow their clothing.

Anyone who has a few bookworms on his list can consider himself lucky, for the only ingenuity he has to exercise is in shopping around for the most likely titles.

There are even books that achieve a solution for the non-reader gift problem. One of these arrived this week from the publishers. And men, you who wander about the big stores at Christmas looking vacant and distraught, this is for you if there is a mother, wife, fiancee, sister or other kitchen-inclined wench upon your list.

FAMILY HEIRLOOMS is a publication of McClelland and Stewart on the subject of treasures culinary, not ceramic. The slim volume between hard covers is oozing with delectable sounding, highly special recipes.

All have been handed down in author Trina Vineberg's family, some from as far back as her great-great-grandmother's collection.

None are costly and in all cases Miss Vineberg, in collaboration with her mother has updated the recipes in matters of qualities and in the use of modern utensils and short-cut methods.

The clear, beautifully printed pages of recipes and accompanying commentary appeal to the aesthetic sense as well as the gourmet whether one is reading about Pickled Walnut Stew, Sauced Herring, English Marzipan Tarts or Coffee Almond Layer Cake.

Miss Vineberg is a graduate dietician with a degree in Home Economics from McGill and professional dietician internship at Toronto General Hospital. At present she is Food Editor of the Family Herald.

Price of the volume—$3.50.

If you want to include books for young relatives in parcels going overseas, there are numbers to choose from with a distinctive Canadian flavor that will probably intrigue as well as delight the recipients.

BOSS OF THE NAMKO DRIVE by Vancouver writer Paul St. Pierre, is published by Ryerson Press at $3.75.

It is a well written absorbing story by the author of the highly rated CBC television series, Cariboo Country, and is, in fact, an adaptation of one of those episodes slanted for a 12-16-year-old reader.

The book's hero is the 15-year-old son of a rancher deep in the Chilcotin heart of British Columbia's cattle country. Due to an accident suffered by his father, the boy, Delore, is faced with the need to lead a 200-mile cattle drive to the railhead at Williams Lake.

TECUMSEH, by Luella Bruce Creighton, is the life story of one of the greatest of all Indian chiefs. It is published by the Macmillan Company as one of their Great Stories of Canada series.

It is the moving and intensely interesting account of the last great Indian leader and one of the noblest men—red or white—to walk through the pages of North American history.

Well illustrated, the book's price is $2.50.

From the publishing house of W. J. Gage Ltd., come the fourth annual editions of two anthologies for boys and girls. Nunny Bag 4 is for six-to-10-year-olds, Rubaboo 4 for 10-to-12-year-olds.

Nunny Bag, besides a charming variety of stories, contains brief, whimsical poems and a short play suitable for a group project involving the simplest of dressing and mounting.

Both it and Rubaboo ("Rubaboo is a stew, a stew is a savory mixture of things, a mixture of things is a collection, a collection of stories is an anthology") are well illustrated in black-and-white, the often humorous and always imaginative contents well written and presented in a good quality format.

Emphasis is on entertainment but both books have their informative aspects enclosed in a delectable candy coat. Price of each is $4.

THE BURKES . . . . . . IN TRAPP TRADITION

Charming Family Coming

Neither before, nor since they retired, has there been anything on the American concert stage to equal in unique charm and musical delight, the famous Trapp Family singers, whose story has been romanticized in The Sound of Music.

Until recently, that is.

Within the last two or three years, a new family has come to the fore—the Burke Family Singers.

This is an all-American family of 10 children, plus mother and father. The group sings under the father's direction, encompassing a versatile repertoire in eight languages.

Their music ranges from 13th century polyphony through Palestrina, Bach, Mozart and Brahms to madrigals, spirituals and folk songs.

In their rapid rise in the professional music world, they have made TV appearances with Ed Sullivan and Jack Parr, recorded and made numerous concert tours.

Now, in the course of their first Western Canadian tour, the Burke Family will be presented by McPherson Playhouse in a concert there next Thursday.

The five girls and five boys range in age from the early twenties to the sub-teen-age youngest son.

Their father, Walter Vincent Burke, a fine musician, is organist and choirmaster at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, in Providence, R.I., where he takes pride in a boys' choir that is second to none in the Eastern United States.

When his family began to grow up they sang hymns together with so much natural musicianship that Mr. Burke started to train them to sing simple part songs.

Soon the Burke Family came to be known within a limited radius, but within the few years that have elapsed their fame has grown to international proportions and they have logged more than 150 concerts, with tours through the Mid-West and Southern United States and into Canada.

When Hedwig von Trapp heard them she exclaimed: "Why, it's like my family all over again."

Joint Recital Wednesday Features Horn, Organ

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

Three musicians will be featured at another fine concert to be held in Christ Church Cathedral Friday, Nov. 12 at 8 p.m.

Two are well-known professionals regularly heard in the city.

Charles Moore, principal French horn with Victoria Symphony, accompanied by Richard Proudman, Cathedral organist, will perform some lovely music including the Andante Cantabile from Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony.

For the third performer, however, the occasion will be somewhat special. It will be his first public organ recital, although he played in a CBC television broadcast from his school.

Graham Hunter, only just turned 17, is a Grade 12 student at Shawnigan Lake Boys' School. According to Mr. Proudman Graham has "terrific ability" and "shows tremendous potential for a boy of his age."

The miracle of it all is that Graham has only been playing the organ for two years, and before that he had piano lessons for a mere three years.

His teacher from the start has been Ian Galliford of Shawnigan Lake School. The organ at the school has two manuals. But Graham, son of the Rev. Norman Hunter of Calgary, spent many hours last summer practising on a four-manual church organ.

By reading and study he taught himself registration, the art of choosing stops.

Christ Church Cathedral organ has 62 stops, and there are infinite combinations to produce different sounds.

Graham is a very modest young man and it was only through his form master, Graham Anderson, that I was able to discover that he is an excellent student in Grade 12A, that he won Best Actor Award at Cowichan Festival as Napoleon in Man of Destiny; that he is singing Koko in the school production of Mikado, and that he was Captain of Gymnastics.

This last he has had to give up, as well as rough sports like rugby. An organist, unlike a violinist or most other instrumentalists, cannot afford to break any of his limbs. He needs all four to play.

Although reticent about his personal exploits, young Graham waxed unexpectedly articulate when I asked him who his favorite composer was.

"Max Reger," he replied unhesitatingly. "He combines the best of Bach with modern harmonies, for me he takes the best of everything from every school. I like the contrapuntal flow of his music." He added that Reger was a "deeply religious" composer, but conceded that Bach was indispensable to the organ.

He is playing Bach's great Toccata, The Dorian, on Nov. 12.

Graham is sitting for his Associate diploma of Trinity College, London, this spring. In the fall he intends to go to London to study, and in two years' time, if all goes well, he hopes to go to Cambridge for his Bachelor of Music degree at famous Kings' College, of which, incidentally, Mr. Proudman is a graduate.

ZEITLIN . . . breathtaking

Violin Master Here

One of the most important artists to appear with Victoria Symphony Orchestra since Glenn Gould will be soloist this weekend when the orchestra plays its usual Royal Theatre pair Sunday and Monday, as well as the first concert in the Duncan series. Sunday night.

Violinist Zvi Zeitlin, who can most truly be described as a master of his instrument, may be regarded technically as a new-generation Heifetz.

But comparisons must end there, for no two artists are alike and Zeitlin's artistry is as individual as it is impressive.

Rehearsing the Beethoven D-Major Violin Concerto with Otto-Werner Mueller and the orchestra this week, his sensetive musical perceptiveness as well as his brilliance and power appeared breathtaking.

The third program of the season opens with Mozart's Overture to La Clemenza di Tito and closes with Dvorak's ethnic-inspired Fourth Symphony.

THEATRE ON CAMPUS

Director's View Of Miller's 'View'

By JOAN MASON HURLEY

The University of Victoria theatre is a turmoil of organized activity these evenings with four plays being simultaneously rehearsed, I should add, in separate sections of the building.

A full-time wardrobe mistress and a full-time production manager are kept busy catering to many demands.

The makeup room with charts for each actor is efficiently arranged and all is set for a tremendously stimulating and provocative series of productions.

A great modern American tragedy, which has become a contemporary classic, is first on the list. It is Arthur Miller's A View from the Bridge.

Robert Hedley, who is directing, is very enthusiastic about this magnificent play, set in the slums of New York.

"It is primitive emotions exploding," he said. "There is a sense of awe and draining throughout the production, the audience experiences a catharsis at the end."

★ ★ ★

This expresses my own opinion of "View," a play once seen or read impossible to shake loose from one's mind.

Two Sicilians, illegal immigrants to the United States, precipitate impending tragedy through their arrival at the slum dwelling of their relations, a couple with an orphaned niece.

Powerful is an overworked word in drama. But if ever a play has power, this one does. Every character is a complete living person. Love is shown, in all its facets, including incest. Hate is there, and the grip society has on man is implicit in its context.

"Miller," said Mr. Hedley, "has passion and understanding."

To portray these complex human beings he has assembled a fine cast of students, nearly all of whom acted together in the excellent university production of Wild Duck last year.

As the play is in the Greek manner, Mr. Hedley has designed a set reminiscent of Greek ruins, with the New York tenement enclosed within. This he says is in order to "link the scene thematically with what Miller is saying."

One of the reasons for choosing A View From the Bridge, is that it is required reading for first-year English.

Mr. Hedley told me that many freshmen have never been to a theatre or seen a play. Part of the University function is to educate these students into play-going. By producing one which they have been obliged to read they are able to see the printed page come alive.

Mr. Hedley also explained that many undergraduates do not go to the theatre because the play choice is 10 to 15 years behind student thinking.

It is therefore planned to give during lunch hour at the university, several very avante-garde and unusual plays that are seldom performed in the commercial theatre. He said this provides "the newest kind of theatrical experience" and gives the students the opportunity to see without charge what they themselves "read and are excited by."

Mr. Hedley has been offered an appointment at Boston University next year as Supervisor of Graduate Studies in Directing.

In View From the Bridge we have an excellent opportunity to see what a first-class director can do with a superb play.

FOR PIANO

Fund Growing

Out of Victoria School of Music — logically enough — is developing the first positive move toward procuring for concert purposes in this city, a suitable grand piano.

Major impetus in this move is being given by three members of the faculty — Robin Wood, Jean Angers and Hans Siegrist.

On Wednesday next, at McPherson Playhouse, this trio will present a recital, performing in ensemble from the works of Haydn and Mendelssohn, while Mr. Wood as soloist, will play piano selections by Frederic Chopin.

Royal Trust is sponsoring this concert and all proceeds will go into the piano fund.

The School faculty has set as its ultimate goal, a sum of $8,000.

Already the first two thousand has been provided by an anonymous donor, the Women's Committee of the school, and well-known Victoria musician Carol Wootton who has passed along a donation received by her together with a contribution of her own.

SERIES MAY END

The celebrity series which has occupied the Victoria concert stage for a number of years, may be withdrawn this winter if the subscription list, which at present would no more than half fill the lower floor of the Royal Theatre, does not lengthen.

Promoters of the series—Famous Artists of Vancouver—have been faced with numerous difficulties.

Shortage of artists and high fees for those available, such as the two Soviet musicians, mean the impresarios are faced with certain loss if the series goes on with present membership.

Cancellation of this season could mean that there will be no professional concert series in Victoria in the forseeable future.

Fate of the series which contains Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, Nicolai Petrov, pianist, Vienna Choir Boys, Betty Phillips, soprano, and Boris Gutnikov, violinist, will be known next week.

Extras, Gracie Fields, who will appear here Nov. 15, and the Canadian revue, Spring Thaw, will go on as scheduled.

Prize Book Banned

SEOUL (AP) — The South Korean government Friday banned the import or publication of any translations of Russian Nobel prize-winner Mikhail Sholokhov's best-known work, And Quiet Flows the Don. No reason was given for the ban but the Communist party is outlawed in South Korea and the publication of books by Communist or pro-Communist authors is generally prohibited.

Mountain-Top Actor Favored by Studios

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Every once in a while there comes along an actor in whom the studios have such faith that they put him in a series of starring roles before the public has seen him.

The latest happy fellow to enjoy this treatment is Robert Redford. He now is being seen in Situation Hopeless, But Not Serious, a German-American film which Redford feels was a mistake — but not serious.

He is more sanguine about the two following films, Inside Daisy Clover (Natalie Wood, Christopher Plummer) and The Chase (Marlon Brando, Jane Fonda). When I saw him, he was poised to leave for Biloxi, Miss., to again co-star with Miss Wood in Tennessee Williams' This Property Is Condemned.

And just how is this chap Robert Redford?

He is a local boy who doesn't like it around here any more. The surroundings have changed since he was born in Santa Monica and grew up in Van Nuys. Not for the better, he feels.

"You used to be able to find things in Los Angeles when I was a kid," he laments. "Now everything is swallowed up."

But unlike most actors who come to films from Broadway, Redford harbours no hankering to return to the stage. He won the movie jobs for his work in the comedy Barefoot in the Park. He was in the play eight months and after the first two he was ready to climb the scenery walls.

The place he likes best is neither Hollywood nor New York but a craggy mountaintop in Utah where he has built his own hideaway.

"It's 45 miles from the nearest town," he says, his blue eyes glowing as he pictures the place. "I found it when I was hunting once, and I decided I had to have it. Later I found out it was owned by some sheep-herders and I had a devil of a time getting them to sell it.

"But they did, and I built the house myself. It's a series of A-frames that allow a 180-degree view of the surrounding mountains. We can see storms forming on one side while the other side is bright sunshine."

Whenever film schedules allow, he takes his wife and two young children there and enjoys the mountain life. This has caused dismay among his associates.

"But, boy, you gotta hang around town," they tell him. He doesn't think so.

Viet Peace Journey In Pearson Program

Hamilton Audience Cheers Prosperity, Unity Speech

By IAN MacDONALD
Times Ottawa Bureau Staff Writer

HAMILTON—Prime Minister Pearson played the Palace Friday night in a smasheroo election campaign wind-up rally.

More than 2,500 people were jammed into the Palace Theatre here for the loudest, most wildly-enthusiastic Liberal meeting of the campaign.

Hundreds stood outside unable to get in.

The audience stopped Pearson in his tracks when he spoke of prosperity and national unity with cheers and chants of "We want Mike."

And they roared again when Pearson said he was prepared to do everything in his power and use all his experience to aid the cause of world peace.

A heckler shouted: "What about Viet Nam?"

Pearson looked out into the sea of faces and placards in the direction of the shout, and answered:

"And that includes Viet Nam."

The crowd burst into more applause.

Pearson, obviously moved by the warmth and vigor of the meeting, made probably his best speech of the campaign, despite a bad dose of flu.

The crowd booed when he asked if they wanted to return to the years of John Diefenbaker.

And the prime minister repeated his earlier statement of the day—that a vote for the NDP would only increase the chance of a return to the Diefenbaker years.

Years of Stagnation Flayed

Pearson described them as record years—record unemployment, record stagnation, record disunity, and record disputes with the U.S.

"Do you want to go back to that?" he asked again.

"No," roared the crowd.

They applauded again and again when he said the Liberal government was the only one that could get the majority government that Canada needs to continue on the road to prosperity and expansion.

"There is going to be a great swing to a majority Liberal government in the next House," Pearson stated.

"The polls show it, the evidence shows it, and it will be proved next Monday," he added.

The meeting was well organized and run, and the accent was on youth—both in the audience and on the platform.

Young Men Flank Pearson

Pearson, and the few others over 40 on stage, were very much in the minority.

The five candidates in the Hamilton area—four members in the last House—all are young and trim.

Each had several supporters with him on the stage, and they obviously were chosen for their "those - who-think-young" appearance.

Some leggy teen-aged cheerleaders were among them.

The hall was a splash of color and a riot of noise for the hour before Pearson spoke—and the only entertainement was a pit orchestra and the slick, blaring St. John's band from Brantford, Ontario.

Cartwheeling Cheer Leaders

Supporters paraded waving placards and blowing horns. Balloons cascaded from the balcony. Cheer-leaders cartwheeled down the aisles.

The excitement and enthusiasm was contagious.

An ear-splitting roar went up as Pearson and Mrs. Pearson—who rejoined him in Hamilton after leaving the tour briefly because of 'flu—preceeded by the drummers from the girls' band.

They interrupted a speech by Hamilton Mayor Vic Copps—a loser in the last provincial Liberal leadership race in Ontario—who praised Pearson for bringing the steel-city its greatest prosperity.

But it was a split-second program—the rally being televised live into more than 40 Ontario ridings — and Pearson got a quick introduction after the tumult subsided.

Last Hurrah in Campaign

"This is the last rally in the campaign," Pearson said as an opener. "The last hurrah."

Even this brought rounds of applause.

It was evident—as it later turned out — that a scattered handful of hecklers in the audience hadn't a chance.

Pearson said relations with the U.S. are good today.

He drew applause when he said the U.S. is not the threat to peace in the world today, and it is neither war-mongering or imperialistic.

Pearson said Canada must also speak out when there is disagreement with the U.S., and emphasized that Canada is not the satellite of any country.

"But we are friends of the U.S. and we want to maintain close relations with them on this continent and in the world," he stated.

Pearson drew more applause when he turned to national unity.

He said we want to make all people in this country, whatever their race or origin, "feel that they are not English-Canadians, French - Canadians or German - Canadians, but Canadians."

ELECTION TRAILS

NDP Attacks Election Act On Patients

A candidate in a Victoria constituancy attacked the Canada Elections Act Friday night as being inhuman in its treatment of hospital patients.

"The stark truth which is kept from many patients is that they lose their votes if they are in hospital," said J. Lloyd Brereton of the New Democratic Party at his last meeting.

"Why? Because they can only vote if they are taken to their regular polls. This means that they must feel well enough to go; must have permission to go; may have to sign a paper saying that they go at their own risk; and they must have suitable transport."

A spokesman for the Victoria returning office said hospital patients can vote if provision is made in the hospital and if they were enumerated at the hospital poll.

But if the person was enumerated at home and entered hospital after Sept. 8, then he or she must return to the same poll to vote.

★ ★ ★

These apartments are replacing lower income homes, he said. When a person has to pay $40 a month for rent from a $75 pension "he has to sustain himself from the free food stall."

★ ★ ★

Most non-service personnel at HMC Dockyard will leave their jobs earlier than usual Monday.

This is to enable them to have three hours in which to cast ballots, a standing provision. They will leave at 4 p.m. instead of the usual 4:30 and 4:45 times.

★ ★ ★

Location of the polling station in division 110 is at 1723 Bank instead of 1728 Davie and the one for division 184 now is at 78 Wellington, not 1140 Faithful.

Two Students Face Charge

VANCOUVER — Public mischief charges were laid today against two university students who penetrated a tight security ring to rain paper darts and balloons down on a stage where Opposition Leader Diefenbaker made a major election speech Friday.

James Ruggles Macdonell, a University of B.C. student, and George Frederick LaSette, Simon Fraser University student, both 21, will appear in court Tuesday.

VANCOUVER residents were amused by signs advertising current movie at theatre and another for Premier Bennett's rally. Movie was suspended for one night but operators didn't bother to remove marquee advertising. (CP Wirephoto.)

VICTORY OVER GRITS CHORUS NDP, TORIES

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Victory over the Liberals.

That's what both Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas claimed when they crossed swords here Friday.

Each said the other's party wasn't even a contender in Monday's election

But more people heard, and cheered, Mr. Douglas in the agrodome when he addressed 5,000 in his own baliwick where the NDP won five of the 11 seats in this metropolis last time and the Tories were blanked. It was the largest rally seen in the province during the campaign.

Some Hecklers

"On Monday next, we are going to win," Mr. Diefenbaker told 2,800 persons, most of them supporters but some of them hecklers, that filled the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

"From the Pacific to the Atlantic, there is an upsurge of support for the New Democratic Party," said Mr. Douglas.

"I believe we are marching to victory," the usually modest socialist cried and there wasn't a single voice of dissent in the crowd's answering roar.

That's because the only vocal opponent was allowed only two "boos" when Mr. Douglas began speaking before half a dozen NDP ushers led by a burly six-footer ran down to his seat, pummelled him, grabbed him by the neck, pants and ankles and hustled him out — taking care to smack his shoulder against a concrete pillar on the way.

'Mooing Calf'

Mr. Douglas, watching from the platform, brought a general laugh as he quipped there must have been "mooing calf" left over from a recent stock show at the Agrodome.

Moments later, he touched off another round of laughter when he said that Prime Minister Pearson "seeing his hopes of a triumph crumbling has turned to scare tactics with the threat . . . that a vote for the NDP would give Mr. Diefenbaker a chance to form a minority government.

"Well, Mr. Pearson knows that Mr. Diefenbaker has no chance of forming any kind of government.

Forget NDP

Mr. Diefenbaker had similar views of the NDP, haranguing his audience to "forget the NDP, they haven't even got a chance."

The former prime minister said he had travelled back and forth across the country divided by Liberal policies and I have had the satisfaction of looking into the faces of my fellow Canadians and seen something there.

"And I believe, and believe more keenly than ever, that I have something to offer to secure preservation of this union."

Both men said they were overjoyed with the crowds turning out for them.

"I am delighted with the numbers and delighted with the spirit of this gathering," Mr. Diefenbaker told his audience. "Last night I was in the province of Quebec and spoke in Montreal to a meeting the like of which I have never seen in all my political career."

Largest Meetings

"This is the largest political gathering of any party in Vancouver this campaign," Mr. Douglas told his happy listeners "and last night in Toronto we had the largest in Canada."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has given his life to the service of his country and Mr. Douglas, fighting a carpet-bagger charge, pledged he would end his days living and working for the betterment of his new hometown.

"I have lived a full span of years and I've given all I have to this country. It would have been so easy to retire. If I had, we would have been throttled with a constitution changeless and unchanging." Mr. Diefenbaker said in a reference to the controversial Favreau - Fulton formula for patriating a Canadian constitution.

"I want to say that when my wife and I threw our lot in with the lower mainland, it was a contact until death do us part," said Mr. Douglas.

'Don't Be Alarmed'

"Don't be alarmed, I won't be a candidate unto death but my wife and I will work in same way in this party in the lower mainland until that day."

Both men virtually repeated the same speeches they gave in Victoria during the campaign, adding only new jokes and one or two new pokes at opponents.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals totally ignored the old age pensioners and he promised that a Conservative government would undertake elimination of all means tests and also ensure war veterans did not lose a portion of their burnt out pensions when they began receiving the old age pension.

Mr. Douglas heaped scorn on Mr. Diefenbaker's promise to raise the OAP payment to $100 immediately by dipping into the Canada pension plan which begins Jan. 1.

"He'd give you $25 more from one plan and $25 less from the other," said Mr. Douglas. "This is like a man who has too short a blanket and his feet are cold so he cuts some off the top and sews it on the bottom."

His final barb was thrown at the Liberals.

NDP Would Unfreeze Dollar

VANCOUVER (CP) — NDP leader T. C. Douglas said Friday the Canadian dollar should not be pegged at a fixed rate of exchange except in times of crisis.

Mr. Douglas told a press conference here that his party advocates unfreezing the dollar from its present rate of 92.5 cents (U.S.).

The dollar would then probably end up at 97 or 98 cents, he said.

IN REGINA

Home Folks Cheer Dief At Windup

By WAYNE MacDONALD
Special to The Times

REGINA—John Diefenbaker ended his campaign here Friday before the people he knows and likes best of all.

Standing before 2,800 devoted fans in Regina's Exhibition Auditorium, which doubles as a cattle-auction ring, the Conservative leader gave a folksy, homey, Saskatchewan-style speech — and the folks cheered themselves hoarse.

Looking fresh as a Saskatchewan lily despite a morning press conference in Edmonton and a noon-hour rally in Vancouver, Diefenbaker charmed and was charmed.

"You've been with me over the years," he told the farmers and flour millers and fashion-plates of this capital city. "You've been with me in the darkest days.

"We have marched together. Don't be misled now. On Monday next, don't vote for a government like that which we have had for the past 2½ years."

The crowd roared that it wouldn't.

"I came home to you to thank you for your support in 1963, and in 1962 and 1958 and 1957.

"And I ask you now to stand with us again."

The Chief Gets Sentimental

"Ladies and gentlemen," Diefenbaker said, "it is a great source of strength for Olive and me to come back to our friends."

With his brother, Elmer, of Saskatoon on the platform with him, Diefenbaker recalled his early days on the prairies "when I watched the Red River carts roll past our door."

He drifted back to the days of 1912, when he said he attended a boys' parliament—a mock parliament—just a few blocks from the meeting hall

He told of his student days at the fledgling University of Saskatchewan, and spoke of his crusading, underdog, prairie law firm.

But the chief's speech was not entirely sentimental.

He remembered to throw some well-aimed verbal darts at the Liberal government — "that party of the Stonehills and Bonnanos and Rivards."

"For two and one-half years," Diefenbaker said, "we have had a government with no destination, and no compass or plan how to get there.

"I remember the 60 days of decision," he intoned. "Now Mr. Pearson wants to give you more of the same of it—five years of it."

The Liberal government, he charged, had been an administration of expediency, uncertainty and fumbling.

"The only thing they were ever certain about was that the master narcotics king of North America should receive velvet-gloves treatment from those who should have acted otherwise."

What have you got today? he asked the crowd.

"Two Canadas; two pension plans; two sets of laws—one set for you and me, and another for the Stonehills and Rivards."

Tory Program Summarized

Turning to Tory programs and promises, Diefenbaker again summarized what he would do as prime minister.

- He would institute a national transportation policy.
- He would develop a firm national water policy.
- He would increase per capita grants and capital grants to universities.
- He would hike old age pensions to $100 a month at age 69, starting next January 1.
- He would "build policies for people, not people for policies."

Dealing specifically with agriculture, Diefenbaker said a Conservative government would set floor price in line with the cost of goods which farmers must buy.

It would also immediately release to farmers monies currently held by the Canadian Wheat Board but which have not yet been distributed.

"The choice is yours," he declared. "Vote for us, or vote for the party that forgot the farmer from 1935 to 1957."

Caouette Renews Conscription Claim

QUEBEC (CP) — Creditiste leader Real Caouette Friday night repeated his accusation that "the Pearson government has made agreements with the American government for the sending of Canadian troops to Viet Nam."

Speaking to an enthusiastic crowd of 1,500 persons at an election rally in Quebec City, Mr. Caouette said "this is undoubtedly why they are enlarging the military camp at Valcartier," in the suburbs of Quebec.

The Creditiste leader brought up the question of Canadian troops in Viet Nam after he received a query from a member of the audience who asked: "Is it true that conscription will be instituted in Canada?"

Mr. Caouette read aloud the question which had been handed him as a note. He then answered it with: That's it, that's undoubtedly it."

The Creditiste leader's audience was larger than those which came to hear Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in the same hall several weeks ago.

Mr. Caouette's accusation that Canadians will be sent to Viet Nam has been denied by Mr. Pearson and several Liberal cabinet ministers.

Mr. Caouette said the Liberal party "wants a majority government because it has decided to impose restrictions on credit" after the Nov. 8 election.

NO TROUBLE EXPECTED, BUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Every available Montreal policeman will be on duty for the federal election Monday although the city department says it expects little trouble.

IT'LL BE MILD IN B.C.

Cool Weather for Voting

TORONTO (CP) — Below normal temperatures are forecast for most of Canada for Mondya's election, but snow is expected in only a few areas.

The weather office predicted Monday would be sunny and cool in most of Eastern Canada and cloudy in much of the West.

British Columbia was the only province where mild temperatures were expected.

Snowflurries were predicted in the Yukon, northern Prairies, northern Nova Scotia and southern Newfoundland.

Sunny cool weather was expected in Ontario and Quebec, with temperatures ranging from the mid-40s in southern Ontario to the mid-20s in the extreme north.

Southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan are expected to be sunny and a bit cooler than normal. Alberta is expected to be quite cool and cloudy.

A sunny but cold day is expected over most of the Maritimes. Some cloudy and snowflirries are forecast for Newfoundland and the northern and eastern shores of Cape Breton.

NDP RALLY BEST ORGANIZED AS FOUR LEADERS INVADE MAINLAND

Political Smog in Vancouver Sprinkled With Hi-Jinks and Corn

VANCOUVER — While the Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Association soberly conducted its annual meeting here Friday, a political smog settled over the city in a dense mass of words pouring out of four leaders.

Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas, Social Credit leader Robert Thompson and B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett all took turns at press conferences, big rallies, interviews and small-group speeches starting at 9 in the morning and continuing through almost to midnight.

At least 13,000 people were exposed directly to the fuming campaigners a tthe various meetings.

But there were plenty of high-jinks, laughs and plain corn too.

Vancouver Mayor Bill Rathie, a former Liberal candidate, supplied the only non-partisan corn; he extended a carefully worded greeting that touched all political bases when he welcomed the B.C. Social Credit League convention:

"Hello to all liberal spending visitors with conservative but new and democratic tastes and plenty of social interests that don't require credit because of pay-as-you-go."

Major caper, of course, was the hilarious 20-minutes for a group of youths scrambling along narrow, enclosed catwalks 55 feet above Mr. Diefenbaker in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre where they tampered with the loudspeakers and dropped paper darts and balloons over the audience of 2,800.

There was a serious aspect to this, however.

If one of them had slipped through the railings, he would have plunged through the thin acoustic partition screening the episode from the audience and fallen 55 feet onto people below.

Despite dozens of uniformed police and plainclothes RCMP—out in force because of anonymous death threats for some of the leaders—the youths were able to penetrate the security screen with relative ease.

Among the laughs, was a scene outside the theatre where political opponents lay in wait with a long banner reading "Follow John—to Poverty." A young Tory supporter stepped through the centre of the banner just as photographers took aim so all they snapped was the "Follow John."

Most of the Conservative color came during a quick visit to Chinatown where Mr. Diefenbaker was given the welcome of popping fire crackers, a lion dance and competing bands as about 1,000 thronged the street.

Observers also gained a chuckle as they watched Premier Bennett declare to interviewers that he was a man of the people and didn't need police protection.

"If I need police protection I'll retire from public life," he said — while two known plainclothesmen loitered within earshot.

The Conservatives didn't have much time to organize a fancy display for the three-hour visit by Diefenbaker because it was planned only at the last minute to meet growing mutterings he was afraid to campaign in the city that gave him a bad time at the last election campaign.

But the Socreds and NDP were well-organized for their meetings—and disorganized.

Premier Bennett shared the platform with Mr. Thompson for the first time in many moons and cryptically denied their relations had ever been strained—but he skipped the national leader's campaign speech to 500 B.C. Socred conventioneers moments later to appear on a radio show of his own.

But Mr. Thompson stayed for the premier's banquet speech to the same group later although he was to fly back to his Alberta home immediately.

Later, when the premier addressed a rally of 3,000 in the Orpheum Theatre, some persons were startled to see above the "Premier Bennett—tonight — 8:30" billboard a movie advertisement on the marquee directly above "Once a Thief."

The young Socreds urged the convention to turn out for a pre-rally parade through downtown Vancouver to show their strength. After milling around an hour after the appointed time, a small phalanx of about 50 walked the sidewalks led by a kilted piper, carrying campaign placards and waved burning Halloween sparklers.

One of the placards obviously had been printed on oral instructions—it exhorted people to support Socred candidates and "vote for a fare deal for B.C."

The NDP made no mistakes with its placards calling for "a new deal for Canada" and its rally in the Agrodome was the flashiest and best organized of the day—and the 5,000-person crowd was the biggest to turn out for any party in B.C. throughout the campaign.

The hooppla began as hundreds of committee workers for the 11 lower mainland candidates paraded in turn into the big arena behind prancing drum majorettes, all wearing paper hats, carrying placards and scores of big orange balloons while the crowd roared and band music blared over the loudspeakers.

The noisy din changed to guffaws as the crowd saw spoofs of the other parties.

Two supporters for NDP Vancouver-Burrard candidate Dr. Ray Parkinson strode down the aisle, wearing white coats and head reflectors carrying a body, on a stretcher which, one of them announced, portended a funeral Monday "for somebody named B . . . A . . . S something or other" —an obvious crack at Liberal incumbent Ron Basford.

An aristocratic, tuxedo-clad man carried a placard urging "Follow John" and behind him walked a couple dressed in tattered hill-billy fashion with a sign saying "We did."

Another man, dressed in jailbird stripes, held aloft a sign "Get on Lester's Team" and behind him trooped several men carrying chairs and placards" "Furniture Deals."

The cheering reached a crescendo as Mr. and Mrs. Douglas headed for the platform behind a band belting out "Hello Dolly" while another band joined in on the platform.

A beautiful blonde in slinky white outfit stepped up to the microphone and led the audience in a rousing version of O Canada, a few introductory speeches appealed for money and votes for the cause and the wee "Tommy" hopped onto a pop bottle case behind the podium and gave the star performance.

The only heckler was quickly ejected by a half-dozen ushers who swooped on him but the rest of the audience loved the whole show, proving with applause and donations totalling $4,260.

MANAGER'S REPORT SUGGESTS THREE-YEAR REVIEWS

City Urged to Begin Planning Second 5-Year Program

Victoria city's second capital budget program should be planned now, a report to taxpayers recommended Friday.

The first five-year capital projection is less than 18 months old, but it has seen started or completed $1,263,980 worth of undertakings from Centennial car park to Superior St. extension.

Mr. Young said there is merit in the suggestion that capital budgetting should undergo review at about the 2½ to 3-year point in order to reassess priorities and consider the next phase of development.

He pointed out that the ability to borrow changes with community development, or as the assessment base widens. But as was explained when capital budgetting was adopted, debt servicing cost should be no higher than 25 per cent of annual budget.

Victoria's first five-year program was to permit borrowing a total $3.4 million, to which senior government aid of up to $1.5 million may be added for nearly $5 million worth of expenditure.

The current program is geared to money available. In order to keep the mill rate fairly stable, borrowing is limited to about $700,000 a year, Mr. Young's report explains.

Ten initial projects were selected out of a field of many more totalling nearly $7 million. Of the 10, five have been started or completed:

Car park, with stores and landscaping $485,000; acquisition of property for Topaz Park and extension of Finlayson, Rose, Blanshard, Fort and Superior Streets $406,000; road construction $221,180; sewer survey $2,800; Bowker Creek enclosure $149,000.

Projects remaining for 1966 include:

Bastion Square redevelopment; balance of Bowker Creek project; widening of Fort, Rose, Catherine and the intersection of Johnson, Store and Wharf Streets; heliport construction; fire route emergency traffic light control; property acquisition and building in urban renewal area between Hillside, Bay, Rose and Quadra.

Projects remaining for the 1967-69 period include:

Blanshard and Finlayson road development; trunk sewer replacement from Government and Belleville to Clover Point and in James Bay areas; widening of Government Street to permit overhanging sidewalk at Causeway; downtown beautification—Broad and View Street malls.

WORLD HAS 3.2 BILLION POPULATION

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—World population rose by 60,000,000 from the middle of 1963 to mid-1964, bringing the total to 3,220,000,000, latest UN figures released Thursday show. The estimate was contained in the UN population and vital statistic report based on information from 236 geographical areas.

THE PROSPECT OF A PEARSON MAJORITY IS APPALLING

Excerpts from An Editorial in The Windsor Star, October 26th, 1965:

Ordinarily, this newspaper would go along with the shrewd appeal by Pearson and his Liberal sidemen for a majority government.

We're for strong, efficient government to deal with Canadian problems. But we do not believe it is in the best interests of Canada for the Liberals to be returned with an overall majority November 8th.

We think there are three compelling reasons.

1. It would be a vote of confidence for the manner in which they have conducted Canada's affairs for the last 30 months, and approval for more of the same for the next 5 years.

Pearson's government does not deserve that vote of confidence. A continuing of the policy of appeasing Quebec at the expense of federal authority could be fatal to Canada. An endorsation of the wrong-doing or wrong-headedness of so many of the Quebec wing of the Liberal party would be an afront to decency and morality in Canadian public life.

2. It would be a personal vote of confidence in Pearson's leadership of the country and of the Liberal party.

Pearson does not deserve that vote of confidence. His outstanding ability in the field of international relations has not been manifest in his dealing with Canadian domestic affairs. His mastery of the arts of compromise and concession which produced his great achievements at the UN are sadly out of place in Canada today, where principle and firmness of decision are the essential qualifications for leadership.

3. The election hinges on the outcome of voting in Quebec. Heavy Liberal gains in Quebec are almost a foregone conclusion. If these are not balanced by losses there will be a Liberal majority — dominated as never in the past by Liberals from Quebec, doubtless the dominant force in any Liberal government.

The prospect is appalling, in view of the present state of political climate in Quebec. If it is a minority government there will at least be the check of the necessity for support from one of the minor parties. No such check will exist if the Liberals have a clear majority. The consequences could be disastrous for Canada.

What does this appalling prospect mean to British Columbians? Simply this - a Liberal majority will be dominated by members from Quebec. This, at a time when the Canadian constitution will be revised. We believe that this is against the best interests of Canada. One province's interests must not dominate. Only a national party with broadly based support can prevent it.

U.S. Eyes Aluminum Collision

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The possibility of a confrontation between the U.S. government and the aluminum industry over a price increase worried business circles this week.

The move became general Friday when Aluminum Co. of America, the biggest U.S. producer, joined in the over-all increase. Another big producer, Aluminium Ltd., followed. Reynolds and Kaiser then went along on fabricated products.

President Johnson was reported upset over the price action, but he remained silent although he initiated action to sell aluminum from the government stockpile.

CALLED CABINET

He quickly called a cabinet-level meeting that was reported to have considered an increase in sales from the government's stockpile of 1,897,000 tons of aluminum, of which 450,000 tons are considered a necessary reserve for use in a non-nuclear war.

It is generally agreed that if the government dumped a large quantity of aluminum on the market, it would have the effect of nullifying the price increase because of the heavy supply.

Representatives of Olin, Reynolds, Kaiser and Aluminum Co. of America were called to a meeting by the general services administration, which has control of the stockpile. No decision was announced after the session.

Initially, apprehension over the situation resulted in a drop in the price of aluminum shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

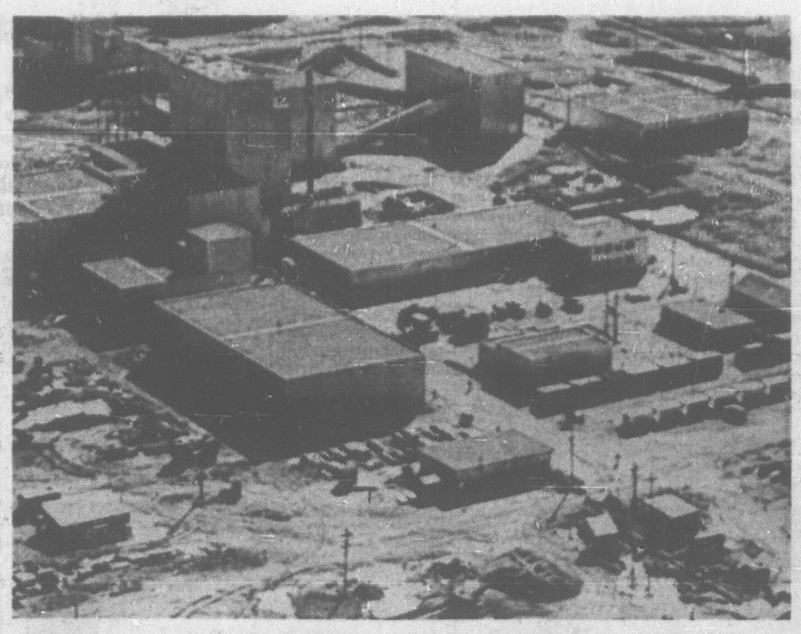

If there should be a dispute, as occurred between the late President Kennedy and the steel industry over a price increase in 1962, it is believed that the harmonious relationship that has existed between Johnson and business will be harmed.

MAY UNSETTLE MARKET

Such an occurrence, some brokers said, may unsettle the stock market, which has been climbing to new highs.

Elsewhere on the metals front, platinum soared to new price peaks as the Soviet Union, the world's largest producer, withdrew from the market, leaving Canada and South Africa as the only major sellers.

Copper Range Co., the sixth largest copper producer in the United States, raised its basic price for copper by two cents a pound to 38 cents. It was the first U.S. producer to match price increases imposed last month on copper mined in other countries.

THE PYRAMID STORY

Pine Point Mines Lure Quick-Buck Investors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The lure of a fast buck from potential lead-zinc riches in the Pine Point area of the Northwest Territories captured the gambling fancy of Canadians this week, with the Vancouver Stock Exchange caught up in a frenzy of speculative activity.

A single encouraging drill core sent prices and volumes on the West-Coast market soaring to record levels as buyers from Toronto and Montreal joined the scramble.

An obscure company, Pyramid Mining, pulled the drill core from its property in the mineral-rich Pine Point area and it showed 5.37-per-cent lead and 14.46-per-cent zinc.

Monday, shares of Pyramid erupted $4.55 to $9 and subsequently sold as high as $16. It closed Friday at $14.

But Pyramid had to share the spotlight with numerous other mining companies which were given a ride by speculators who bought stocks which had only remote connections with the Pine Point area. The other issues included Ace Mining, Silver Ridge, Trojan, New Cronin, Croydon and Copper Soo.

URGED CAUTION

The Toronto Stock Exchange experienced an increased trading tempo as a group of companies with a financial interest in Pyramid attracted attention.

Conwest jumped 1.40 to 8.20, Newconex 1.90 to 8.20, the warrants 1.75 to 4.10 and Central Patricia 21 cents to 1.98. This group of companies two weeks ago bought 100,000 Pyramid treasury shares at $2.50 and took options on similar blocks at $3, $3.75, $4.50, $5.50 and $6.50.

The only company with a proven orebody in the area, Pine Point Mines, didn't fare so well. It fell 1 to 83 in moderate profit - taking after being the most sought-after stock on the board in the last month, during which it climbed about $20.

Cominco, which owns 78.2 per cent of Pine Point, was ahead 2⅞ to 52½ and CPR, which owns more than 50 per cent of Cominco, advanced 2 to 72½.

Other base metal stocks continued to improve with gains going to Hudson Bay, Inco, Preston, Rio Algom, East Sullivan and Brunswick.

Gas distributors were strong in the industrial list with Greater Winnipeg ahead 2 to 28 and Northern Ontario Natural Gas, which has made a share-for-share offer for the western company, up 1⅝ to 28. Quebec Natural, a recent favorite, was up ½ to 12½.

On index, industrials were ahead 1.69 to 171.73, golds .44 to 158.69, base metals 1.37 to 87.08, western oils .70 to 103.39 and the TSE index 1.60 to 161.67.

Volume for the week was 23,190,917 shares compared with 15,035,285 last week. Dollar value was $76,577,443 against $65,403,417.

Oil Strike Spreads To Pt. Moody Plant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oil workers struck the suburban Port Moody refinery of Imperial Oil Co. Friday night in an extension of their strike against British American Oil Co. at five refineries in Canada.

A spokesman for Local 9-601 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (Ind.) said the immediate cause of the extension was a company refusal to grant seniority rights to 35 men returning to work after being suspended five weeks ago.

RUSSIAN FLEET TO BE PROBED

BELLE RIVER, Ont. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday night his department is investigating a Canadian skipper's charge that Russian fishing ships are preventing other boats from fishing in Queen Charlotte Sound along Vancouver Island.

In a statement after a Liberal election rally in this community 25 miles east of Windsor, Ont., Mr. Martin said:

"If these allegations are true there certainly seems to have been a violation of the international deepsea fishing agreement and I have my own department working on this.

★ ★ ★

"If the allegations do prove to be true they will be placed before the Russian ambassador to Canada some time today."

★ ★ ★

Earlier Friday, Capt. Arne Selnes of Coquitlam said Russian ships are interfering with other vessels by sailing into their paths and stealing net lights.

Capt. Selnes accused the Russians of "ignoring all the rules of the sea" and said he would like to see a 12-mile headland-to-headland limit imposed on the west coast.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Cars Popular Consumer Item

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

One of the quickest ways to find out where the consumer dollar is in Canada is to look at new car sales for the first seven months of the year.

Hume

In British Columbia 39,792 families trotted to the wicket to sign on the dotted line and triumphantly went home with a new car.

That's a far cry from the 182,743 who did the same thing in Ontario and the 114,603 new car polishers in Quebec.

Once out of those two population centres British Columbia does lead the way almost 9,000 cars ahead of Alberta where the residents of that province splurged for 30,493 new models.

The other provinces went this way: Saskatchewan, 19,058; Manitoba, 16,904; Nova Scotia, 14,732; New Brunswick, 12,083; Newfoundland, 6,509 and Prince Edward Island 2,057.

All of which goes to prove that while PEI may not have the population or the money other provinces have, it's probably a heck of a lot safer walking city streets.

Canadian National Railways, happy no doubt because once in a while these days it actually operates in the black, has placed an order for 30 new diesel units valued at $8.5 million. Ten of the new units—3,000 horse power jobs—will be used on long-distance freight runs.

PENNY STOCKS

The big jobs will be built by General Motors Diesel, London, Ont., the other 20 will come from the Montreal Locomotive Works Ltd.

While the penny stock speculators scrambled for shares in Pyramid earlier this week on the strength of two drill core assays, Columbia River Mines Ltd. quietly released the information that 40 diamond drill holes on their B.C. property had hit pay-dirt.

Mining engineer T. E. Swanson of J. A. C. Ross Associates, Vancouver, reported that the property 35 miles southwest of Golden was being methodically probed with drill stations 120-feet apart.

DRILL PROGRESS

Of the 40 holes so far sunk, Mr. Swanson said: "All have been in mineralization and the ore body is steadily widening and deepening and improving in values as drifting and drilling progresses.

General Testing Laboratories, Vancouver, reports that one drill core assay recently showed 46 ounces of silver, 17.6 per cent lead and 1.8 per cent zinc to give a per ton value estimated at $118.90.

General manager of the mine, James A. Farrell, notes that other cores have assayed at around $84 a ton.

But, as has been said before, diamond drill holes and glowing assays don't make a productive mine.

WINTER CAMP

The Columbia people, aware of this, are pushing ahead with plans to bring the property into production. A winter camp has been built to house the 20-man crew so that work can continue throughout the winter.

When work began on the property last June the company had a proven ore body of 77,500 tons valued at one million dollars.

The latest engineer's report says "we now know that we are far beyond that in terms of tonnages and values."

DROUGHT HURTS GRAIN

Russian Crop Declines

MOSCOW (Reuters) — This year's Russian grain harvest will be sharply down on last year's bumper crop, foreign experts in Moscow said today.

The fall in production of wheat and other bread grains was attributed almost entirely to drought in June and July and continual rain at harvest time.

The wheat crop was expected to total about 58,000,000 tons, compared with 74,000,000 last year. The Soviet Union already has bought 9,500,000 tons of wheat from the West this year, mainly from Canada.

But it now is in a position to avoid importing more, possibly by cutting down on deliveries to Czechoslovakia and East Germany or dipping into already depleted stocks.

Foreign experts said there also will be a fall in feed grain output, mainly because of smaller sowings than in the past.

Far-reaching plans for investment in Russian agriculture, announced earlier this year, have had no time yet to affect harvests significantly, but farmers are being paid more for their crops.

AUSTRALIANS GET DOLLARS

CANBERRA (Reuters) Millions of dollars of Australia's new decimal currency today were reported to have been moved secretly to strategic stockpiles around the country during the last week in one of the nation's biggst peacetime security operations.

Scores of armed guards escorted the shipments of one-, two- and 50-cent pieces to specially prepared secret storehouses in capital cities and country areas.

The money will be distributed to subtreasuries and banks just before Feb. 14, the day Australia changes from the pound to the dollar, and kept under strict guard.

Writ Served On Sailors

PORTSMOUTH, England (CP) —Two Canadian sailors were served this week with a writ for damages aboard the Canadian supply ship Provider.

The writ, ordered by the high court of Northern Ireland, demands that Kenneth Magill, 22, and Wayne Blair, 20, members of the Provider crew, appear in Belfast court in four weeks in connection with a taxi driver's charges the two Canadians had attacked him and left him with injuries which prevented him from operating a cab.

Grain Firm's Profits Hit

CALGARY (CP)—The Vancouver grain handlers strike of last summer caused lower net earnings for United Grain Growers Ltd. for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1965, compared with the previous year, UGG president A. M. Runciman has announced.

Grain movement through Vancouver was impeded during June and July. Resulting congestion in country elevators prevented many customers from delivering grain as they wished and grain receipts were less than they otherwise would have been, Runciman told the company's annual meeting.

The company, which operates about 760 country elevators in the prairie provinces and terminal elevators at Port Arthur, Ont., and Vancouver, had net earnings of $599,576 for the 1964-65 fiscal year compared with $1,018,378 for the 1963-64 crop year.

The earnings were made "despite the fact that country grain handlings of 97,000,000 bushels were the second highest on reord and only 4,000,000 bushels less than the year before," Mr. Runciman said.

AT and T Requests Probe Be Called Off

NEW YORK (AP)—A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said this week the company has asked the Federal Communications Commission to call off its proposed investigation of the firm.

The spokesman said AT and T filed its request in the form of a petition with the FCC.

Last week the FCC said it would investigate AT and T's rate structure with particular regard to rates it charges for commercial distance communications traffic.

MONDAY is the DAY!
DEAR VOTER:
Monday is the day of decision. The next Government of Canada will be chosen.
I wish to take this opportunity to thank all those many people who have worked for and with me during the current campaign. I also wish to thank all those who, on Monday, will cast their vote in my favour.
I feel that the Liberal policies are the best for Canada as a whole. I pray that our next Government will work for peace throughout the world, and I sincerely believe that Mr. Pearson is the best man to accomplish these matters.
Esquimalt-Saanich deserves to have a voice in the next Government and I believe that everyone expects that Government to be Liberal. I promise that, when I am elected, all my energies will be toward unity and peace and for the good of Esquimalt-Saanich.
I am asking for your support on these grounds, but, in any event . . . USE YOUR VOTE on Nov. 8th.
Thank You.

'We Must Rebuild' Appeal By Socred League Chief

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the British Columbia Social Credit League said Friday "we just about broke ourselves financially on the federal election campaign."

George Driediger, later re-elected to his second two-year term, added, however, while expenditures were heavy he would not know for some time whether the league finished the Nov. 8 election campaign in the red.

He said in his report to the league's annual convention that if Social Credit wanted to make federal election gains it must make heavy expenditures and do much work.

Social Credit had lost valuable time organizing itself after the election was called. Some nominations were "desperately" late. The organization should be active 12 months of the year, not just during election campaigns.

"We must begin to rebuild the entire organization Nov. 9."

Other officers re-elected include Bob Jones of Cranbrook, second vice-president, and Mrs. Isobell Dawson of Sechelt, fourth vice-president.

In other matters the 300 delegates passed a tongue-in-cheek amendment from Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell saying the government should give high priority to all highways that Highways Minister Gaglardi thinks should be built.

The amendment came as delegates dealt with a number of resolutions dealing with highways.

LACK OF PERSONNEL

Mr. Gaglardi said work of his department was hampered by the lack of personnel. In response to statements from the floor he said work on Highway 16 — the "Northern Trans-Canada"—was proceeding as fast as possible and contracts were being let. He denied suggestions that the Yellowhead route into Kamloops got priority over the Prince George - McBride section of Highway 16. He said there is a new five-year plan for Highway 16 reconstruction between Hazelton and Terrace.

Another motion passed sought to prohibit the "making or causing of noises or sounds" by motor vehicles "which unduly disturb or tend to disturb the peace."

A third mentioned "deplorable" conditions in some nursing homes and called for unscheduled visits by government inspectors at least twice a year to make sure that the homes maintain minimum standards.

Another resolution being debated was one calling for the B.C. government to take over the B.C. Telephone Company.

However, in a radio interview Friday Premier Bennett said: "As long as I am premier we will never take it over."

FIVE-COUNTRY tour of Africa will begin Sunday for Arnold Smith, Canadian diplomat who is Commonwealth secretary-general. Smith and his aides will visit Tanzania, Malawai, Zambia, Kenya and Uganda to confer with government leaders.

Fluorides Rejected

REGINA (CP)—For the third time in nearly 12 years voters in Regina Wednesday registered strong opposition to any move to fluoridate their water supply. A referendum on the question, which needed a simple majority to pass, was defeated 16,801 votes to 12,218.

Police Chief Sold Enlarger To Two Accused

Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson testified in Victoria County Court Friday that he sold a photographic enlarger to two men who are charged with defrauding the Royal Canadian Navy.

The police chief said he sold the enlarger to Lieut. Eric Haywood, former head of the photographic section at HMCS Naden, and Charles Wyte, a civilian employee.

They told him they wanted it for a naval hobby club. They did not pay any money, but later a member of the Saanich Police force picked up photographic goods as credit from a downtown store.

The two men are charged with defrauding the Navy of $75 in connection with the purchase of the enlarger.

They are also charged with defrauding the Navy of $43 paid to Victoria Photo Supply Ltd. for "fictitious" repairs to a Graflex camera, and with stealing seven boxes of photographic paper worth more than $50.

The hearing continues Monday.

Obstructing Officer Costs Man $150 Fine

Clarence Billett, 404 Sherk, was fined $150 Friday when convicted of obstructing a police officer in a downtown cafe Oct. 9.

Magistrate William Ostler said evidence in the case clearly indicated that Billett caused a disturbance in a dispute with a waitress over the amount of his bill.

When Police came Billett told them, "if you want me out you are going to have to take me."

He held on to a coat rack when police tried to move him and knocked one constable against a cigarette machine.

The magisrate said there was no doubt that Billett did obstruct one constable "and indeed assaulted him."

Billett has a record of convictions for threatening and assault betwen 1947 and 1953. However, Magistrate Ostler said the fact he has stayed out of trouble for 12 years shows that he rehabilitated himself.

During the trial Mr. Billett said that on the morning in question he had been working on an investigation. Billett's lawyer made a statement in court to show that John S. Lyons, who was with Billett at the time, had nothing to do with this aspect of the matter.

The lawyer said Mr. Lyons "was in no way associated with that. He was only in the accused's company."

Man Admits Burglary

A man who earlier this week pleaded guilty to two break-ins in the city, pleaded guilty to a third burglary offence when he appeared in central court Friday.

Peter Cloutiers was remanded to next Monday for sentence on all charges.

Detective Richard Berry said Cloutiers and another man, both employed by a city janitorial company, entered the premises of Victoria Color Photos, 1227 Government, Oct. 15.

They stole radios and a tape recorder valued at $498. Det. Berry said the goods have been recovered.

REAL ESTATE

"FROM THE WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW"

By Shirley Philps

SHIRLEY OF COLONY

"Do It Yourself Home Sellers"

Some years back there was a national "craze" of "do-it-yourself" projects. There were "do-it-yourself" kits for garages, for fences and rumpus rooms. There were kits for repairing your own T.V., radio and even your roof. One could get a kit for making jewellery, for painting and alas, even a kit for repairing your own automobile. However, it was soon very evident that an inferior job was done, and a professional had to be called in to undo the work of the amateur. The cost was, of course, double. Many homeowners feel they should try this "do-it-yourself" way of selling their homes, only to find, that after costly advertising, putting up with curiosity seekers, needless showings, lack of mortgage financing and their own inability to negotiate with the buyer, they have to hire a trained professional realtor. This is definitely a mistake. Sales records bear out the fact that the highest interest in any home is in the first eleven days that it appears on the market, and it should be merchandised properly and professionally. If the home or the prospective buyer is mishandled through lack of training in this initial stage, very often the homeowner has to take a much lower price. Like any other product that is handled too much it becomes shopworn. Your professional home sellers in Victoria are the ladies of COLONY HOME SALES, the number to call is EV 6-3231.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

A funny thing happened to me on the way to the golf course the other day . . . I kept on going.

Normally when I am invited to play golf, I am stricken with some terrible ailment. Throughout my golfing career I have been beset by practically every infirmity you ever heard of and a few that haven't heard of themselves.

Essentially my game has been patterned after Arnold Palmer's. We both favor the attack, the all-out assault, the uninhibited bite-your-lip determination.

BOB BARLOW

The only difference is that Arnold attacks the ball and I ravage the real estate. He goes for the birdie on the course and I, somehow, am forever lashing at birdies in trees, in gorse, in thickets, or in adjacent farmer's fields.

My handicap is not two or four or six, multiplied, but merely my clubs. In this sense I am reminded of what Gump Worsley, then the New York Rangers' goalkeeper, once replied when asked which team gave him the most trouble.

"Hmmm," quoth Worsley. "The Rangers."

But this was a special occasion. Richard Munn, the host professional at Cedar Hill had collected a number of prizes from city businessmen and assured that I would be a leading competitor for something, anything.

"The way you play," said Mr. Munn delicately, "you can't miss it." (Ed. Note: Munn said "mess it," and he was wrong.)

The second consideration was the field itself. It consisted largely of large hockey players, members of the Victoria Maple Leafs and the flower of the local communications media.

I have watched hundreds of hockey players swinging woods at work (they call it the "slap shot") and marvelled at their unerring inaccuracy.

If these people can't knock a puck into a big wide net, how could they possibly excel at plunking a sphere measuring 1.68 inches into a hole 4½ inches wide?

Fearsome Foursome . . . by Accident!

Of course there are sneaks in any crowd, the kind who show up with three dislocated vertebrae. They go around with St. Bernard dogfaces, making bets here and there with sympathizers. Then they go out and tear off a 66 and laugh all the way to the bank.

Naturally, none of these species can be found among the Maple Leafs, all honest, virtuous, clean-living. Still it was known that Mr. Stephen Witiuk and Mr. William Shvetz and Mr. Frederick Hucul had played the game.

Quite by accident, of course, I arrived AFTER they started out. Mr. E. Fedoruk, a colleague, in charge of telling lies about his game, practically guaranteed that I would be put in a foursome of relative novices.

Our quartet consisted of Messrs. Robert Barlow, Allan Franklin Millar and Claude Labrosse. They were so pleasant at the first tee it was practically nauseating.

"I hope I finish," quoth Mr. Barlow.

"Should have brought along a pool cue," sighed Mr. Millar.

Claude Long, and Lefty at That!

Barlow, self-effacing ("It's been s-o-o-o-o long since I've touched a club") lit into the ball with the grace of Dow Finsterwald. When last seen it was heading for Prince George.

My turn. "Take your time," Millar advised, helpfully. "Lotsa ruck," said Barlow, smiling. "Heet it good," chorused Labrosse.

I swung so vigorously my corset snapped in three places. To show you my power, I was the first to hit his second shot.

I have neither the space nor the inclination to describe in masochistic detail the entire 18 holes. According to Millar, who owned the pencil, Barlow did the first nine in 42 strokes. Labrosse was 54 and I was 55. As a goalkeeper who does not favor high scores, Millar restrained himself from letting his get out of hand.

Barlow who is "Blah Blah" because of his reticence to speak except when inhaling, won every hole until the 10th. Millar, after vacationing in the gorse, somehow managed to win this one and, eyeing moist clouds, pulled stumps.

Lanky Litz Short in the Legs . . .

Eventually we all finished, shattered fairways, bent clubs, broken trees in our wake.

Mr. Witiuk was low net with 80-11—69 and Richard Lamoreux barbered the course with 74 for low gross.

I waited anxiously for Munn to hand me my prize for worst score posted by an unthin author with nine children. But he surreptitiously avoided my glance.

I didn't mind when the superior players were rewarded but when Edward Litzenberger was given a pair of slacks that was too much.

I don't know what his score was—he wasn't going around shouting it—but I suspect it was for the tallest kleeker on the course.

You know what six-four Mr. Litz won? A pair of slacks. Size 28 leg.

Chuvalo Can't Catch Best British Belters

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo is heading for England where he has a fight scheduled for Dec. 7 and hopes to get a chance at the British and European heavyweight boxing championships.

Irv Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, Friday confirmed reports that British promoter Mike Barrett had signed Chuvalo for a Dec. 7 fight in London's Royal Albert Hall.

Ungerman said Chuvalo was having difficulty getting bouts with top-ranked British fighters.

"They are all running away from us.

'WE WANTED COOPER'

"We wanted Henry Cooper (British and British Empire champion) but he ducked out. Then we tried for Billy Walker, Britain's second - best fighter next to Cooper, and he refused. We tried Brian London (Britain's third-ranked heavyweight) but he is in the midst of litigation or something or other."

Chuvalo will be paid $10,000 for the Dec. 7 fight. "This may sound cheap," said Ungerman, "but we want to establish a beachead in the old country. After all, George isn't getting too many breaks over here.

"We'll eventually catch up with Cooper and George will beat him. Then we'll go after the European title."

STEVENSON SCORES WINNER . . . . . . IN OVERTIME THRILLER

Long Memory Helps Happy Tyees

Coach Dave Price figures his Victoria High Tyees captured the Inter-High School Soccer League championship because they lost a game back on September 24.

"They couldn't forget that 3-0 loss to Oak Bay," Price said. "And as far as I'm concerned, that was the big difference in the final. My boys wanted to win."

If the exciting overtime playoff proved anything, it has to be the inadequacy of city soccer facilities. An estimated 1,500 fans—mostly students—moved into Royal Athletic Park for the playoff.

Seating was available for only about 900. The rest crowded the sidelines to make it a hectic night for linesmen and a lone policeman who attempted to keep the fans off the playing field.

As hectic as it was, it was typically high school sport.

Goals by Rick Couch and Bob Stevenson, who scored the winner at 11 minutes of the 20-minute overtime, ended Oak Bay's two-year domination of the arch-rival Tyees. Brian Howe scored Oak Bay's goal seven minutes after the start of play to give the defending B.C. champions an early lead.

Robinson, a Grade 10 student who has been Victoria's "silent hero" all season, played a standout two-way game. Playing as a swinging centre forward, Robinson was strong defensively and sparked Tyees on attack with his fine distribution.

Victoria High now looks forward to the Island and, possibly, B.C. playoffs. Price hopes to schedule the Island final against Alberni on Nov. 17. The B.C. final is scheduled for later in the month.

Bookies Ignore Bud's Moans; Favor Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP)—The bookmakers aren't paying much attention to the opinions of the opposing coaches on what may happen in the Western Football Conference sudden-death semifinal Sunday.

Friday, they established Winnipeg Blue Bombers 7½-point favorites to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders and advance to next Saturday's start of a best-of-three final against Calgary Stampeders.

The odds were set after statements such as:

Roughriders' coach Eagle Keys: "Basically I think we have a better football team than Winnipeg. We may have more weak spots than they do, but then we have more strong spots too."

'CAN BEAT ANYBODY'

Bombers' coach Bud Grant: "We fear Saskatchewan as much as any team we've ever played. In a one-shot game, they can beat anybody — and make them look bad."

"Everything points to a tight, low-scoring struggle," Grant said. "We've played each other three times now and this gives the defences an edge."

Grant has been working on getting his charges in the right frame of mind for Sunday's 12:30 p.m., PST, kickoff before CBC television cameras.

WORKS ON MORALE

Sixty-minute field practices have been followed by morale-boosting sessions. To ensure the boys keep thinking football the entire team will check into a Winnipeg hotel Saturday night and "the first person they'll see Sunday morning will be me," said Grant.

The coach said he knows what to expect from Saskatchewan — fullback George Reed, flanker Hugh Campbell and quarterback Ron Lancaster.

"We know Reed will carry two out of three times and half their passes will be directed to Campbell."

EDGE OF DEFENCE

Though both teams are in good physical condition — the exceptions are a bruised instep for Rider linebacker Ed Hoester and sore ribs for Winnipeg defensive halfback Henry Janzen — Grant thinks the Bombers may have a personnel edge on defence.

"We've been set since midway through the season while they've been in a sort of fluid state, shuffling people in and out because of injuries."

SEVEN OF EIGHT

The Bombers, back in the playoffs after a 13-game losing streak last season, have been moving in high gear since mid-season. They won seven of their last eight games, the last five in succession, and trimmed Saskatchewan 17-0 in the clubs' final regular-season clash.

The Roughriders are in their fourth consecutive semi-final but their first against Winnipeg since 1956. On that occasion they compiled a 50-26 point margin.

Campbell Gives Scots' Verdict

MONTREAL (CP)—President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League released his decision of "not proven" Friday, following completion of his investigation into a complaint filed by Montreal Canadiens against Toronto Maple Leafs for "tampering" with Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

Geoffrion, now coach of Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, was placed on Montreal's voluntary retired list 18 months ago.

The Canadiens' complaint alleged that Geoffrion had been offered a "five-year, $35,000 annual contract to play with the Toronto club."

The initial complaint referred to an offer alleged to have been made at the reception preceding the Frank Selke testimonial dinner here Oct. 18. The inquiry was extended to cover two other occasions when similar offers were alleged to have been made.

"There is no dispute that he (Geoffrion) talked with Toronto club officers on three different occasions, but that is about the only point of agreement between the witnesses," Campbell's statement said.

"The conflict of testimony between the witnesses makes it impossible to resolve on any disputed issue and the matter of relative credibility of the witnesses cannot be determined effectively in this type of informal inquiry, without the benefit of cross-examination."

The NHL president summed up his statement in one sentence: "The only result possible in these circumstances is a Scottish verdict of 'not proven.'"

The full text of Campbell's decision has been forwarded to the two clubs involved and to all NHL governors, with a briefer statement going to the press.

Milt Jumps on Board The 'Positive' Wagon

By CANADIAN PRESS

Early in the 1963-64 National Hockey League season, right-winger Bobby Rousseau of the Montreal Canadiens was in a slump. He credited a book with helping him out of it.

The book was The Power of Positive Thinking.

Rousseau, who finished that season with 25 goals, obviously is still thinking positive. With four goals and eight assists, he is the top point-getter this season.

Now, coach Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins has jumped on the "think positive" bandwagon. He says that's what his last-place club has to do tonight and Sunday when it meets the Canadiens.

With the Canadiens tied for first place with Chicago Black Hawks, it appears it would be wise for the Bruins to keep thinking positive Sunday night, when they play Montreal again in Boston.

In other weekend games, New York Rangers meet Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday and Sunday Toronto is at Chicago and Detroit Red Wings are at New York.

Schmidt said that if the Bruins lose tonight's game "it wouldn't be for a lack of trying."

Playdown Entry Deadline Sunday

Esquimalt curlers planning to participate in playdowns leading to the B.C. and Canadian championships are reminded that Sunday is the deadline for entries.

Sports Centre manager Joe Iannarelli said men's playdowns will get under way Nov. 20, but their entries, as well as those from Evening and Weekend Ladies' Leagues, must be in by Sunday.

Totems Top League In One Department

This hasn't been the season of the Totem in the Western Hockey League.

On this date a year ago, Seattle Totems were sharing first place with Portland Buckaroos with seven victories in 10 starts.

But this is another and sadder season. Today the Totems, owning a record of only three wins in eight starts, are bunkmates of Vancouver Canucks in fourth place.

Coach Bobby Kromm's Totems have done few things right but at least they performed one feat no other club has been able to accomplish. They are the only team to deal a defeat to the front-running Victoria Maple Leafs.

Tonight Kromm and company get a chance to do it again. They tangle with the Leafs at Memorial Arena at 8:30.

PARENTEAU ARRIVING

Totems will find a couple of things different in the lineup of the revenge-minded Leafs. At the time Victoria lost a 3-1 decision in Seattle on Oct. 17, defenceman Aut Erickson wasn't signed in time to join the fun.

And Leafs expect to have a new player on the ice tonight. He's Dave Parenteau, scoring king of the Saskatchewan Junior League last season.

Parenteau, a clever-passing centre, scored 46 goals and collected an amazing 94 assists in 56 games with Flin Flon while nosing Regina's fabulous Fran Huck for the point crown.

Parenteau started the season with Tulsa in the Central League and left Tulsa Friday en route to Victoria. He will replace Marty Desmarais as the rookie which will enable the Leafs to carry an extra player on their roster.

BACK TO CALGARY

Desmarais has been sent to the Calgary Spurs senior club and will report to the Victoria training camp next year.

Totems could be a mite more angry than usual when they arrive tonight after losing an overtime battle with San Francisco Seals Friday night in Seattle.

Wayne Connelly snapped a 1-1 deadlock at 3:32 of the sudden-death extra session to send the Totems down to a 2-1 defeat. Defenceman Jean Marc Picard opened the scoring for San Francisco in the third period and Gerry Leonard evened the count for Seattle.

Seals lost the services of rugged defenceman Larry McNabb after only four minutes. McNabb crashed into the boards and has been hospitalized with a possible wrist fracture and neck injuries.

At Vancouver Friday, the Canucks struck another blow for the WHL when they made the most of their scoring chances to grab a 5-3 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League.

TWO FOR McNEILL

Western clubs, after getting away to a poor start in interlocking games, now have five victories in 11 starts against AHL rivals.

Billy McNeill opened and closed the scoring for Canucks, who also got tallies from Bob Kabel, Buddy Boone and Larry Popein.

Hornets outhustled the veteran Canucks most of the way, but poor marksmanship spoiled many scoring chances while Vancouver snipers passed up few good opportunities.

BIG GAME SUNDAY

Farmer Defence Plays Vital Role

Oak Bay's Farmer Construction team is riding an eight-game winning streak, but the one they want is No. 9.

At stake Sunday, when Farmers face the tough Nanaimo Redmen at Carnarvon Park, is the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League championship.

Ralph Sinden's Oak Bay crew carries a three-point margin into the second of a two-game, total-point playoff series. They defeated Redmen 15-12 last weekend, the first time in four years Oak Bay has managed a victory in Nanaimo.

DEFENCE HOLDS KEY

Sinden feels Oak Bay's fortunes Sunday will "ride or fall" with the performance of his defensive corps.

"We had our problems last week," said Sinden, "because their pass-catchers were getting plenty of time to break into the clear. If the defence can apply some pressure on Nanaimo's quarterback, it might make things easier."

Spain Leads Tennis Round

BARCELONA (AP) — Manuel Santana and Jose Luis Arilla gave Spain a 2-1 lead over India in the Davis Cup interzone tennis finals Saturday with a doubles victory.

The Spaniards, never beaten at home, defeated Premjit Lall and Jaidip Mukerjea 8-6, 6-2, 10-8.

Spain now is solidly favored to win the best-of-five series and qualify to meet Australia in the Challenge Round for the cup next month. Australia is the defending champion in the global competition.

In Sunday's concluding singles, Santana meets Ramanathan Krishnan in a match of each nation's top players, and Mukerjea will play Juan Gisbert.

SYDNEY UNKNOWN . . . . . . MEETS SOUTH AFRICAN

Aussies Have Own Gary Player

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Luck smiled unkindly on both Gary Players in the Wills Masters' golf tournament here.

Gary Player, from South Africa, the U.S. and Australian Open champion, had to retire from the tournament Friday with a back injury.

Gary Player, an unknown, 21-year-old Sydney professional, did not play Friday either. He failed to make the cut-off for the final two rounds.

The two men met for the first time at a tournament dinner in the club house.

"You have caused me plenty of trouble in the past couple of years," the youngster told the international star.

"People have never stopped congratulating me, especially after your two rounds of 62 last week in the Australian Open.

"I've even had scores of people booking lessons from me when they thought it was me. "But plenty have cancelled when they found out it was the poor man's Gary Player."

The two golfers told each other their parents had named them Gary after the late film star Gary Cooper.

Bruce Devlin of Australia won the tournament today when Bob Charles of New Zealand, who opened up a five-stroke lead after 54 holes, soared to a seven-over-par 80 on the final round.

Devlin shot a 73 over the Kensington course to go with earlier rounds of 66-74—73 for a 286 total in the $8,960 tourney.

Irvine Sparks Burnley To First Division Lead

LONDON (AP)—Centre forward Willie Irvine slammed in two goals today and sent Burnley into a one-point lead over Liverpool, Leeds United and West Bromwich at the top of the English League First Division soccer standings.

Irvine's two goals—one in the 37th minute and another in the 86th minute—sparked Burnley to a 3-1 victory over West Ham United which has slumped to near the foot of the major league this season.

John Hollins whipped in Chelsea's goal in the 42nd minute. The Chelsea captain and right half fired in a great drive from 25 yards. The ball went into the net off a Leeds defender.

Leeds, which lost the league championship to Manchester United on goal average last year, attacked strongly in the second half but Chelsea goalkeeper Peter Bonetti was there to make some fine saves.

But it was Arsenal which pulled off the best result of the day with a 6-2 victory over powerful Sheffield United. Arsenal manager Billy Wright described his team's play as "the best of the season" — a good omen for the match against a Brazilian selection at London's Highbury Stadium Nov. 16.

Wright, who has been playing George Eastham on the wing, switched the former England star back to his accustomed position of inside forward—and the move paid off.

EACH SCORED TWICE

Centre-forward Joe Baker, Armstrong and Skirton scored a couple of goals each for Arsenal and half-time score was 4-1.

Burnley now leads the First Division with 21 points, followed by Liverpool, Leeds United and West Bromwich with 20 and Tottenham Hotspur, Arsenal and Sheffield United with 19. Chelsea has 18 points.

HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Question: What do you look for in the feel and balance of a hockey stick? How long is it? Is the blade curved? I. E., Regina, Sask.

Answer: For years I've been playing with hockey sticks with a modified hook in the blade. It is hooked very, very little, almost a straight blade.

Bobby Hull was nice enough to give my son Mark, who is a lefthander like Bobby, a stick with a curved blade. The first game he used it, he potted two goals, so nobody's going to talk him out of using a curved blade.

The maximum length of a regulation stick is 55 inches from the heel to the end of the shaft. I cut from 2½ to three inches off the shaft. Then I take a plane or file and round off the heel and toe of the blade.

★ ★ ★

When I lean on the stick in making a shot I'm not going to have that sharp point digging in the ice, cutting its speed as well as affecting the shot's accuracy.

When Sid Abel, now the Detroit Red Wings' manager, was playing with Ted Lindsay and I, on the "production-line," he used a real high lie in his stick, either No. 7 or 8.

He'd be all elbows and legs when he got in front of the net. We used to aim for him. If he couldn't tip the shot in, or if it was stopped or knocked down, he still would have some of the blade in the ice when it was right at his feet, because he rounded the toe and heel of his stick.

★ ★ ★

I like a stick with the feel more or less in the shaft, rather than the blade. A heavy blade makes it awkward to handle.

Some shafts are so stiff you can hardly bend them. Others are so pliable you think they'll boomerang. I like a medium shaft. When I lean on it it is fairly stiff. When I release the weight, it vibrates.

That's what I call a stick that "talks back." On a wrist shot, the action of your hands and the spring of the shaft make for a speedier shot.

Chargers Lead Gaels In Bantam Grid Race

With two league games remaining for each club, the unbeaten Chargers lead the Gaels by two points. Gordon Head defeated St. Louis by three points in an earlier meeting but Gaels could still earn top rating by trimming the Chargers by more than that margin when they tangle in a schedule-ending game on Nov. 14.

Playoffs will start Nov. 21 with the first-place club meeting the fourth-place finisher and the runner-up squad tackling the third team. Winners go into a sudden death final Nov. 28.

In Sunday's games at Bullen Park, Gaels will meet Oak Bay at 11:30 and Chargers play the Esquimalt Lions at 1 p.m.

JOB TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES
BASIC LOGGING
(Sponsored by the Federal-Provincial Governments)

Training opportunities are offered to suitable applicants in a six weeks pre-apprenticeship course leading to employment and apprenticeship in the logging industry.

The training will be conducted at the B.C. Vocational School—Nanaimo, where dormitory accommodation is available.

Courses run on a continuous basis with intakes every two weeks. The first commences October 4th, 1965.

Trainees in the six weeks course will receive basic knowledge in various phases of the logging industry such as rigging, yarding and loading, both at the school and in a timber stand provided by the Forest Service which is equipped with portable spar tree and regular logging equipment.

The course offered by experienced logger instructors will provide instruction in the safe use of hand tools, wood species and uses, types of logging operations, use of wire rope, power saws, hand and audible signals, high lead rig-up and other fundamentals. Basic fire suppression, slash burning and reforestation will be covered and emphasis will be applied to safety rules and practices.

Following the six weeks course, trainees will enter the industry as apprentices and will receive the basic salary paid to chokermen. ($2.57 per hour).

Applicants must be physically fit.

The Apprenticeship Branch, Department of Labour will pay all tuition fees, and a subsistence allowance will be provided plus one return transportation to the school from applicant's place of permanent residence. These to be paid on completion of the six weeks course.

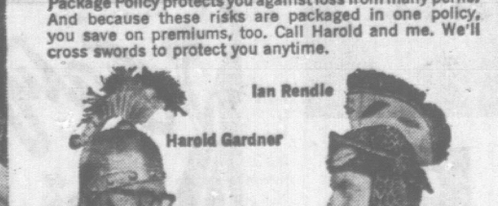

For application forms apply immediately to:

Director of Apprenticeship and Industrial Training,
Department of Labour,
411 Dunsmuir Street,

TWO AAU AWARDS

Crothers Picked As Best Athlete

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Crothers a middle-distance runner from Markham, Ont., received the John W. Davies award as Canada's outstanding track star and the Norton H. Crowe trophy as the outstanding competitor in any AAU sport Friday night.

The announcements were made at the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada banquet.

Other awards: Myrtle Cook Trophy for girls (under 20) track, Marjorie Turner, Lockeport, N.S.; Viscount Alexander trophy for men (under 20) in any AAU event, Pat Bolger, West Lorne, Ont.; Dr. Fred Tees award for the outstanding Canadian university athlete, Dave Bailey, University of Toronto; Bricker Memorial Trophy for the outstanding performer in a jump event, Ian Arnold of Toronto.

The Tom Longboat trophy for the Canadian Indian who contributed most to sport in Canada in 1964 went to Gaylord Powliss of Hagersville, Ont.

Earlier, the 1966 Canadian track and field championships were awarded to Edmonton. No date was set. They will be combined with trials for the Canadian team in the British Empire Games.

VERNON TROPHY

Norfolk Side Leads Hockey

VERNON (CP) — Norfolk House of Victoria, the defending champions, took the Section A lead Friday as the second annual girls' inter-school invitational field hockey tournament and clinic opened here.

The girls from Norfolk House defeated Kelowna 6-0, Killarney of Vancouver 2-1 and Victoria High School 2-0.

Other Section A games:

In Section B, Penticton edged Winfield 3-2 and drew 1-1 with Cowichan and 0-0 with Britannia of Vancouver.

In Section C, Magee won all three games by shut-outs—5-0 over Oak Bay, 3-0 over Trail and 1-0 over Windermere.

Windermere defeated Trail 1-0 and Salmon Arm defeated Oak Bay by the same score; Trail and Salmon Arm tied 1-1.

Overtime Work Becoming Habit

If early results are any indication, the Esquimalt Hockey League scramble this season could be a vise-tight affair.

Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs figured in their second straight overtime battle at the Sports Centre Friday. They won that one, 7-5, from University of Victoria Vikings on the strength of centre Wayne Anderson's two goals.

Navy nipped the Chiefs 5-4 in the second overtime period two weeks ago, Pontiacs' last outing.

'Painted Desert Holiday'

PORTLAND — It's called "Painted Desert Holiday," but it could also be called "the tour that goes out of its way."

The tour in question is a 17-day "Green Carpet" jaunt from Portland to the Painted Desert, Petrified Forest and Grand Canyon.

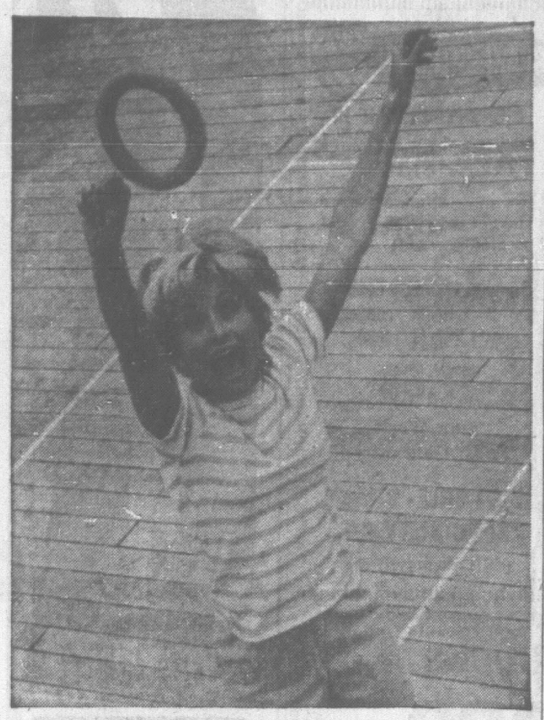

There is no doubt that the Painted Desert is the ultimate objective of this increasingly popular annual tour. Even departure dates — there are five this year, one in late March and four in April — are carefully chosen so as to reach the desert when its cacti and wild flowers are in their incomparable full bloom.

But there is also no doubt that this "Green Carpet" tour goes far out of its way—deliberately. The idea is to get to the Southwest Desert not the quickest, but the most interesting, way from Portland, and that means heading straight down the Oregon and California coasts, through the Redwood Empire, and on to San Francisco.

After two nights in San Francisco, the luxury liner continues south past Monterey Bay and on to Carmel via the fabulous 17-Mile-Drive. An escorted tour of the Hearst's San Simeon Estate highlights one day and after a night at Santa Barbara, the tour arrives at the Statler Hilton at Los Angeles for a stay that includes visits to Hollywood, Marineland, Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm.

Next stop is for two full days at the Oasis in Palm Springs—one of them set aside for relaxation in the sun. Then comes Phoenix and, finally, the tour that (deliberately) went out of its way, reaches its destination and climax with two memorable days on the Painted Desert, Petrified Forest and Grand Canyon.

Getting there is half the fun!

It's Rodeo Time in North As Lapps Hold Whoop-Up

The Lapps from all over northern Scandinavia will hold their annual reindeer races in mid-March at their traditional gathering place—Inari, Finland.

More Lapps congregate for this event than at any other time to choose the "Reindeer King," the champion woman rider, the best junior racer and also, the lasso expert for the year.

Second in number to the Lapps in attendance at these events are the many photographers and journalists from every part of the world who come to see this large gathering and take pictures of the Lapps in their colorful national costumes, of their exciting annual ball and of their prized reindeer.

Inari, far above the Arctic Circle, is a place where tourists get a chance to ski behind the deer just as the racers do—holding on to a single rope as they dash across frozen, snow-covered Lake Inari. Here in this area tourists and Finns still pan and dig for gold.

Foreigners are not only permitted to take out all the gold they find but they are even allowed to stake out a claim, which, for a yearly fee of $12, can be legally theirs for a period of several years.

Scandinavian Airlines System has several weekly flights from Montreal to Helsinki via Copenhagen or Stockholm by their fleet of DC-8 jets and Inari, 600 miles north of Helsinki, is reached by a four-hour flight from the Finnish capital to Ivalo and then by a one-hour bus ride.

The town, which has a population of 6,500, boasts a fine, modern tourist hotel. All Finnish Lapps, incidentally, are literate and most are well informed about world affairs. The Lapps are not poor. They come to their rodeo-like reindeer races in their own cars or taxis.

Most of them stay in good hotels or at the homes of friends. The Lapps do not arrange these races to display themselves before tourists but for their own amusement entirely.

The "Reindeer King" is the man who can ski-ride fastest over a two kilometre course. This speed, almost every year, beats the top record made by the world's fastest horse going the same distance. A gold watch is the traditional prize for the winner and quite a few Lapps have several such timepieces—some handed down by fathers and grandfathers. It is the honor, much more than the value of the watch, which the contestants treasure.

Lassoing is important to the Lapps because they use it in their annual reindeer roundups from December to the beginning of March. To catch the animals, wooden fences are put up for tens of miles to form a V-shaped trap and at the small end of the V, a corral is erected. The Laplanders than walk through the forest in a line between the open ends of the V, shooing the reindeer towards the corral. At that point they are lassoed and marked on the ear. Those not used for food, milk or other purposes are then allowed to return to freely graze the forests.

In the gold-rich areas of northern Finland pieces of the precious stuff as large as 393 grams have been found. Of course this does not happen all the time but one river valley alone has a record to date of yielding 1,000 pounds. All of the gold-bearing land is owned by the government but anyone, including tourists, can hold on to a claim as large as 22 acres, just by paying a small annual fee.

One does not suggest that tourists bring extra large bags to carry off their treasure—but the excellent fishing, the fine summer weather, the midnight sun, splendid camping possibilities, the reindeer and the Lapps—plus the possibility of finding golds and precious stones, too, are all good reasons to think of including northern Finland when making your next European vacation plan.

SPANISH WELLS . . .

. . . A UNIQUE HAVEN

By ROBERT COCHNAR
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SPANISH WELLS — They call them the Out Islands because they're supposed to be so far away from Nassau, the hub of Bahamian civilization.

But airplanes, fast boats and tourists trying to get away from it all have made the Out Islands very "in" this season and, if the Bahamian government has its way, "in" for many seasons to come. With New Providence, on which Nassau is located, bristling with hotels and with thousands of tourists, investors and speculators—mostly from the United States—are transforming many of the 700 or so Out Islands into attractive havens.

Residents of the tiny island of Spanish Wells, which is minutes by boat off the coast of Eleuthera (45 minutes by DC-3 from Nassau) aren't quite sure what to make of the new and sunburned faces seen among them these days, but they aren't really welcoming them.

Spanish Wells is unique. For one thing, no Negro is among the 900 residents — unusual when you know that nearly 90 per cent of the Bahamian population is black. And most Spanish Wellsians are related to each other.

No more than four families —disenchanted royalists who wanted no part of the American Revolution arrived on the island in the late 18th century to establish themselves as very independent farmers and fishermen who simply wanted to be left alone. And, until recently they succeeded.

Generations of inbreeding have created a culture and a physical type which would astound Margaret Mead. Most Spanish Wellsians are blond with fair skin which, surprisingly, appears unaffected by the hot Caribbean sun, and light blue eyes. Bahamian officials who know the people say they are troubled with bad teeth and vision.

The islanders are not, however, isolated from the world. Even before two small resorts were built and the tourists started to arrive, Spanish Wells had electricity and atop more than a few roofs antennas were pointed toward Miami television stations.

The mail boat from Nassau makes three trips weekly, a government nurse is permanently stationed on the island and on Thursdays a local representative from the Royal Bank of Canada holds a two-hour session in a small frame dwelling built especially for the purpose.

Spanish Wellsians have established a tradition of independence. The editor of one of Nassau's two daily newspapers said that during the Second World War when Prime Minister Churchill asked Commonwealth members to rally 'round the flag, the islanders promptly pointed out that they intended to remain neutral. And they did.

★ ★ ★

Their social life isn't exactly what you'd call swinging. Strict Methodists, Sundays are spent in the People's Church. One resident mildly stated that some occasionally get together for a game of baseball, some are interested in spearfishing, others read or watch television or drop by the island's only restaurant. Community sings and sunset-watching are also popular.

I asked one native if he was ever bored with this routine. "No," he replied in his lilting, Bahamian-accented English. "I've seen what they do in Nassau and Miami and I like what we do much better."

What the influx of pleasure-hunting tourists will do to this placid island is anybody's guess. According to Bill Bigelow, manager of Lloyds, a hotel catering to skindivers and pilots, Spanish Wellsians have been polite but withdrawn. "Aside from the few we've been able to hire," he says, "they generally like to avoid our guests."

Chances are, however, the natives won't be able to do to these new interlopers what they did to the early Spaniards and Negroes who came poking around Spanish Wells —they threw them off.

"SELDOM SEEN" SLIM, the last man left in Ballarat, Calif., a ghost town at the western edge of Death Valley, acts out his role as he ducks behind some of the ruins in the tiny place. Slim claims he is mayor, postmaster, dog catcher, tax collector and traffic cop, too, in this town he settled down in 1913 when it was a gold and silver mining centre. (AP Wirephoto.)

Best Surfers Match Skills

Hawaii is the surfing capital of the world and December is the top month for surfing buffs.

The 13th annual Makaha International Surfing Championships continues as Hawaii's surfing classic of the year.

Surfing experts from around the world will vie with one another while riding the incredibly high waves that thunder toward the Oahu shoreline with express train speed.

Visitors are welcome to attend this meet, dates of which are Dec. 18 through 24 and Dec. 26. No admission is charged and special buses will run from Honolulu and Waikiki beach.

Sometimes called "The World Series of Surfing," the Makaha contest has, in the past few years, gone on under ideal conditions. Experts are predicting even bigger and better waves this winter, so that only star surfers will survive elimination heats.

A new and promising surfing competition this year in Hawaii is the Duke Kahanamoku Invitational, with the world's best two dozen surfers scheduled to match skills.

The novel angle on this meet is that it will take place on whichever of the five excellent Oahu surfing beaches have the best surf when competition days arrive. They are Dec. 15 and 16. Thus contestants can only wonder whether they will end up braving the crashing waves at Sunset, Waimea, Pipeline, Haleiwa or the world-famous Makaha.

Middle East Tours Set By Airlines

Modern jets will turn back the centuries in hours in a new tour announced by Canada's two flag carriers, Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines.

Two tours, offering 16 or 22 days' visit to the Holy Land and the Middle East, are now available through the airlines or any travel agent.

In each tour arrival or departure in Europe is possible at either Paris or Rome.

Some of the highlights of both tours will be visits to the Pyramids, the Sphinx, colossal statue of Ramses II, Mohamed Ali Mosque, Islamic University, Great Temple of Amon and the granite statues of Ramses the Great.

In the Holy Land the tour will include views of the Holy Sepulchre, Pilate's Judgment Hall, Lazarus Tomb, Gethsemane, Church of the Nativity, the Manger, Jacob's Well, the Dead Sea, Jordan River and the old walls of Jericho.

P&O-ORIENT AND AIR CANADA ANNOUNCE

3-week holidays to Nassau, the Caribbean, Central America, Mexico and California from just $510!

P&O-Orient's new Sea-Air Calypso Tours fly you to the sun on Air Canada for a leisurely vacation in the Bahamas.

After seven days and six nights at one of Nassau's finest hotels, you sail aboard a giant P&O-Orient liner for the sun-drenched Caribbean and Pacific. Your ports of call: Cristobal, the fantastic Panama Canal, Balboa, Acapulco, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Last stop Vancouver.

Included in the cost of your holiday: all fares, hotels, transfers and your meals at sea on one of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas." (You can spend less, or more, time in Nassau if you like. Which would reduce, or increase, the price we've quoted.)

3 holidays from Vancouver

December 9. Leave on Air Canada for a week in Nassau before boarding P&O-Orient's gleaming Chusan. Arrive in Vancouver December 30.

February 12. Leave for Nassau aboard Air Canada. After a week in the Bahamas you sail for home on P&O-Orient's 29,000-ton Orsova, arriving in Vancouver March 5.

April 12. Fly to Nassau. Seven days and six nights later you board Chusan for the voyage through the Caribbean and Pacific, arriving in Vancouver May 3.

Retired Restaurant Owner

I'M VOTING FOR FRANK HUNTER BECAUSE:

I've known Frank for many years. He's a fine, honest man and a good speaker. He'll fight for what's right for Victoria. He has lived in Victoria all his life. He's been advisor to the mayors and councils of Victoria longer than I can remember. I don't think anybody knows the problems of our city better than he does. I'm voting for Frank Hunter (candidate for Social Credit Party) because in my opinion he's the best man ever to run for Victoria in a Federal Election.

Inserted by Mr. T. Rapanos.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1965—PAGE 21

Since about all that remains in a most curious and depressing federal election is to cast our votes and hope for the best, I hereby declare in this corner, a cooling-off period.

We will assume that the fellow-Canadians for whom we will mark our ballots are neither skunks nor heroes, and talk for a while about certain problems facing this country they wish to represent.

It is a good country. Regardless of which elderly character grabs the gold ring on Monday, it will keep on being one of the best of earth's lands in which to dwell.

Only Australia exceeds it in percentage of able-bodied men employed on paying jobs. We may, off and on, turn up the occasional hungry family or individual. But our communities are well fed; we have no famines, and few bad floods or droughts.

Amazingly, we have no confirmed enemies. Not many nations can make that claim, these days.

All in all, we have it pretty good here. By retaining a minimum of sense, we should be able to keep ourselves in better-than-average trim.

★ ★ ★

We can't afford to be smug, though, and when the election is out of the way, I hope we will settle down to serious consideration of the problems that face us.

One of these is how we, a country of close to 20 million, can escape being painlessly and even pleasantly absorbed by a neighbor which claims close to 193 million population.

I have taken it for granted, correctly, I hope, that we do want to retain our national identity. For any number of reasons, many of them personal and even selfish, I myself have no wish to see the two countries merge.

Estimates of the American stake in Canadian industry range to 60 per cent, a figure which doesn't disturb those who insist that very generous infusions from the United States are vital to Canada's economy.

It may well be that we must continue so, or even permit the percentage to increase, if we are to maintain our present very high standard of living.

However, the figure startles me, and I'm by no means clear as to whether a nation so committed may make genuine claims to independence.

It seems to me that few problems are more in need of answering than this of American industry's amiable and perhaps even beneficial infiltration of Canada. Is it bad or good, and where's the sticking-point?

A related question which, to the best of my knowledge, has never been seriously tackled either provincially or federally, draws from the vast amount of Canadian real estate now owned by American citizens.

Here on the West Coast this trend is dramatically illustrated. I would venture a guess that today more whole small islands now belong to American and German nationals than to Canadians.

Virtually alone among our provincial legislators, NDP chief Bob Strachan has risen in the House to call attention to this mass ownership, by foreigners, of Canadian land.

★ ★ ★

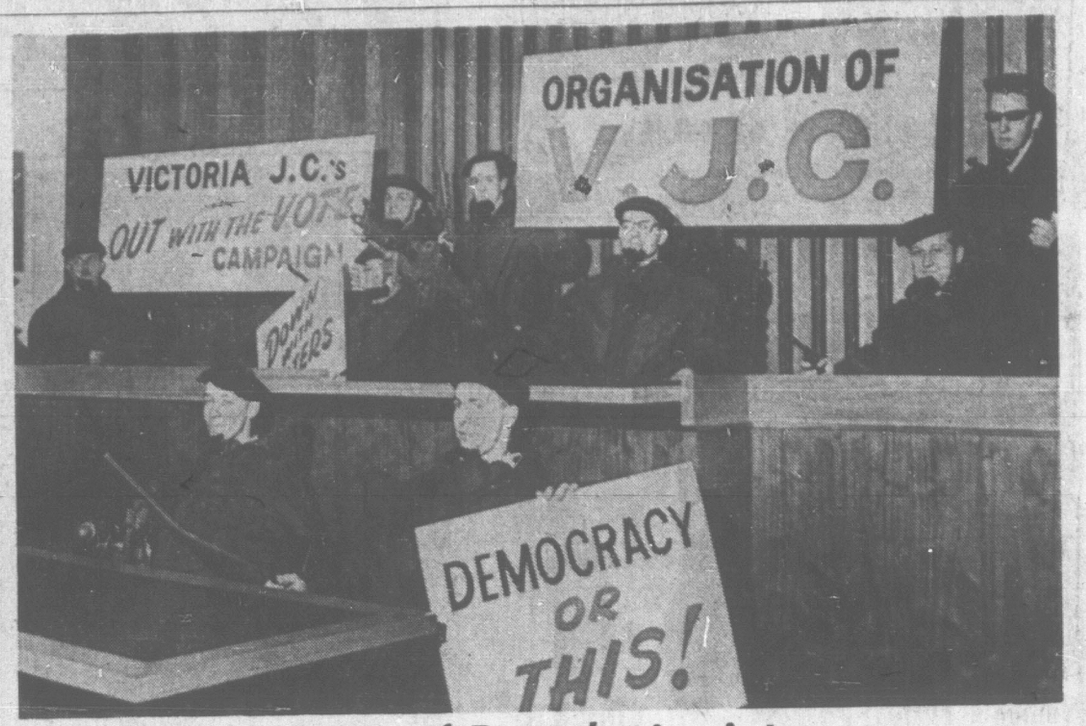

There are numerous other matters that can't wait too long for government attention and decision.

How much water can we spare from the tremendous sponge of our northland for the country below? And under what controls and provisions of international law will water be allotted?

Over-riding all are our domestic problems. Quebec must be persuaded through fair dealing and generous aid that her home lies within Confederation; English Canada, by the same token, must not be splintered in the process. We must also reach a balance-point between tight centralization and a loosely-joined chain of province-kingdoms.

Although these issues bear directly on our national future, they cannot be discussed rationally in the heat of an election campaign. The time for that is when the poll-dust has settled.

Martial Law Proclaimed as City in Grip of Revolutionists

Hands aloft, city council members, Mayor R. B. Wilson and Aldermen Mrs. Lily Wilson, Millard Mooney, Cecil Parrot and Robert Baird, were taken into custody of revolutionists in front of City Hall today. Martial law was proclaimed throughout Greater Victoria. The rebels (members of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce) took over civic offices to protest against persons who don't vote in municipal elections. Victorians are ruled by a minority because they don't exercise their franchise, the Jaycees said. (Halkett Photos.)

'Armed Force' Invades City To Halt Election Apathy!

By RON SUDLOW

A "subversive force" took over City Hall this morning.

It was a blue-clad army of revolutionists led by a chap named Fiddle Astro which placed Mayor R. B. Wilson and city council members under arrest.

They were armed with guns, grenades, placards and a proclamation.

The group, called the New Party of Anarchy and Corruption, promised to shoot without a trial anyone who disagreed with its actions.

The mayor and council members were led at gunpoint into city hall's legislative wing and watched helplessly as the new dictator assumed office.

His first edicts were to cancel citizens' voting franchises and establish a 9 p.m. curfew.

Then the rebel leader removed his beard and identified himself.

It was city Jaycee president Brian Small.

They pointed out ratepayers were actually ruled by a minority as indicated by a 13 per cent turnout in the last municipal election.

They simply decided to speak for the silent majority and take over the government.

"Too often we take this privilege for granted."

AGE-OLD pigeon banger imported from England gets apprehensive appraisal from Wendy Dence. But she won't light it because under new fireworks bylaw the cannon crackers suspended from fuse rope are illegal. Idea is to hang rope in popular pigeon cornice and intermittent blasts as rope detonates crackers startle the birds. Reflecting discs also scare pigeons off.

80,000 Likely To Cast Vote

Mild Temperatures Forecast on Island

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 100,000 residents on southern Vancouver Island are eligible to vote in Monday's federal election.

And if the 1963 federal election is any guide, something like 80,000 will vote in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich constituencies.

The heavy advance poll one week ago may be an indication of a greater-than-usual interest in an election some people wrote off as unnecessary.

Polling starts at 8 a.m. and closes at 7 p.m. Anyone who isn't sure where to cast a ballot should telephone his returning officer whose number will be provided by Information (113).

As usual, liquor stores, beer parlors and cocktail lounges will be closed during voting hours. The legal anachronism dates from the days when canidates plied voters with drinks, hoping the favor would be returned in votes.

Seeking re-election are Liberal David Groos in Victoria, who had a majority of 1,538 at the last election, and Progressive Conservative George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich, who had an edge of 2,585 in 1963.

Most of the nine candidates in both constituencies headed for the streets and shopping centres today in a final round of wooing the voters. The two Social Credit candidates were on their way back from convention in Vancouver.

The candidates were asked what last words they have for the voters.

Mr. Groos and Mr. Chatterton were brief: "Vote on Monday."

So was Len Stephenson, New Democratic Party candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Vote for me!" he declared.

The other replies were longer.

Frank Hunter, Victoria Social Credit: "There is great confidence on very hand. The indications are very good."

★ ★ ★

Rev. Clifford Waite, Victoria Progressive Conservative: "The single objective of government is the well-being of people. Were I to get in, I would keep faith with all the people."

J. Lloyd Brereton, Victoria New Democrat: "The election is more or less over but the war in Viet Nam is going on. Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion yesterday he would go to Viet Nam is such nonsense because everyone knows he will be regarded there as an American puppet. A strong NDP vote in my view is the best guarantee Canada will play her part in bringing this to an end."

W. S. E. Morrison, Victoria Communist: West Coast shipbuilding must be expanded and a merchant marine established. "Step by step" Canada is being dragged into the Viet Nam war. Liberals broke promise to renegotiate acquisition of Bomarc missiles.

James Gorst, Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal: Country needs stability to plan ahead and keep economy moving. Liberals are best qualified to do this.

24-HOUR FAST, VIGIL AT MEMORIAL

The fast will start at 5 p.m. Wednesday and end 5 p.m. Thursday, league president Mavis Payne said. The vigil will be carried out in groups of five taking turns standing at the monument during the night.

"We will stand in silence to express the hope that there will be no more wars," Mrs. Payne said.

Girl Injured On West Saanich By Hit, Run Car

A 17-year-old girl was thrown into the ditch and injured by a hit-and-run driver as she walked along Old West Saanich Road shortly before 5:30 Friday evening.

Lorraine Clifford, 5206 Old West Saanich Road, is in good condition today at Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken hand and severe bruises to her legs and body.

Saanich police said Miss Clifford was walking north on the east side of the road when a car coming from behind struck her and kept on going.

Police are looking for the hit-and-run car of which they obtained a description.

Remembrance Theme Planned by Bonner

Attorney-General Robert W. Bonner will address a joint luncheon meeting of the Victoria Electric Club and Victoria Downtown Kiwanis on Tuesday.

The meeting will have a Remembrance Day theme.

Members will meet at 12:05 p.m. in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

SAANICH LOSES COURT FIGHT

Further Action Up to Council

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said today he will discuss the future of the Swan Lake courtroom with municipal lawyer Douglas Patterson.

The move follows rejection in Supreme Court Friday of Saanich's application for a writ compelling Magistrate William Ostler to sit at the now-empty Swan Lake courtroom, or direct another magistrate to do so.

"It is a matter for review by the council," Reeve Curtis said. "It will be discussed at the next meeting, but I don't want to imply that necessarily we will do anything."

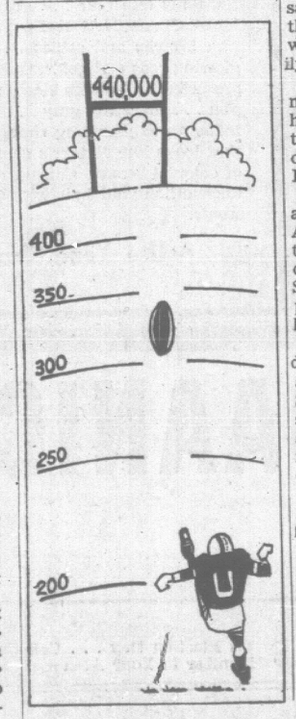

The courtroom, built by the municipality three years ago, has been empty since Magistrate Ostler moved to the new central magistrate's court on Fisgard Street.

In Supreme Court Friday afternoon, Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins of Vancouver ruled that Magistrate Ostler is under no obligation to sit in Saanich municipality, or to appoint another magistrate to hold court there.

He observed that the transfer did not appear to have involved any delay in the disposal of Saanich criminal cases, and he suggested that the hearing of such cases in Victoria might mean less expense for the municipality.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Aikins said the municipality had failed to prove that Magistrate Ostler was legally compelled to sit in Saanich.

He said he had considered the fact that the municipality built its own courthouse and lockup out of duty and also paid a share of Magistrate Ostler's salary.

HELP SCORE FAIR SHARE GOAL

United Appeal total this morning had risen to $337,891, topping the three-quarter mark of the $439,210 goal.

Helping to push the figure over the mark was a donation of $2,900 from employees of Canada Safeway Ltd.

Campaign officials say they expect to present 150 of the awards before the end of the drive.

Any firms which feel their employees have contributed an exceptional amount are invited to apply for one of the four United Appeal awards.

Award of excellence: 100 per cent participation and a "fair share" equivalent of one day's pay) from each employee, for firms with 10 employees or more.

Plaque award: 80 per cent participation and equivalent of half a day's pay from each employee, for firms with 10 employees or more.

Citation award: same as the plaque award, for firms with less than 10 employees.

Achievement award: 80 per cent participation, with a 15 per cent increase over contributions the previous year.

'Bird's Eye View' Of Birth Control Eyed

That's one of the ideas anyway, that is being put forward to curb the pigeon nuisance in Victoria.

A committee set up to curb billing and cooing and less acceptable pigeon skylarks is sending a report to council.

Based on years of study in other cities, the report lists various steps which have been more or less effective—shooting, wire barriers, intermittent explosions, recordings of pigeon distress calls, high frequency sound waves, whirling discs, revolving lights, nets, firecrackers, electric shock and gooey repellants.

And then there is the birth control pill—not on the market yet but held to be a likely solution and one which the SPCA considers acceptable.

MIXED WITH SEEDS

The pills would be mixed with birdseed and fed to the pigeons who would then lay no more fertile eggs. As the current crop of pigeons succumbs to old age there would be no new generation to deface monuments, buildings and sidewalks.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the address of the Research Council of B.C., S. T.

A. You can write to the council in care of the University of British Columbia.

Q. Are there any special educational qualifications necessary for one to teach kindergarten in B.C.? D. M.

A. Yes, says the provincial education department.

For instance, in kindergartens operated by a school board, teachers must have Grades one and two teaching certificates.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

The meeting will be followed by refreshments and a sing-along. The association has asked its members to wear their berets.

BUT IT WON'T TELL PEOPLE HOW TO VOTE

VoW Conduct Aggressive Campaign

By PETE LOUDON

The Voice of Women wants an end to Viet Nam warfare.

But it won't tell people how to vote to further these aims.

National president of VoW, Mrs. Kathleen Macpherson, said in an interview here today that the organization will remain non-partisan in the election.

"We hope people are intelligent enough to decide which way to vote," she said.

For weeks, across Canada, the organization has been asking candidates for their opinions on these issues. And the women have been giving all the publicity they can to the replies.

But further than that they won't go, said Mrs. Macpherson.

She said the main objective of the international body is world peace. The United Nations can't progress in peace talks when a third of the world is excluded from the talks, she said.

She arrived here Friday and was to meet some of the 130 VoW members of Greater Victoria at a tea this afternoon. Sunday she goes to Nanaimo and then back across Canada. Her home is Toronto but in her three years as VoW president much of her time has been taken by travelling.

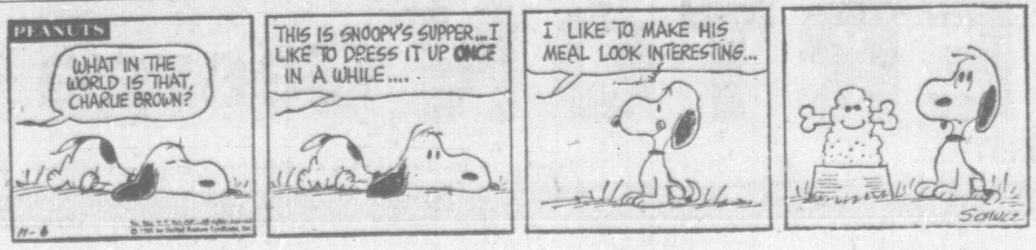

KATHLEEN MACPHERSON
. . . membership growing

The figures are uncertain but she believs her trip has caused VoW membership to grow. She estimates there are up to 4,000 women now on the VoW mailing list—with many more active supporters.

She says workers for peace, such as those who demonstrate against use of nuclear weapons for national security, are often accused of being disloyal.

"I would vehemently question that. It would be treasonable to all humanity to quietly face another war," Mrs. Macpherson states.

Mrs. Macpherson is the wife of a university professor and is herself a physiotherapist and the mother of three children. In December last year she was one of 15 VoW representatives jailed for three hours in Paris when they attempted to get an interview with the NATO secretary-general.

BRITISH MEDAL

LONDON (CP) — Mrs. Graham Spry, wife of Saskatchewan's agent-general in London, was one of six persons presented today with the silver medal of the Royal Society of Arts, an award made for outstanding lectures to the society.

Mrs. Spry's lecture, given last April, was on Capt. John Palliser, the first man who scientifically mapped Western Canada in the late 1850s. It arose out of her book, The Palliser Expedition, published two years ago.

FOR A Xmas Turkey?

Well Not Exactly . . .
It's just our way of saying . . . if you take out a Homeowner Loan with us before Christmas, you get a loan plan packed with benefits plus a nice big Turkey. Why the $1,550? Because we are not a small loan company, we deal only in loans of more than $1,550. In fact, the more we think about it, the Turkey is just one of the fringe benefits.

The Loan Is More Like the Gift!
We deal only in loans greater than $1,550 to avoid the extremely high cost of servicing a multitude of small loans such as other finance companies make. We can pass this saving on to you where it counts most:

1. We offer lower interest rates!
2. We offer lower monthly payments!

For example, by consolidating all your present obligations, say under one loan of $1,550 from us, you will pay only $33.36 a month. Just think of all the extra money you will now have left to spend on your family at Christmas. Wipe out your high interest, large payment debts today . . . the extra cash from easier payments will feel just like a gift . . . and the Turkey will taste great too! This is only one of the many plans tailored to your specific needs. Call any of our offices for further information without obligation.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sucansky, 2109 Neil Street, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Antonette Wanda, to Mr. Colin J. H. Nichols, only son of Mrs. P. Nichols, 3755 Cadboro Bay Road. The marriage will take place on Saturday, Nov. 20 at 6:30 p.m. in St. Philip's Anglican Church. Rev. R. O. Wilkes will officiate. (Campbell Studio.)

Newlyweds to Live at Mission

Following a honeymoon trip to Nevada and California, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Martin Moran will make their home at Mission, B.C.

Chrysanthemums in rust and gold tones decorated St. Mary's Anglican Church this afternoon for the ceremony, Canon Hywel Jones officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Noon, 2870 Eastdowne Road. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moran of Vancouver. Mr. Noon gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. L. Paskaruk, Prince Albert, Sask., was soloist and sang "O Promise Me" and the "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony. Organist was Charles Palmer.

The bride's floor-length gown was of silk sheer crepe over taffeta, styled on princess lines. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline and short sleeves. Her five-tier veil misted to chapel-length from a velvet floral headpiece, appliqued with seed pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of white gardenias, butterfly roses and wheat.

Matron of honor, Mrs. G. Fraser, wore a gown of olive green crepe, styled with a gold lace bodice, and floral headpiece en tone. Gold chrysanthemums and wheat were in her bouquet. A similar gown in gold crepe, with matching headpiece and bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums and wheat, was worn by bridesmaid Miss Alicia Allen.

Jim Simpson was best man. Guests were ushered to pews marked with gold and rust chrysanthemums by brothers of the principals, William Noon, Halifax, and Terry Moran, Vancouver.

For travelling, the bride, the former Katherine Patsy-Ann Noon, chose a two-piece wool jersey suit of autumn green, accented with beige and brown accessories, mink bandeau hat and beige orchid corsage.

Professions Need Broader Scope

MONTREAL (CP) — Inter-professional co-operation and experience must be included in the training for each profession, Dr. J. S. McCreary, dean of British Columbia, said this week.

Dr. McCreary, presenting conclusions reached by a committee at the second Canadian Conference on Children after three days of discussion here, said:

Some 425 delegates from across the country and the United States participated in the conference, representing all professions and many organizations working with children.

Dr. McCreary said the fact Canada's effort in basic and applied research into the social sciences has been "pitifully small" makes urgent both financial support for such studies and opportunities for preparation of research personnel be made available.

Young Canada's Book Week

You're never too young to be introduced to the fascination of books. Four-year-old Alison beams her approval of her latest 'find' at the Victoria Public Library. Her three-year-old brother, Keith, doesn't seem so sure of his choice. They're the children of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Austin, 1336 Stanley Avenue.

Although Young Canada's Book Week is still more than a week away—it begins on Monday, Nov. 15 and continues until the following Monday—the children's department of the Victoria Public Library is full of excitement these days. Staffers are busily preparing the colorful display that will thrill their young customers all that week. There's a holiday spirit as department head, Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin, and her helpers thumb through the 500 new books that will make their debut at that time.

Local book stores and the Greater Victoria schools are combining efforts with the library to ensure that the 1965 Young Canada's Book Week is the best ever. Theme of the display is "Around the World with Books," an apt choice during International Co-operation Year. Willard Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, is the local patron while the national patron is national librarian Dr. William Kaye Lamb, who held Mr. Ireland's post before being transferred to Ottawa.

The magic that lies between the pages of a good book acts like a magnet in drawing family members together in close companionship. Here, the children of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Webb, 4180 Springridge Crescent, enjoy a happy moment at the library. They are, left to right, Jennifer, 13; Debbie, 10, and seven-year-old Paul.

Acquiring good habits early, these four young men are anxious for Miss Darlene Lee to check out their books so that they can get an hour of fun in the outdoors before settling down to an evening of study and reading. Left to right, they are Victor Moloney, nine; Damien Reed, eight; Raymond Keirstead, eight, and eight-year-old Daniel Doore.

What a wonderful way to study! These grade three and four students of Holy Angels' School are delighted with the decision of their principal and teacher, Sister Mary Theodoric to take them to the library so that they can select books for a social studies assignment which will see them studying the celebration of Christmas in countries across the world. The fact that she's the only girl in the class doesn't phase eight-year-old Debra Iiling a bit.

Five hundred new books are arriving at the library in preparation for Young Canada's Book Week. Mrs. Isabelle Goodwin, at right, head of the children's department, gets a hand at unpacking from Mrs. Bertha Thompson. Sharing their enthusiasm in the new arrivals is Miss Beth Bowden.

Boots have passed the fad stage. Knees have made them classics. Newest length barely reaches the calf.

Evening glamour goes to your head . . .

You'd scarcely think of wearing street shoes with your elegant evening gowns, would you? . . . And your usual daytime hairdo is almost an inappropriate when you're all dressed up for a big evening . . . a lovely gown literally cries for an equally appropriate coiffure . . . Stylists at the House of Glamour are past masters in designing outstanding hair styles for evening . . . so keep this in mind when preparing for coming social events . . . Make your appointment well in advance . . . with Mr. Tibor, Mr. Edward, Mr. Charles . . . or Miss Marcia, Maria, Tina or Linda . . . or naturally, Danny Hajnal himself . . . who incidentally has just returned from winning First Award for hair shaping at the Western Hairdressing Championships in Calgary . . . (won it for his chic new haircut we told you about recently) . . . Any of the H of G stylists will do your hair beautifully for evening . . . whether you'd like something really elaborate, or just a bit different from the style you usually wear . . . And to complete the picture, let Miss Emelie give you a special evening make-up . . . to gild the lily, so to speak! . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

A cosmetic company plans to market a facial mask for men next year, and to offer men's hair coloring.

Why not make it a really gala Yuletide this year . . . and serve your Christmas dinner on a beautiful new dining room table (surrounded with the rest of the dining room suite, of course!) . . . At Home Furniture you'll find some very handsome dining room furniture indeed . . . There's a truly magnificent imported 9-piece suite in French walnut . . . costing in the neighborhood of $2,000 . . . but we hasten to reassure you . . . all the others are a great deal less expensive, while sharing the beauty of design and excellence of workmanship . . . Pecan or mahogany in a wide variety of design . . . Round, oval or oblong tables . . . shield-back chairs . . . buffets and breakfronts . . . ranging in price from about $439 to $795 for a full, large size suite . . . And the beauty of it is, since you buy the pieces separately, you can have just what you need for your own dining room without over-crowding . . . One suite we especially admired is pecan wood, with round table, breakfront buffet, chair seats covered with dull gold brocade . . . Another, in the same wood, has an oval table, six chairs, and breakfront . . . In such elegant setting, every meal would be an event! . . . Home Furniture Company, 825 Fort St., 382-5138.

Enchanting music boxes at Sydney Reynolds . . .

Anything that plays a tune when you pick it up, or open it, fills us with the keenest delight . . . so when we ducked into Sydney Reynolds out of the rain last Monday, we really felt we've hit the jackpot! . . . Literally dozens of musical cigarette boxes are just in from Austria . . . made of wood, with various kinds of pictures on the lids . . . Old Masters . . . flowers . . . slyly amusing scenes . . . with Swiss musical movements that tinkle out gay little tunes . . . Several different sizes, ranging in price from $7.50 up . . . Small, beautifully hand-carved busts of great musicians, like Hayden, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Bach and Handel, give forth with one of the master's own compositions when they're lifted . . . These come from Italy . . . and would make delightful gifts for the "long hairs" among your family and friends . . . Also from Italy, carved wooden Christmas creches . . . some very small, others larger . . . Exquisitely modelled angels and Madonnas . . . and those little round Florentine pictures most of us covet . . . costing very little more than you'd pay for them in the shadow of Firenze's Pitti Palace! . . . A big selection of Florentine trays, too . . . now in the Continental Room at . . . Sydney Reynolds, 801 Government St., EV 3-3931.

Enchanting gowns for enchanting evenings . . .

No doubt about it, this is the season for elegance after sundown! . . . And we know of simply nowhere that rivals Miss Frith's for their collection of gorgeous evening gowns . . . some of which are exclusive not just in Victoria, but in all of B.C.! . . . There are brocades, crepes, chiffons, velvets, peau de soie . . . subtly designed, many highlighted with jewelled and beaded trimming to provide the glitter which is so important this season . . . A number of these gowns are really ensembles, with their own matching evening coats . . . If you're a size 10, there's a gold brocade ensemble trimmed with pearls, topaz and amber beads that will make you the belle of the ball . . . a complete knockout! . . . Another gold brocade . . . artfully cut sheath and a glitterery overblouse . . . which can be worn together or separately . . . Some evening gowns have jackets . . . and a theatre coat of black or brown velvet will turn any of them into a complete evening ensemble . . . Co-ordinates consisting of long or short skirts, glitter or lame shells are a great way to assemble an attractive evening wardrobe at very small cost . . . Be sure to park in the new lot at . . . Miss Frith Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., EV 3-4912.

Munday's shoe sales are always an event . . . and the one now on, celebrating Munday's 66th Anniversary . . . is no exception! . . . We might even say, it's very exceptional . . . in that those famous Dr. Locke shoes beloved by women who need extra-good foot support . . . are now on sale for the first time ever in Victoria! . . . Over 500 pairs . . . pumps and ties . . . reduced from $19.95 to $15.95 . . . a wonderful opportunity to stock up at a worthwhile saving . . . We had a look at all these shoes just before the sale started last Wednesday, and were madly impressed with the offerings . . . D'Antonellis reduced to $9.95 . . . Some 350 pairs of those superbly crafted Amalfi shoes from Itally tagged at $12.95 and $16.95 (regularly priced up to $24.95) . . . Paradise Kitten walking heel dress pumps, in calf, suede or patent . . . reduced from $21.95 to $14.95 . . . and a group of real lizard pumps in beige, grey or black . . . which you can pick up now for $19.95 instead of the usual $28.95 . . . Naturally, all sizes aren't available in all styles, but the range is very good . . . and the styles are this-year smart . . . Sale continues all next week, so get in early and pick yourself a bargain . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., EV 3-2211.

'Little Nothings' Go A Long Long Way Here

By NONA DAMASKE

Times fashion editor, Nona Damaske, is presently holidaying in Palm Springs. Here, she gives an up-to-the-minute picture of styles in the Californian resort.

PALM SPRINGS — The designers who do the "little nothings" have a perfect market in Palm Springs. The temperature is hovering around 100 degrees during the day and a little nothing is all you want to wear. Two-piece swimsuits, short loose cotton shifts, mad sun hats and thong sandals are the rig of the day.

Damaske

When the sun goes down the story changes. Popular dinner hour at the hotels and clubs is between 9 and 10 p.m. and this is the time the visitors wear the little black nothing dress and the village residents wear beautiful pastel or brilliantly printed silks. It is amusing how the trends of fashion change. A few years ago in the evening, every woman covered her shoulders with a pale mink stole or a fluffy ring of white fox.

Last year and the year before everyone, in the evening, had a luxuriously beaded sweater flung over their shoulders. This year, both are considered quite passe and one must have a matching dress and coat.

This week, the Tennis Club, resting like a jewel in its mountain setting, was the scene of a gorgeous fashion show. Resort clothes for the desert, and classic fall costumes for those living or visiting cooler climates, were presented by sun-kissed Palm Springs models.

The Bougainvillea Room, with its high-reaching wall of natural rock formations studded with growing ferns, was filled with sunshine but most pleasantly air-conditioned.

The first costume, a compliment to the club, was a chic tennis dress. Short, short, with a full flare, the only trim was crisp white eyelet lace running from throat to waistline.

Typically Californian were the hand-screened short shifts in hot desert shades. These dresses seem to me so much more sensible for the heat than the confining Capris. However many Capris are worn and the most stunning at the Tennis Club show were in a soft green, paler than celery with shirt and sweater en tone.

There are many knits to be found this season and the loose hand-crocheted look seems to be favored here. Several rather fitted shifts in double-knit had frills of loose crochet at the hemline. They are most becoming but took all the joy from the gorgeously rich dessert which was being passed at the moment. Knits and calories just cannot be on friendly terms!

Does it rain? Well sometimes . . . enough anyway to allow a gal to have an avocado green silk raincoat a-la-James Bond. Pretty enough for cocktails with its sparkling gold buttons and cinched waistline. Anne Marie, deeply tanned and displaying beautifully the Vidal Sasoon hairstyle, modelled the first of a group of stunning evening ensembles. Simple and slender, her floor-length gown of desert sand crepe was girdled by a cummerbund in all the brilliant tones of the desert flowers.

Expensive, elegant and breathtaking was the theatre ensemble in ivory satin. The coat over-all stitched to give a quilted effect had luxurious mink cuffs and the dress had row upon row of delicately shimmering amber-toned beads.

About 2,000 retail clothing executives and buyers converged on Palm Springs this week for the opening of the California Fashion Creators' Resort and Spring Market Week. Seventy-five California designers and manufacturers turned the rooms of The Holiday Inn into a veritable fashion writer's paradise. Each designer seems to try and make his sample room more attractive than the one next door. A beautifully polished surfboard created the theme in one display. Massed silk double poppies in the most vivid tones of tangerine and hot pink was another choice. Crazy mobiles hung from several ceilings.

One of the California Fashion Creators parties was held at my hotel, the Howard Manor. Champagne and hot dogs for a thousand people . . . all done around the pool. It was a gay scene with colored lights, hanging baskets, charcoal fires and a lively orchestra on the patio. Many of the women were in full-length cotton prints which seemed so right for the occasion.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Swing Your Partner To the Tune of This

By Penny Saver

Are you tired of sitting home on a Saturday night, playing cards or settling down in front of the television set? Do you feel too old to go out, yet too young to stay home? Then, let your hair down and join those who find their fun in a swinging evening of square dancing.

I discovered a shop that carries the complete square dancer's ensemble, right down to the finest accessories. This shop boasts of carrying the larget selection of western duds in western Canada.

For the ladies, there is a well-stocked rack of bright-colored dresses to choose from. A very light dress that I spotted was fashioned of georgette, with white lace enhancing the sleeves. Metallic embroidery highlights some of these beautiful creations. All of them are one-of-a-kind dresses, imported from Tucson, Ariz., and Denver, Colo. Sizes range from 10 to 20, and prices from $8.98 to $29.98.

For the gal who prefers the skirt and blouse effect, three-tier skirts in an array of colors sell from $6.98. The skirts are six feet wide at least, which gives a lot of room for swinging.

Blouses sell from $3.50. Cincher belts, which double to hold the blouse in and add a saucy look, are boned and laced. The straight belt sells for $3.75, and the peaked one for $3.98.

In the line of men's attire, western shirts in a wide variety of colors and styles, sell from $7.95 to $10.98.

Frontier pants, with stud pockets, start at $11.98. The proprietor of the shop claimed that there were 14 colors to choose from. I witnessed a second nose-count, which revealed 18 different shades.

Sturdy cowhide belts sell at $1.50, and buckles with western designs are from $1.00 to $2.50.

DATE STUFFED VEAL BIRDS

Six slices veal loin, ½-inch thick; 1 cup dates, 1 cup grated mild Cheddar cheese, vinegar, 1 egg yolk, dash salt, 6 slices bacon, 1 can (1 lb.) tomato sauce, 1 bay leaf, ½ cup sliced onion, ½ cup water.

Have butcher pound veal very thin. Cut dates into large pieces, mix with cheese, 1 tablespoon vinegar, egg yolk and salt. Spoon into centre of each slice veal; roll up. Wrap slice bacon lengthwise around each roll; tie rolls with string.

Cover and cook over medium heat 1 hour, turning rolls occasionally. (If necessary, uncover pan near end of cooking-time to reduce sauce to desired consistency.)

Bazaar Planned In Esquimalt Hall

Home-made bread, fruit pies and cakes will be just some of the many items on a home-cooking stall that will titivate guests' taste-buds at the annual fall bazaar of the Esquimalt Golden Age Club, to be held in the Jubilee Hall, Fraser Street, next Wednesday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. The stall is being arranged by Mrs. D. Dunlop and Mrs. W. Strawson.

Mrs. M. F. Naysmith and Mrs. C. Stringer are conveners of a stall featuring fancywork, aprons and miscellaneous items. Mrs. M. Carver will be in charge of a penny fair.

Tea conveners are Mrs. M. O'Kell, Mrs. D. Ryley and Mrs. D. Hutchison. They will be assisted by Mrs. F. Drummond and Mrs. E. Elliot. There will be a door prize and a chicken dinner raffle, the latter being convened by Mrs. M. Wilson.

The official opening will be by Mrs. James Bryant.

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

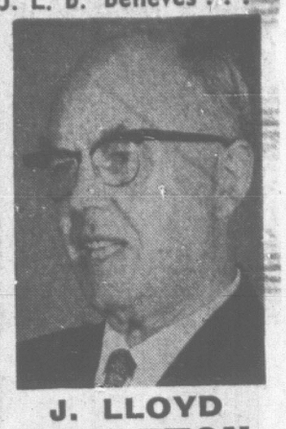

New Members—A number of new members of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League were presented with pins at the recent meeting held in the Blue Room. They included Mrs. M. E. Fairley, Mrs. G. Malysheff, Mrs. A. T. Schaddelee, the Misses Susan Bowers, Margaret Collen, Joan Vye, Barbara Welsh and Eileen Ward. Reports were given by Mrs. W. Ralph on the Solarium party and Miss Margaret Braithwaite on the sale of refreshments at the Western Canadian Open Water-ski Championships at Shawnigan Lake, which realized the sum of $193.87. Plans were discussed for the auction to be held on Dec. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Safeway building, Oak Bay Avenue at Fort Street. Items may be picked up by contacting Mrs. Trevor Bagot, 47[illegible]-1759.

Plan Concert—Plans were discussed for the second concert to be held in the McPherson Playhouse by the Victoria Musical Arts Society at the recent meeting in the Deal Street home of president, Mrs. S. G. Watts. Guest artists will be pianist Winifred Scott and baritone John Dunbar, accompanied by Grace Timp. Arrangements were also discussed for the annual Christmas carol tea to be held on Dec. 11 in the Empress Hotel. Student nurses of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, directed by Mrs. M. Wood, will entertain guests. It was decided that a competition for the society's scholarship would be held in the summer.

Woman Lighthouse Keeper Retires

MAIN-A-DIEU, N.S. (CP) — Eliza Campbell, 62, is retiring at the end of November after 20 years as lighthouse keeper on lonely Scatari Island, two miles from this community on Cape Breton's south coast.

The only full-time lightkeeper in Nova Scotia, Mrs. Campbell took over the operation of the island's western light in September, 1945, following the death of her husband. Mr. Campbell had been in charge of the station since 1930.

The light may become an automatically controlled unit when Mrs. Campbell leaves, thus ending the Campbell dynasty at the Main-a-Dieu lighthouse. Her father-in-law was appointed keeper by the federal transport department in 1912.

She plans to live with her daughter in Bridgewater, N.S., following retirement. From now on it will just be "light housekeeping" for her, she says with a grin.

Mrs. Campbell raised three children on Scatari Island and one of her two sons was drowned in 1950 while serving as assistant lightkeeper at another Nova Scotia station. Most of the 20 years, however, she lived with only the companionship of the unpredictable sea.

She isn't "grieved" at the prospects of quitting, but she says she'll miss the lonely cliffs and pounding surf.

DEAR ABBY . . .

The Results!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'll never forget the first night of my honeymoon. My darling fell fast asleep at midnight while I was awake until seven o'clock the next morning just listening to him snore. He started out by holding his breath for so long I didn't know whether to send for a doctor or a priest. Then he'd exhale ever so slowly, emitting a long whistle, popping his lips and finally terminating with a noise that sounded like a corps of pneumatic drills. I felt like kicking him right through the wall every night.

After the honeymoon we got twin beds. That didn't solve anything. It just made it harder for me to kick him. Finally, we had separate bedrooms, but I could hear him through the walls. Then a friend introduced me to the greatest invention since sliced bread. EAR PLUGS! They have saved my marriage, and I'm not kidding.

MARINA.

DEAR ABBY: A propos snoring: I am convinced that the most idiotic thing I ever did in my life was to put up with snoring as long as I did.

For years I walked around half-dead from exhaustion. Once, when I was near total collapse from lack of sleep, I spent the night in our guest room. The next morning the children whined, "Don't you love Daddy any more?" So like a fool I felt I had to stay in the same room with that mountain lion to keep the children happy. What a lot of utter nonsense. No more! I'm older now and wiser.

HAVE HAD IT.

DEAR ABBY: On our honeymoon I was horrified to discover that I had married the world's champion snorer. I used elbows and feet for temporary relief. Now we sleep in twin beds and I keep a yardstick under my bed. When Michael starts snoring, I get the yardstick and whack him with it. Now, as soon as he hears me reaching for the yardstick, he shuts up.

MICHAEL'S WIFE.

DEAR ABBY: Let's face it. Most people nowadays sleep together before marriage, so if they marry a snorer it's hardly news to them. Anyone who knowingly marries a snorer and then has the gall to complain about it should have his nose ripped off. Thank you.

OTTAWA.

DEAR ABBY: Yes, hubby snores. I just move to another room. What hurts me most is to leave HIM the electric blanket. But I'm going to change all that. I'm getting another one. (Blanket, not husband).

TORONTO.

DEAR ABBY: When we were first married we lived in a small apartment next to a church, and our humble quarters were overrun with mice. I am deathly afraid of mice. When we would go to bed the mice would start to gnaw and scratch and I was terrified. My dear understanding husband would cuddle me close against his shoulder, and soon he would begin to snore. As his snoring got louder and louder, it drowned out the sound of the mice and I was able to fall asleep, too.

Nearly 20 years later, he still snores. We no longer live among the mice, but his snoring is so reminiscent of the early days, I wouldn't stop it if I could.

Women who are kept awake by their husband's snoring are blessed. Would they trade it for the sleeplessness that comes from a pain-racked body? Or a troubled mind? Or the cries of a sick child? Or the silence of death?

If snoring is the only thing that bothers them, they should get down on their hands and knees and thank God for the blessing that He has sent, and for the song of security their husbands sing as they slumber contentedly in their own beds.

Many are not as fortunate as we.

Diamond Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Morgan, 856 Wollaston Street, recently celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary. The couple was married in Kingston, Ont., on Oct. 23, 1905. They came to Victoria in 1925. They have three children, Col. H. G. F. Morgan and Mr. Frank Morgan, both of Victoria, and Mrs. David (Ruth) Crockett of Metchosin. There are nine grandchildren. To mark the anniversary, a family dinner was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, followed by a small reception for friends and neighbors.

Co-Hostesses

White chrysanthemums en corsage were presented to bride-elect Miss Donna Warder and pink chrysanthemums were given to her mother, Mrs. W. D. Warder, when Mrs. C. A. Fields and Mrs. G. F. Argyle entertained at a kitchen shower in the Munro Street home of the latter. Gifts were in a decorated laundry basket. Also attending were Mrs. F. Anderson, Mrs. G. Hodgson, Mrs. A. Collings, Mrs. W. Stevenson, Mrs. W. Putt, Mrs. A. Edmonds, Mrs. R. Bromley, Mrs. T. Warder, Mrs. C. Cornfield, Mrs. D. Warren, Mrs. G. Ball, Mrs. A. Gary, Mrs. F. Flannigan, Mrs. D. Calvert, Pat Jones, Carol Lyrette, Carol Fox and Sharon Peddle.

A decorated umbrella concealed the gifts when Miss Carol Lyrette and her mother Mrs. R. Lyrette entertained at a shower in their Forshaw Street home. Corsages were presented to the guest of honor, her mother and the groom-elect's mother. A decorated shower cake centred the refreshment table.

Invited were Mrs. John Moore, the groom-elect's sister from Halifax; Mrs. D. Clark, Mrs. C. Clarke, Mrs. H. Truiet, Mrs. E. Gillingham, Mrs. H. Kerr, Vancouver; the Misses Gail Garnish, Joanne Mah, Betty Piluk, Dianne Copp and Lois McGee.

Mrs. Patterson entertained for her son's fiancee in her Selkirk Road home. Mrs. Moore was co-hostess. Miss Gardner received a corsage of roses.

Also attending were Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. D. Moss, Mrs. Peddle, Mrs. H. Jones, Mrs. L. Calvert, Mrs. B. Coey, Mrs. McKeever, Mrs. C. Fisher, Mrs. H. Croft, Mrs. M. Norman, Mrs. J. Olston-Stewart, Mrs. Lobbrunner, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. J. Watson, Mrs. R. Landels, Mrs. C. Taylor, Mrs. N. Stewart, Mrs. A. Taylor, the Misses Carol Fox, I. Christie, Carol Lyrette, D. Stewart, Lois McGee, L. Calvert, Betty Piluk and A. Willoughby.

Heirloom Pearl Necklace Fulfils Bridal Tradition

An heirloom string of pearls fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Jane Hamilton Roberts, this afternoon, when she became the bride of Robert George Christison in Oak Bay United Church.

The jewelry, which belonged to her great-grandmother, enhanced a floor-length gown of brocade, styled on empire lines. A cathedral train swept back from a bridal bow at the back of the fitted bodice, which featured a scoop neckline and lily point sleeves. A floral headpiece held her four-tier veil and she carried white gardenias in her bouquet.

The bride is the daughter of Flt.-Lt. and Mrs. Dennis T. Roberts, 2014 Windsor Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Victor Christison, 222 Burnside Road West. Flt.-Lt. Roberts gave his daughter in marriage.

Maid of honor Miss Marlett Borrie was in a floor-length gown of emerald green French velvet and bridesmaid, the bride's sister, Miss Susan Roberts, was in a street-length bell-skirted gown of similar fabric. Both wore matching bow headpieces and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums echoing the church decorations.

Best man was Donald Snyder. Guests were ushered to pews marked with rust and gold chrysanthemums by the groom's brother, Bruce Christison and Gilbert McIlraith.

A trotter-length suit of cherry red, complemented with black accessories and an orchid corsage, was worn by the new Mrs. Christison for travelling on honeymoon to Vancouver and Seattle, Wash.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included Mrs. Mary Elliott, Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. J. Corscadden of Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. Watkins and Mr. and Mrs. R. Plant of Nanaimo.

'Christian Concern Over Viet Confusion'

Christians have a duty to decide on the moral issues involved in the war in Viet Nam, said Rev. John Sandys-Wunsch, preaching in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday.

"The message of Christianity concerns decisions made here and now in human history . . . Men of the Bible were interested, not merely in eternal verities high above the dust and confusion of this world, but in decisions made in everyday life in terms of the will of God."

Mr. Sandys-Wunsch said Christians must be concerned with spiritual and moral issues involved in "all the mess and confusion of human existence."

"It is not enough to talk about the comforts and assurances Jesus offers and to forget that he also said 'Not everyone that says unto me Lord, Lord will enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Saint Patrick's

Church choirs, big and small, have often been called the backbone of the nation's music. They raise the morale of the service, keep up the tempo of the singing—and sometimes perform in hospitals and institutions between times. Every Saturday, the Times will feature one of the Victoria choirs.

INFORMAL photo shows mixed choir at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, 2060 Haultain. It was formerly part of the church of Our Lady of Lourdes and was directed for 15 years by Col. J. Q. Gillan. He was succeeded in 1961 by Albert Richter, former violinist with Victoria Symphony Orchestra, who continues to lead the choir. Mrs. Wanda Gill is the regular organist. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

Week-Long Mission Follow-Up of Crusade

A Bible-Teaching Mission begins this Sunday in Central Baptist Church as a follow-up to the Leighton Ford Crusade last September.

The missioner will be Dr. W. Hal MacBain, pastor of Forward Baptist Church, Toronto, and president of the Central Baptist Seminary.

Classes will be held every morning at 10 a.m., from Monday to Friday, on the theme The Triumphant Christian Life.

Each evening at 7:45, Dr. MacBain will show pictures of Palestine and then teach on the theme Visions of the Master.

"The public is invited to attend these expositions of the Scriptures to enable the soul's hunger to be satisfied," writes Pastor Robert D. Holmes of Central Baptist Church.

Week Observed By Adventists

Prayer services will be held every night next week in Victoria Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Vancouver and Pandora Streets.

They are part of the annual week of prayer and sacrifice observed by Adventists around the world at this time.

Pastor Arthur Spenst said special readings have been prepared by church leaders and these will replace the usual sermons.

"The readings deal with personal living in an age that demands much of men," the minister said, "and much more of Christian men and women."

The final reading will be given in the church on Saturday, Nov. 13.

Parkdale Forms New Youth Choir

A new youth choir will make its debut at the Sunday service at 7 p.m. in Parkdale Evangelical Free Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

The choir, which has been rehearsing for several weeks, is composed of 'teen-agers from the church's various youth groups.

After the evening service, there will be a family fellowship hour sponsored by the youth groups.

"This will be an opportunity for families who have just started attending our church to get acquainted with older members," says Rev. Lloyd Mackey.

PREACHER at morning and evening services in Emmanuel Baptist Church will be Rev. A. C. Hamill. He is leaving Victoria Dec. 27 to take over the ministry of First Baptist Church, Kelowna.

Nazarene Pastors, Wives To Hold Conference Here

Nazarene church pastors and wives will attend the annual Canada Pacific district Nazarene Preachers' conference to be held at the First Church of the Nazarene, Victoria, Tuesday through Thursday, Nov. 16-18.

All 17 Nazarene churches in the district will be represented. These churches have about 850 members and a Sunday school enrolment of about 2,500 persons.

Speaker will be Rev. Roy J. Yeider, Vancouver, who has been superintendent since 1963 of the district. He also is in charge of the Nazarene district in Alaska which has 11 churches.

Mr. Yeider is a veteran Nazarene pastor. He was elected to his present position after many years as pastor of the First Nazarene Church in Seattle.

The Church of the Nazarene is the largest Protestant denomination that stands for scriptural holiness in the Wesleyan tradition. It has a world membership of 415,000 in more than 5,000 churches.

It maintains about 600 missionaries in 46 countries.

NEWS FROM CITY CHURCHES

Dead of Three Wars Will Be Remembered

Men and women who gave their lives in the First and Second World Wars and the Korean War will be honored in churches throughout Greater Victoria this Remembrance Sunday—four days ahead of the official observance of Armistice Day.

In Metropolitan United Church Sunday morning, trumpeter Dave Fisher will sound The Last Post and the Reveille, and the guest preacher will be Padre H. J. Hare of the Royal Canadian Navy.

The Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, will sing Sine Nomine (Vaughan Williams) and Had We but Hearkened to Thy Word (Walford-Davies).

A wreath of Flanders' Poppies will be laid on the Book of Remembrance by Tyro members Stephen Rothwell and Stephen Hill and Explorer Janice Clarke.

Eric Boothroyd's organ prelude will be Solemn Melody (Walford Davies).

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will read the lesson at the Royal Canadian Legion's annual Remembrance service in St. John's Anglican Church Sunday at 3 p.m.

Preacher will be Lt.-Col. R. O. Wilkes, MC. Heads of the armed services will attend and Premier Bennett will be represented by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant.

★ ★ ★

The morning worship in First Baptist Church will focus on the Christian concept of "what it really means to be human," says Rev. John A. Watson, minister.

"In the evening we shall continue our study of the Marks of Christian Discipleship as we direct our thoughts to the first beatitude: How blessed are those who know they are poor; the kingdom of heaven is their's."

★ ★ ★

In First United Church the choir, directed by W. H. Gregory, will sing O Valiant Hearts (Anderson) and the anthem How Excellent (Handel).

Rev. Marvin G. Fowler will speak on You Have to Start Somewhere at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services, and on Religious Drama at an informal service in the Youth Room at 8 p.m.

The 5 p.m. vesper service has been discontinued and will be replaced by a 7 p.m. service in the chapel.

★ ★ ★

This Sunday the Church of Our Lord, Humboldt at Blanshard, will mark the 91st anniversary of its founding by Sir James Douglas, first Governor of Vancouver Island.

"No other church has remained on its original site so long," says Bishop Denys Rankilor, the minister in charge.

"The work of this church for Victoria has seen the founding of the British Columbia Orphanage, the establishment of the present Royal Jubilee Hospital, and the founding of St. Joseph's Hospital."

★ ★ ★

Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will speak on This Day Shall Change All in Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street, Sunday at 11 a.m.

Her evening subject is The Way Unto Life.

Morning and evening services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be conducted by Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD. At the morning service he will preach on The Way of Salvation.

The evening service will be broadcast over CJVI when Dr. McLean will speak on Good Government.

The choir will sing the anthems The King of Heaven (Nichol) and Lead Kindly Light (Pughe-Evans). Soloists will be John Bell and Margaret Duff.

★ ★ ★

Sunday School Rally Day will be held at Central Baptist Church on Sunday at 9:45 a.m. when Rev. Roger "Kiwi" Green, children's missioner with the Scripture Union, Toronto, will be the guest speaker.

An all-out effort to establish a new attendance record is being made when it is expected the 500 mark will be exceeded.

Don MacKinnon, president of Victoria British Israel Association, will speak at a public meeting in the Newstead Hall, 734 Fort Street, Tuesday at 7:45 p.m.

SPEAKING at the Remembrance service in Fairfield United Church Sunday morning, Rev. H. W. Kerley, DD, will talk on The Road to Peace. In the evening he will continue his series on Old Testament Books.

Bank Act Amendment Needed, says Fulton

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister, has called for an amendment in the Bank Act "to stop once and for all the burden of grossly excessive interest rate presently being charged by private finance, loan and mortgage companies."

Mr. Fulton told a television audience Thursday night that "fiscal irresponsibility" on the part of the Liberal government would bring about the return of tight money. The result would be even greater hardships on small loan borrowers.

"If a citizen is required to pay as high as 24 per cent interest, sometimes more, then his cost of living must go up by the same 24 per cent.

"Finance companies should not be allowed to borrow money from a charter bank at regular interest rates only to turn around and lend it out to the public at a crushing interest rate," Mr. Fulton said.

In a two - hour television broadcast seen by viewers in the B.C. interior, Mr. Fulton answered questions from the studio audience and telephone questions from constituents.

BEGINS HERE IN JANUARY

'Operation Doorstep' Set

Mobile units of the B.C. Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Society will be offering free TB skin tests and chest X-rays to more than 282,000 residents of the province.

The annual Christmas Seal Campaign to aid these projects was launched this week by Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes.

Mr. Pearkes opened the campaign by purchasing the first of 74,000,000 seals which will be distributed between Nov. 16 and Dec. 31.

The society is hoping for $325,000 in donations this year to support an intensified program of chest disease control.

Last year the society gave more than $100,000 to Canadian medical research projects.

LARGEST AT CENOTAPH

Top Role for Navy In Nov. 11 Services

Naval personnel of the RCN's Pacific command will play a major role Thursday in Remembrance Day services throughout lower Vancouver Island.

About 200 sailors will take part in the services, accompanied by a smaller number of soldiers and airmen.

Largest of the services will be at the Victoria cenotaph on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

The parade will form up on Wharf St. near Government St. and move off at 10:45 a.m.

The procession will be led by the 45-man HMCS Naden band and a contingent of 60 sailors.

TAKE SALUTE

En route to the cenotaph the parade will pass a saluting base in front of the Empress Hotel where Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer Pacific Coast, will take the salute.

With him will be Air Commodore R. C. Weston, senior air officer Pacific. Parade commander will be Lieut.-Cmdr. W. R. Hayes.

The service at the cenotaph will begin immediately following the traditional two-minute silence at 11 a.m.

SENTRIES

Representatives of the RCN, RCAF, Army and RCMP will serve as sentries at each corner of the cenotaph.

Esquimalt services will begin at 11 a.m. at Esquimalt Memorial Park. The RCN will be represented by a platoon from the fourth Canadian escort squadron.

Commodore R. M. Battles, commodore superintendent, Pacific Coast, will lay a wreath.

FIRE FIELD GUNS

Personnel of the 5th Independent Medium Battery will fire field guns at both Victoria and Esquimalt services.

Commodore A. G. Boulton, commodore of RCN barracks at HMCS Naden, will lay a wreath at Oak Bay War Memorial on eBach Drive at 1 p.m.

Saanich services will be held at Gore Memorial Park, Shelbourne and Cedar Hill Cross Road, starting at 2:30 p.m.

Thirty-five personnel from the Esquimalt-based Second Canadian Escort Squadron will take part. Capt. L. J. Nairn, command supply officer, will lay a wreath.

At Langford, Remembrance Day services will be held at the Langford Legion Hall, starting at 11 a.m. Capt. J. C. Chauvin will lay the wreath.

Rites Tuesday For Victoria Sports Patron

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at McCall Bros. for Victoria sports patron and businessman W. L. Menzies.

Mr. Menzies, general manager of W. R. Menzies and Company, Plumbing and Heating, and sponsor of teams in the Babe Ruth and Pony Baseball Leagues, died Friday, aged 53.

Time of the funeral will be announced later.

He was a member of the Masonic Order and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

He is survived by the widow, Violet, daughter Carolyn, son Barry, sister Mrs. Margaret Partington, and a grandson, all of Victoria.

HALLOWEEN TOO MUCH FOR DOG

Judy, part labrador dog owned by Capt. and Mrs. H. G. Bishop, 1968 Fairfield Place, paddled half a mile out to Trial Island.

She was returned Thursday when her owners were traced through a dog tag by Mrs. Barbara Fletcher, wife of the island's assistant lighthouse keeper.

The dog was badly frightened last year when a carelessly thrown firecracker set her fur on fire.

A PINCH COULD KILL

The sun's matter is so hot—16,000,000 degrees Centigrade—that a pinhead of it could kill a man 100 miles away.

Plain Facts About Boys in Business

More than 700,000 independent young business men throughout Canada and the United States today are finding out first hand how our economic system works. They're making a profit learning the rewards of saving and managing their own money. They're newspaperboys.

But the biggest "profit" in a newspaper route is not dollars and cents. It is the lessons in service, self-reliance, courtesy and resourcefulness — all qualities of a successful adult and a good citizen.

That newspaperboys generally achieve success as they move into their chosen fields shouldn't be surprising.

MADE FOR THE STUDENT

Get a Desk—And Get Ahead

Unusual feaure makes use of odd-shaped corner

By PAULINE GRAVES

Any young man, or young girl, too, for that matter, ought to earn better grades with a desk arrangement like this.

When the room was viewed without furnishings, this jutting corner appeared to offer litlte constructive use.

Most unusual feature, and a good feature, is the horizontal strip that travels along the wall, and sheets of insulating cork inserted. Any soft surfaced material would do, and as these become worn they can be replaced easily.

A six-inch strip of pegboard centred above the desk, has holders for a pair of lamps. This leaves the desk surface free for books, pencils and material necessary for school work.

Installing a pencil sharpener on the edge of the desk saves the student steps, and also reduces the chances of his becoming distracted from his work when he leaves his chair.

From the decorative standpoint, the bulletin board strip repeats the horizontal lines of the adjacent bookshelves, and visually helps to confine the corner, making it more of a separate area.

Map above is tacked right to the wall, possible because a textured cloth on paper backing covers the wall, so that there is no cracking or splitting when nails are inserted.

Jack Beastall Advises:

Jack

The idea of having a grape vine fascinates many gardeners and numerous questions on planting and culture are received at this time of year.

One point to be remembered is that our climate is borderline for grape growing.

The Mediterranean (or Italian) varieties, the hybrids of which are grown in California, will not thrive in the open garden here.

There are, however, several good hybrids between the Mediterranean and the American wild grape that will produce luscious table grapes in nine years out of ten.

Another point is that successful production of fruit depends on two or three years of careful training to build the framework of the vine, followed by correct and rather drastic pruning every year after production starts.

The art of training and pruning has to be studied and the home gardener is advised to obtain books on grape growing from the public or provincial libraries, also the commercial bulletins on grape growing in British Columbia put out by the B.C. department of agriculture.

THREE TERMS

Only when one has a vine growing in the garden can one understand the basic instructions on pruning.

Three terms common to grapes are trunk, arms (or rods) and canes.

The trunk is the main stem (or two stems) extending upwards from the root, and at intervals along this trunk are the arms or rods growing to the right and left.

From the arms come the annual canes which bear the fruit clusters.

Sometimes the trunk (or trunks) is trained horizontally a few inches above ground level, and the rods trained upwards on wires. In other instances one or two trunks are trained on a wall with the rods limited to cover the space available.

Planting is the most important point at this season, a job to be carefully and thoroughly done since it contributes much to later success.

Vines, as purchased for planting, are two-year-olds, consisting of a stub which is the cut-back growth of the first year, and two or more young growths also shortened for convenience in handling.

On these young growths several growth buds are visible, the lowest of which should be set just at ground level. This means that a grape vine is planted much deeper than any other fruit.

LOT OF GROWTH

Preparing the soil to a depth of two feet is none too much, and in a clay subsoil the prepared area must be large enough to prevent the accumulation of water over winter, or drainage must be provided.

The grape vine makes a lot of growth and therefore needs a quantity of food.

At planting time this is provided by liberally incorporating well rotted compost or rotted manure with good garden soil, and some sand if the soil is inclined to be heavy. Three or four good handsful of bonemeal are added to the bottom 12 inches of prepared soil.

It is sometimes possible to set the vine on an angle under the soil and thus lessen the depth needed in clay subsoil.

The fruits ripen during September and in this area require all the warmth of sun they can obtain at that time of year.

Since the afternoon sun is warmest in September the vine should be located where it will be wide open to the south and west.

BEST VARIETIES

The varieties that do best here outdoors are Fredonia and Campbell's Early (early blue Concord types), Niagara (midseason white), and Portland (early white). Thompson Seedless is an excellent white but needs a sheltered warm location which is often difficult to find.

The same applies to Pearl of Csaba, but both of these can be grown successfully in a well-ventilated greenhouse without heat.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Finish the planting of all hardy bulbs to flower in spring.

Those less hardy can be planted either in a raised, sunny bed of gravelly soil, or in pots or cans to be kept in coldframe over winter.

Tie-in and secure climbing roses and other climbers.

Much damage is done to this type of plant by wind pulling at the growths, and even loosening the roots in the soil.

The compost pile should be growing rapidly, and can be improved by adding layers of seaweed, chicken manure, a little good soil, a sprinkling of general fertilizer.

The laying of sawdust paths along the section of vegetable garden where it is necessary to go daily during winter will make the task of gathering or digging the vegetables much more pleasant.

By spring the sawdust may be dug into the general area.

Top dress peach trees by walls, and other fruits in narrow borders where soil fertility may be limited.

When planting several fruit trees, make a rough plan in the garden notebook, printing in the varietal name of each tree in the appropriate place. This saves confusion later, and arguments with the family.

HOMES and GARDENS

Winter Soil Must Be Moist —Or Else!

If you have prepared your miracle box of soil for winter use, remember to keep it moist. Drying of the soil will kill certain micro-organisms or render the bacteria inactive.

It will come in handy later for winter gardening. Place the box under cover anywhere or top it with a plastic sheet.

Make your mixture one-third loam, one-third compost or leaf mold and one-third peat moss or sand.

When Setting Out Rhubarb Plants Remember Not to Be Too Greedy

At least three plants of rhubarb will satisfy the needs of the average family. When setting out new plants now, incorporate manure into the soil pit.

On old established plants, give a heavy dressing of manure. Remember to use plant markers. Renew the plant labels which are still legible. Later during the long winter evenings, replenish your supply by an idea submitted.

DANNY THOMAS

Comic Tells What Makes People Laugh

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Danny Thomas hopes to answer the question: "What makes people laugh?," in a television special Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5.

His NBC-TV one-shot appearance will star Martha Raye, Tim Conway, Bill Cosby, the Three Stooges and Spike Jones Jr., and his dad's City Slickers.

"We're tackling the anatomy of humor," Danny said after pre-taping the program. "There is something for everybody — humor in music, stand-up monologue, slapstick and the whole works."

Still, "What Does Make People Laugh?"

"Well, probably the most universal element in laughter is the man in trouble. The guy who has bungled something. Charlie Chaplin was the greatest exponent of this humor.

"Next, I'd say, is the about-face situation. You take something sublime and make it funny. By that I mean you take a serious subject with a serious goal, then switch it to something ridiculous.

FUNNIEST THING

"But maybe the funniest thing of all is a pie in the face. People all over the world laugh at that. And Soupy Sales has built an entire career on it. Every comedian I know loves to be hit in the kisser with a pie. It's a sure-fire laugh.

"Satire, well done, also makes people laugh. But it's tricky.

"The secret is to hold a mirror up to the audience so they can see that the comedian's problems are exactly the same as their own. If they can see themselves in the situation, they are ready to laugh.

"A perfect example of that is the poor slob who has a flat tire only to discover he doesn't have a jack in the trunk of his car. It's the old slow burn. Everybody can relate to experiences of his own.

"But a comedian can find humor in everything — life, death, sex, religion, racial jokes, everything. My uncle Tounoos was barred from funerals and wakes because he got so many laughs."

OWN BRAND

Danny's own brand of humor is based on the about-face technique. He takes a perfectly normal situation and builds to a surprise ending. It worked on his television series for 10 years.

"I added a little something else to it, too," he said. "When the obvious was about to happen, I'd stall for a single beat, just long enough to make the situation as incongruous as possible.

"Personally, I think getting laughs is the easiest thing in the world. I can't understand some of the comedians who claim it is hard and difficult work.

"Most people are anxious to laugh. My strong point in night clubs is simple story telling. I get the audience involved in what I'm telling them and then spring the surprise ending. So far, thank God, they laugh it up pretty good."

SELL CHILDREN'S TV

A 52-program series of The Friendly Giant has been sold by CBC-TV to an educational television network in the United States.

'The Gift' to Remember

Poetic Documentary Recalls Hiroshima Thursday at 10 p.m.

Twenty years ago this year an atomic bomb fell on Hiroshima and the world was changed forever. On Thursday—Remembrance Day—the CBC TV network will present an hour-long documentary about a Japanese girl who survived the holocaust.

Entitled The Gift, the program will be seen at 10 p.m. on Channel 2.

Filmed entirely in Japan, The Gift was written, directed and produced by Ron Kelly, and features superb camerawork by Grahame Woods and a sensitive musical score by Harry Sommers.

The subject of The Gift is strikingly attractive Yaseko Sanjo and, as she tells her story, the camera provides a poetic visual accompaniment. We learn that she was just three years old when the bomb killed her parents and brother and that following the blast she grew up with relations in Omura, a village near Kyoto.

But as she grew older, Yaseko became aware of a stigma she bore—in the eyes of her countrymen she was contaminated by the bomb, not just for a few days or weeks, but all her life.

"We began to think of it as some kind of curse, some kind of fate brought against us," she says.

Today Yaseko works in a Tokyo bar, trying to forget her dreadful past. The documentary follows her on her first trip home to Hiroshima and all the memories it evokes.

"It's always rankled me the way people extol the virtues of war," says producer Kelly, "but it seemed to me that Hiroshima was an act of war about which everyone must feel guilty. There's no way of looking at it as an heroic exploit on anyone's part, and I felt that I wanted to do something about it in those terms."

Field of Sacrifice

Fields of Sacrifice, a film tribute to the Canadian dead of two world wars, will be presented Thursday, at 11:15 a.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

The film recalls battles which took the lives of more than 100,000 Canadians. It visits military cemeteries and battlefields from Hong Kong to Sicily.

Normandy, Dieppe, Ortona and Ypres are a few of the fields of sacrifice. Scenes from the action in those areas recall the bravery of those who served.

Fields of Sacrifice shows how the memory of the Canadian dead is honored in those countries in which they fell. It gives renewed and vital meaning to the spirit of remembrance to those who lived through the time and to those who are too young to remember the sacrifice that was made on behalf of humanity.

A National Film Board production, Fields of Sacrifice has won awards at the Columbus Film Festival, the Victoria International Film Festival, and the Canadian Film Awards.

THE CBC AND TV NETWORKS ARE SCHEDULED TO BEGIN ELECTION COVERAGE AT 7 P.M. MONDAY. THEY WILL REMAIN ON THE AIR UNTIL THE FINAL RESULTS HAVE BEEN TABULATED.

Citizenship Test

A good deal of soul-searching may be in store for viewers of "The National Citizenship Test" Tuesday at 10 p.m. on Channel 7.

"What we're trying to do," said CBS News executive producer Av Westin, "is provoke audience thought about basic attitudes toward American law, government and man's responsibility to his fellow man."

The CBS News special broadcast, like "The National Drivers' Test" last May 24, will test viewers with a variety of questions and illustrations.

"Viewers not only will be giving their instant reactions to specific questions," Westin said, "but we hope they'll find themselves thinking about their lives at the same time they're scoring their store of information about our American heritage, their rights and the rights of others."

A number of different methods will be used to introduce the questions, including dramatizations, film animations and actual news film. Dramatic vignettes were specially filmed with actors portraying people involved in robbery, search, arrest, jail, prison and other situations.

Besides the resources of CBS News, Westin has sought advice from a number of sources in preparing "The National Citizenship Test."

Foremost, all aspects of the test have been approved by a Board of Advisers consisting of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey; Senate Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen; a constitutional expert, Prof. Paul A. Freund of Harvard University, and Prof. Henry Graff of Columbia University, an authority on American history. CBS News, in co-operation with the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N.J., prepared the questions.

Additionally, assistance in formulating questions was received from the International Association of Chiefs of Police and the National District Attorneys Association.

Westin said production of "The National Citizenship Test" will continue up to broadcast time in order to assure the timeliness of certain questions which will seek to ascertain the attitudes of the American people toward key headline questions. This means that a national test sample will also have to be done as close to broadcast time as possible.

On the broadcast, CBS News Correspondent Mike Wallace will give viewers the test-sample results, as well as results of tests given on the air to three specially selected groups: members of Congress and their wives in Washington, Democratic and Republican Party workers in Philadelphia, and high-school students in St. Louis. CBS News Correspondent Harry Reasoner will ask the questions.

Richest of Races, The 440 Sprint Telecast Today

A horse race that pays the winner at a rate of nearly $10,000 a second, the All-American Quarter Horse Futurity, will be covered on NBC Sports in Action tonight at 5:30 on Channel 5.

Co-featured will be a report on the emergene of "club" football at colleges that have dropped the game as a big-time intercollegiate sport.

Jim Simpson is host of the program and Lou Boda is the reporter. Stuart Schulberg is the producer.

Screen star Robert Mitchum, a breeder of and recognized authority on quarter horses, serves as an expert analyst for the All-American Quarter Horse Futurity at Ruidoso Downs, N.M.

The race is a sprint of 440 yards, and the total purse is $419,460 for the 12 horses competing, making it the richest purse for any horse race in the world. The winner's share is $192,720, and the winning jockey collects nearly $20,000 for about 20 seconds of riding time.

The All-American Futurity is the major classic in the field of quarter horse racing, and draws racing enthusiasts from throughout the nation to the small New Mexico town. The 1965 race is the seventh running of the event.

"NBC Sports in Action" cameras also record preparations for the race, and are present at one of the principal features of the meeting—the auction of yearlings, some selling for as high as $37,000, that will be eligible to run for the glittering purse next year.

The ancestors of the current crop of quarter horses were the original American race horses and derived their name from the first "race tracks," which were the main streets of early American towns and which were about a quarter-mile long.

Sturdy and compact, compared with the thoroughbreds that monopolize contemporary racing, they are most familiar as the chief means of transportation for the shows, and are considered the fastest horses in the world over a short distance.

In the "club" football segment of the program, Jim Simpson reports on the phenomenon of student-sponsored grid teams at schools that have given up the sport on a major basis. Documenting the report will be films of the New York University "club" squad in games with Fordham and Georgetown.

Moment of Impact

"It was cold and snowing lightly; darkness was coming and the floodlights were turned on. One of the engines had just been found about 30 feet down in the mucky clay soil . . . a monstrous lump of impacted and twisted metal.

"Though the surface was frozen, the clay 30 feet down was relatively warm, and this thing lay there in the dusk, steaming in the cold air. I thought, migawd, they start with that and have to find out what went wrong?"

Those were the first impressions of CBC television producer Jim Carney as he stood at the site of Canada's worst air disaster almost two years ago. His engrossing report on what did go wrong with TCA Flight 831 will be seen Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6 when Document presents At The Moment of Impact.

"I've tried to avoid the morbid aspects of the subject without losing sight of the fact that 118 people did die, suddenly and appallingly," says Carney. "The course of the investigation itself had more than enough emotional power and drama.

"It was like a large and complicated detective story where one fitted part against part, where a shred of evidence here corroborated a shred of evidence there; and where a gradual building of the evidence led the investigators implacably toward a solution."

The first investigators who arrived at the sceen, 12 miles north of Montreal, had almost nothing to start with. The giant DC-8F airliner had literally disintegrated, leaving behind huge mounuds of torn earth, pockets of flame flickering in the darkness, and the occasional glimmer of a small piece of metal. The plane carried no flight recorder—the device used by most British and American airlines to record the second-by-second performance of the flight.

Recovery of the wreckage began the next morning, and continued on a 24-hour-a-day basis for the next several weeks. The muddy clay, full of bits of metal and human remains was trucked to an adjacent area where workers with rakes, shovels and bare hands shifted through it. Then, like a giant jigsaw puzzle, the wreckage was painstakingly reassembled in a hangar at Montrel's Dorval airport.

"But after several months of intensive work, the investigators knew a hell of a lot about the last few minutes of Flight 831," says Carney. "They knew how it had hit the ground and at what speed it was travelling, and by this time witness statements had been correlated — people who had heard the plane in trouble and had seen its lights."

The investigation culminated in the release of a final report in June of this year. Hon. George S. Challies had been appointed by order-in-council to "inquire into and to report upon the circumstances surrounding the crash . . . on the 29th of November, 1963, when on a flight from Montreal to Toronto, with loss of life of all the occupants, i.e. the crew of seven and 111 passengers."

He is survived by one daughter Mrs. R. (Doris) Oliver, Victoria; one son, Ronald Preece, Victoria; one sister, Mabel Preece, in England; 4 grandchildren. Mr. Preece was a member of the Britannia Branch No. 7, R.C.L.
Rev. Canon J. Rogers will conduct the funeral service in the Thomson and Irving Funeral Chapel on Tuesday November 9th at 1:30 p.m. followed by cremation. Flowers gratefully declined. Donations to the Cancer Fund would be appreciated.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors and the Victoria City Police in appreciation of the many kindnesses, floral offerings and messages of sympathy during our recent bereavement of a loving son and brother.—Mrs. S. Kenny and family.

We wish to say thank you to all our friends and relatives, for their kind messages of sympathy and the beautiful floral tributes in memory of our dead Mother, Mrs. Barbara Stange. Also a special thank you to Dr. Rotgons and the sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital. — The Stange family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

du TEMPLE — In loving memory of my husband, George, who passed away Nov. 7, 1961.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him dear.
—Sadly missed by his loving wife Alice du Temple and family.

145 BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Yes, this valuable corner should be open for business. Can you imagine what can be done with a 2-acre corner plot with three road frontages—AND ONE OF IT ON TRANS-CANADA HIGHWAY—and a very heavy traffic count. This property already is partially used for a 24-pad trailer park, has propane tanks for retail gas sales, has a 4,000 sq. ft. manufacturing or storage building (could be used as repair or woodworking shop for prefabing houses or trailers), has a cement swimming pool, has a trailer home and annex affording about 1,000 sq. ft. of living space, has a small office building and also 4 vacation trailers, truck trailer hauler, equipment and tools. This prime location at a busy intersection is just 6 minutes from Town and Country and could serve many, many thousands of people. Why not put up a drive-in restaurant, grocery, building supply, hardware, car sales, motorcycle sales, trailer or boat sales. Possibilities are unlimited. Full Price $49,500. (P.S. The vendor will agree to sell all or part of the 6 lots in this 2-acre holding). FRANK WILLS, J. H. Whittome & Co. Limited, 388-4271.

FREDERICK NORRIS
2-4 P.M. SATURDAY

Best family home I've seen in a long time. The rooms are arranged so there is no through-traffic into your formal living area. There is a den for Dad, a family room, opening onto patio and back yard for children, a kitchen that has good eating area, a large living room and dining room with fireplace and solid mahogany panelling. Three large bedrooms are away from living area entirely. Plenty of storage area, cupboards and basement that can be developed into recreation area or more bedrooms. Located in Upper Lansdowne. Price $33,900. WILF DAVIS, 388-4271 or Res. 656-3276.

This beautiful, 12-year-old home is offered for the first time and is immaculate. The lovely, large living room looks out to the Olympics and sea over our lovely city. There is a formal dining room which looks over a garden that is Empress-like, with complete seclusion afforded by hedges, trees and shrubs of many varieties. This is a Prairie-man's paradise, believe me, and you should see the rose garden. The large room in the basement has a fireplace and is suitable for a spare bedroom or family room, and the remainder of the basement is spotlessly clean. ROCKLAND TUDOR LEADED WINDOWS

Just one dollar more would give us a round figure but on this brand new listing you could afford to pay much more and still be proud of this once in a lifetime purchase. Many words such as elegant, quality, aristocratic could be used to describe this delightful Tudor but let us illustrate some of the outstanding features. The exterior offers the perfect setting for the Tudor style with its natural treed setting. Step inside and see your reflection in the golden oak floors which guide you from the cheerful entrance into an entertainment-sized living room with warm central fireplace and leaded bay window. How often you have insisted on a separate dining room that will provide the right amount of space for your special furniture and invited guests. A housewife will relish the bright cheerful kitchen with its abundant supply of cabinets. A glimpse of seaview from the modern sundeck will provide many hours of relaxing pleasure. Two twin-sized bedrooms contain the magic feature—spacious closets. The concrete basement is well-designed with area for additional accommodation and the latest in utilities. Firm Employs Children, Charges IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Indian agent's refusal to investigate charges that a lumber company is employing under-age Indian children will be protested by the British Columbia Federation of Labor.

The charges were disclosed here Thursday by secretary Pat O'Neal in an address to the labor body's convention.

He said the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) complained in a letter to authorities about the employing of Indian children by a northern B.C. lumber company.

He read a letter from R. M. McIntyre, Indian superintendent at Burns Lake, which he said denied the request for an investigation.

Mr. O'Neal said a portion of the letter read:

PLACEMENT

"One of the objects of our department is the placement of Indian labor into industries adjacent to Indian Reserves. We do this to help improve the economic and social conditions of the reserves and we have had excellent co-operation from this firm . . . since we are encouraging Indians to work, regardless of age, I have not investigated this matter, nor do I intend to."

Mr. O'Neal said the federation's executive would ask federal authorities whether this

JUST FLAP YOUR WINGS AND FLY, SAYS BUILDER

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet inventor claimed today anyone can flap the wings of his new flying machine and soar like a bird. Ivan Vinogradov, 73, said he hopes to have the machine ready next year. Tass news agency described the machine as "a monoplane with wings mounted on the frame of a scooter or motorcycle at the level of the pilot's shoulders."

TRISTAN LOSES LURE

Islanders Pining For Big City Life

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters)—Islanders on lonely, wave-lashed Tristan da Cunha in the South Atlantic are pining for the modern, bustling life they tasted in Britain, it was reported today.

Two already are on their way back to the bright lights they left in 1963 and others plan to leave for Britain in April, the reports said.

The entire population of the island first came to Britain after a volcano destroyed their homes in October, 1961.

The men exchanged the quiet, raw life of Tristan for jobs in highly mechanized Britain. The women slowly found their way around the intricacies of shopping.

But for most of the islanders, the television, the noise, the crowds and the complications were too much and they were homesick for Tristan.

In a secret ballot, most of the islanders voted to return to their volcano-shattered homes and in March, 1962, an advance party of 52 sailed to prepare the way.

In October, 1963, the main party returned to the island, along with a six-months supply of food, potatoes for planting a new crop and 175 chickens to restock Tristan's hen houses.

They left behind four girls who married Britons and 14 islanders who preferred their new homes.

Of the 250 islanders who returned, a married couple and their baby daughter stayed on Tristan for three days and then headed back to Britain.

Jury to Get $1.5 Million Libel Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York Supreme Court justice refused Friday to dismiss the $1,500,000 invasion of privacy suit by Russian Prince Felix Youssoupoff against the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Judge Wilfred A. Waltemade said the matter would have to go before the jury of nine men and three women hearing the case.

He was acting on a motion by Carleton G. Eldridge Jr., defence lawyer.

Youssoupoff, 79, has based his suit on a Jan. 5, 1963, telecast by CBS of a play, If I Should Die, which deals with the assassination of the Mad Monk, Rasputin, in Youssoupoff's St. Petersburg Palce in Russia Dec. 16, 1916.

Justice Waltemade said: "We deal, not with a public official, but with a private citizen whose individual rights should not be the subject of public retaliation."

The suit was not founded on Youssoupoff's having been a co-conspirator in Rasputin's assassination, the judge said, but that CBS breached his right of privacy in that the broadcast "contained fictionalized dialogue and actions in recreating" his role in the historical event.

The CBS lawyer maintained that the Princess Irina, Youssoupoff's wife, was used as a bait or lure to bring Rasputin to her husband's palace and to his death.

Eldridge said television enjoyed the same rights as their communications media, such as newspapers, and added: "Today's news is tomorrow's history. The story of the assassination is in the public domain."

Lawyer Herbert R. Zelenko described the telecast as a "sex drama," which smeared the prince as a "panderer."

The case will go to the jury Monday.

'Adam, Fallen Man'

Scriptural readings on Adam and Eve and Cain and Abel are examined in Christian Science church services this week. The subject is "Adam and Fallen Man."

The Golden Text is from Ecclesiastes: "Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions."

CYC Official Steps Down

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Forand, a graduate student of the University of Montreal, made public a letter Friday in which he submits his resignation from the organizing committee of the Company of Young Canadians because of the Liberal government's policy on Viet Nam.

In his letter, addressed to Prime Minister Pearson, Mr. Forand said Canada's support of the United States' operation in Viet Nam is incompatible with the objectives of the Company of Young Canadians, similar to the U.S. Peace Corps.

Sharpe Named To Sixth Term

Dick Sharpe has been elected commodore of Esquimalt Squadron, Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association, for the sixth consecutive year.

Other officers named were: Commander Charles R. Miko, vice-commodore; Lieut. David Messham, rear-commodore; Lieut. Don Hope, fleet captain; Russell Jaffs, secretary; Lieut. Leonard Goodman, treasurer; Ben Stevenson, house chairman; Lieut.-Cmdr. Peter Cox, foreshore chairman; Frank Heaton, entertainment chairman; Percy Thurlow, grounds chairman, and Alfred Powell, member at large.

NDP LEADER WILL STAY IN PROVINCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, who moved to British Columbia after losing Regina City riding in the 1962 federal election, said Friday night he will remain in politics in his adopted province for the rest of his life.

At an evening rally Mr. Douglas criticized a newspaper editorial which he said had suggested he would move somewhere else after the redistribution of federal electoral ridings.

The NDP leader said when he and his wife came here at the invitation of the riding association they made "a compact until death do us part."

FESTIVAL MAY MOVE TO CITY

The Vancouver International Film Festival may pack up its film cans next year and move to the McPherson Playhouse in Victoria.

Festival president Charles Marshall, who lives here at 2612 Victor, said today Victoria may have a "better climate" than Vancouver in which to stage an international film festival.

Mr. Marshall said the move to Victoria is being contemplated largely on the basis of a request for the festival last year by former McPherson Playhouse manager Bob Ellison.

'UNCO-OPERATIVE'

"If Vancouver loses out to Victoria it will be because of the unco-operative attitude of the city fathers there," he said.

He was referring to Vancouver city council's refusal of a festival request for a grant.

The festival showed an operating loss of $3,000 this year and asked the city to cover the amount.

The Victoria request last year was for the Vancouver Festival to extend itself to the McPherson Playhouse.

The request was refused at the time because the international control of film festivals does not allow satellite showings.

The move this time would be made lock, stock and barrel, said Mr. Marshall.

Victoria city council has previously supported a non-graded international film festival and last year co-sponsored the Beacon Hill Park summer cinema with the National Film Board of Canada.

Medicare Statements Under Fire

CALGARY (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Friday night cabinet ministers have been making contradictory statements about the proposed government medicare plan.

While Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was telling political meetings that the plan was a universal one — everyone must be included in it whether they wished to or not—other cabinet ministers were saying this was not so.

"It makes me ashamed of my fellow politicians," said Mr. Thompson.

The Social Credit leader spoke to about 400 persons in the Jubilee Auditorium here. It was his last speech of the election campaign. Today Mr. Thompson visits the Banff, Alta., riding before attending a wedding in Rocky Mountain House. He returns to Red Deer later and will remain there in his farm home for the election results Monday.

Skydivers Protest Bid To Control Activities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency was warned Tuesday by a parade of crew-cut witnesses that a proposed rule banning parachuting from controlled airspace would wipe out the fast-growing sport of "skydiving."

The rule has been requested by the Air Transport Association, representing the scheduled airlines, and the Air Line Pilots Association.

Both organizations expressed fears that a major air disaster is possible unless sports chutists are kept out of airspace used by commercial planes. They called for a ban on skydiving in controlled areas and in off-airway space used frequently by airliners.

The FAA Thursday heard from about 15 members of the Parachute Club of America. All of them denounced the proposed restriction as illegal, unnecessary and a threat to the sport's growing existence.

FASTING for ten days to protest U.S. policies in Viet Nam is Yale University student Kenneth C. Kusterer, 20, who has not eaten solid food since Tuesday night. (AP Wirephoto)

U.K. HANGING

Christian Burial Ordered

LONDON (AP) — The body of Timothy Evans, whose hanging led to abolition of the death penalty in Britain, will be exhumed and given a Christian burial, the home office announced Friday.

Evans' body will be removed from the exercise yard of London's Pentonville prison probably next week and delivered to his 66-year-old mother.

Evans was hanged in 1950 after being convicted of killing his infant daughter. He also was charged with killing his wife but was not tried on that count.

Evans said the killer was John Reginald Halliday Christie, a mild-mannered London clerk who shared a two-family house with Evans. Three years after Evans was hanged, Christie was exposed as a mass murderer and admitted he killed Mrs. Evans, but would not admit killing the baby.

Evans' case more than any other lay behind a Commons vote last month to abolish hanging and substitute life imprisonment as the penalty for murder. The decision becomes law Tuesday when Queen Elizabeth gives her formal assent.

Gold Rush Film Released Soon

Distribution is also planned in the United States and Britain through the National Film Board and the Canadian government travel bureau.

The film tells of the 150 overlanders who crossed the prairies to the Cariboo gold fields in 1862, and travelled with their animals by raft down the Fraser River to Quesnel and the North Thompson River to Kamloops.

It was directed and filmed by Wilf Gray of the government photographic branch in Victoria and is one of a continuing series of productions aimed at depicting the life of the people of British Columbia.

Loyalists Seek Young Members In New Plan

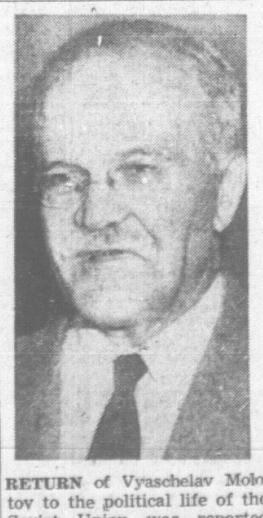

Victoria branch of the United Empire Loyalists has received a new lease on life, says Col. J. W. D. Symonds, president.

"We are going after young people to increase our present membership of 45."

Col. Symons said the rejuvenated branch plans to sponsor scholarships and various competitions to promote interest in Canada's history.

Mrs. O. D. Wilson was elected vice-president of the branch, with Miss Eleanor Watson, secretary-treasurer, and Barclay Fisher and R. P. Wilmot, counsellors.

The branch will meet on the first Thursday of each month in the Empress Hotel at 7:30 p.m.

RETURN of Vyaschelav Molotov to the political life of the Soviet Union was reported Friday by East European diplomats. After eight years in the doghouse Molotov is reported working behind the scenes as Soviet Premier Kosygin's personal adviser on foreign affairs.

EXERCISE SOCKEYE

Good Guys Win War On Sandspit Beach

The manoeuvre was designed to test amphibious landing capabilities of Canada's three forces.

The combined landing warded off an invasion by the imaginary nation of Fantasia comprised of the second battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry of Edmonton.

The exercise began at midnight Monday when troops and Pacific command warships Stettler, Antigonish and St. Croix were dispatched to the area.

Turning point in the war occurred Wednesday when an enemy ambush backfired and four prisoners were captured.

The prisoners were interrogated and the counter-attackers learned important enemy positions and tactics.

The good guys, men of second battalion, Queen's Own Rifles from Calgary, received naval gunfire support from HMCS Stettler and air support from a T-33 jet trainer which bombed and strafed the area.

Blank ammunition was used in all fighting.

Director of the manoeuvre was Major-General J. M. Rockingham, general officer commanding Western Command.

He was assisted by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer Pacific Coast, and Air Commodore R. C. Weston, senior air officer, Paciifc.

NEAR LEGISLATURE

Gov't Shelves Plan To Block High-Rise

The cost of buying properties adjoining those now held for government expansion is too high, Works Minister W. N. Chant indicated Friday.

Recently, James Mace of Mace Homes and Investments Ltd., applied to city hall for rezoning of a block bounded by Young, Michigan and Toronto Streets for a multi-storey apartment.

The city approved the application but it was pointed out at the time that the province might negotiate for the land or land options held by the firm.

Mr. Chant said B.C. was willing to negotiate but "the price seemed to be too high." He added, "We'll let the matter stand in abeyance."

He said he felt the city was wrong in permitting large permanent buildings to encroach on the legislative precinct because in a few years the government building will need more space.

Johnson Agrees To Withdraw Nomination

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—Francis X. Morrissey of Boston, whose nomination to be a U.S. district court judge stirred a storm in the Senate, asked President Johnson Friday to withdraw his nomination. Johnson said he would comply.

Morrissey, a long-time friend and political ally of the Kennedy family, told Johnson in a letter received Friday: "To prevent further anguish to my family and further harassment to you and to those who have supported me so loyally, I respectfully request that my nomination to the federal bench be withdrawn."

"I shall always be grateful for the confidence you showed in nominating me, but, notwithstanding the merits of that nomination, I do not want to be the cause of diverting your time and energies from the important programs of your great administration."

A municipal court judge in Boston, Morrissey has been close to the head of the Kennedy and the rest of the family. Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) backed Morrissey's qualifications, and Kennedy wound up by asking in an emotion-packed Senate speech that the nomination be re-submitted.

25-54 Age Group Main Voting Force

OTTAWA (CP) — This time they are casting a slightly smaller shadow but people in the 30-year age span from 25 to 54 still form the decisive voting force for Monday's federal election, as they have in every countrywide vote since 1921, the first year for universal suffrage at 21.

They comprise 63.5 per cent of the people of voting age, their lowest point since 1921 when they hit their high of 68.6 per cent. The previous low was 64.1 per cent in 1941 and their proportion in the 1963 election was 64.2 per cent.

Since voters' lists for federal elections don't show ages of eligibles, these proportions are worked out from census reports and population estimates of various age groups.

DIFFER WIDELY

There are wide differences between number of eligibles on voters' lists and the population in the voting age group, 21 and older.

Details announced this week on the latest available population estimate shows 10,976,500 Canadians 21 or older last June 1. The preliminary voters list for Monday's election listed 10,191,825 eligible voters. Final official figures won't be known for months, but revisions may bring the total to around 10,250,000.

Jean Davies Awarded Bursary

Jean Davies, 19, of 372 Maywell Place, was recently awarded a $50 bursary by Victoria West Parent-Teacher Association.

Each year the PTA group awards a bursary to a former pupil of Victoria West School who is attending University of Victoria.

More Eskimos Set For Naden Course

Hopes that young men from Canada's northland might come to the RCN's Pacific Command for boatbuilding courses "for at least several years" were expressed here Thursday.

Commenting on the success of this year's pilot project was George O'Neill, district superintendent of vocational training for the northern affairs department.

He arrived here this week to meet RCN personnel who were involved in a recently-completed 26-week boatbuilding course for a group of Eskimos and Indians.

Mr. O'Neill praised the boatbuilders and the men who instructed them.

The craft — launched a week ago—was constructed in HMCS Naden's Fleet School.

The department official announced another group of six to eight Eskimos will arrive here early in 1966 for another similar course.

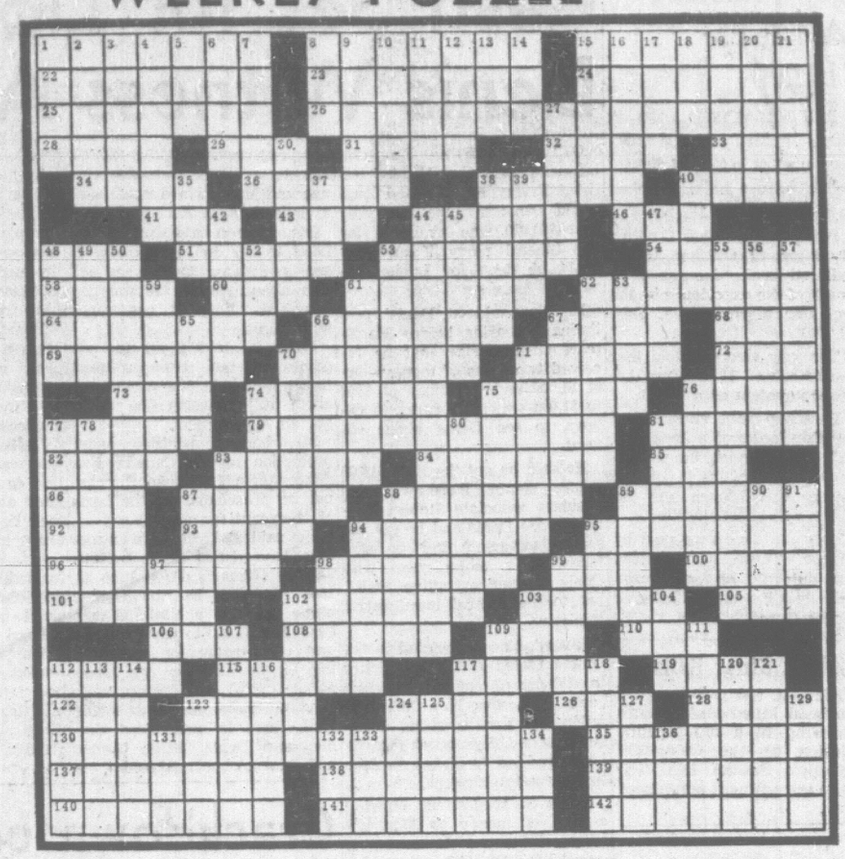

Mr. O'Neill said course graduates have better chances of employment in their Arctic home regions.

STORK PLAYS A TRICK

Visible or invisible, a wall is no barrier to Mr. Stork. This intrepid fellow, above, will deposit his precious cargo in the perambulator at right before your eyes—that is, if you will let him. Here's how: Hold diagram at eye level. Fix your gaze on wall at center. Now bring the diagram closer to you. Presto! Mr. Stork's through wall and has completed another successful delivery.

YOU MUST FIGHT CHANGE

In a tray of old nickels and two-cent pieces on display in the window of the Old Curiosity Shop each nickel is worth as many cents as there are two-cent pieces, and each two-cent piece is worth as many cents as there are nickels in the tray. The entire trayful is worth two dollars and sixteen cents. How many nickels and how many two-cent pieces does the tray contain?

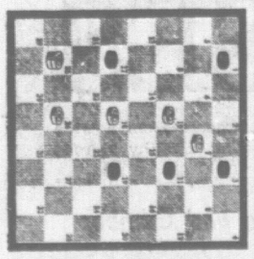

Answer: 18 nickels and 6 2-cent pieces.

DIVIDE A FARM

A farmer has one thousand acres of land which he wishes to divide among his four sons so that the second son will receive twice as much land as the first son, the third son three times as much as the first and the fourth son four times as much as the first. How many acres of land would each of the four sons receive under this arrangement?

It's all for nothing, or all for naught, is not a very pleasant thought. But here, by just a few moves sought a smashing victory is slyly wrought.

White is to move first and win in five moves.

Hopper's solution: White moves 26-32. Black jumps 17-26. White moves 10-5 and Black jumps 1 to 10 (or 3 to 10). When White 15-14. Black jumps 10 to 17. and White king moves 25 to 21 and after Black takes 3 to 10. White king captures Black 21 to 14 to 7 to 16 to 25 to 30 and wins.

DOUBLE OR NOTHING

Double this number and you get exactly 54 more than the number. Quick now, what is the number?

No fair peeking below.

JUST WHO WINS?

In the contest of their sorority for subscriptions to the college paper, Eleanor topped Dorothy. Best score was 40 subscriptions. This was 28 more than the bottom tally. Josephine beat Pearl, whose score was just half of Eleanor's. There were 100 subscriptions sold in all.

PUT IT ON PAPER?

On a sheet of paper draw a large square and divide into a nest of nine squares of equal sizes. Underneath it write the following numbers: ½, ½, ½, 1, 1, 1, 1½, 1½, 1½. Now, arrange these numbers in the nine squares so that the total of the three numbers in each vertical, diagonal and horizontal row totals three.

Solution: First row—1, 1, ½; third row—½, 1½, 1½; second row—1½, 1, ½; third row—½, 1½, 1½.

TAKE FIGURING

Smith, Brown, Jones and Williams had dinner together the other night. When they parted, each of them, by mistake, was wearing the hat belonging to one other member of the party and the coat belonging to another. The man who took Williams' hat took Jones' coat. The hat taken by Jones belonged to the owner of the coat taken by Williams. Smith took Brown's hat.

FOR PUSHOVERS

Try this at an outdoor party: Divide guests into teams. Pair up members of teams according to size. Rivals stand facing each other with toes touching. Palms of both hands also touch at the sides at chest level. At the word "go" opponents push each others' hands until one is forced to step back. Players who force their opponents backward, are, of course, the winners.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

Last week's lull in new issues has been followed by a considerable spate this week, and it seems as if this will shortly develop into a regular Niagara when, among others, the 13 Malay States will each issue a complete new series of definitives with values up to the $5.00.

★ ★ ★

Of major interest at the moment is the appearance of the I.C.Y. omnibus series for the Crown Colonies. There are 31 sets (or 32 if you include the extra set for the New Hebrides Condominium inscribed in French).

The design, common to all, shows two hands clasped in friendship, chosen by the United Nations to symbolize International Co-operation Year. In a tablet at the right is a portrait of the Queen.

However, there are three exceptions to this latter feature—Brunei's portrait shows its Sultan, the Federation of Arabia features its coat-of-arms, while the New Hebrides Condominium depicts the Royal Cypher and Crown.

Each set consists of two stamps, printed in bi-colored lithography. There are no high values, and the series makes a colorful addition to our albums.

★ ★ ★

International Co-operation Year was originally the idea of the late Jawaharlal Nehru who, as far back as 1961, felt that as so much was continually being heard about the disagreements and strife between the nations, it was time to devote some effort to publicize the vast amount of active co-operation that was quietly going on in connection with the U.N. organization.

In 1962 the asembly unanimously adopted a resolution to designate 1965 as International Co-operation Year.

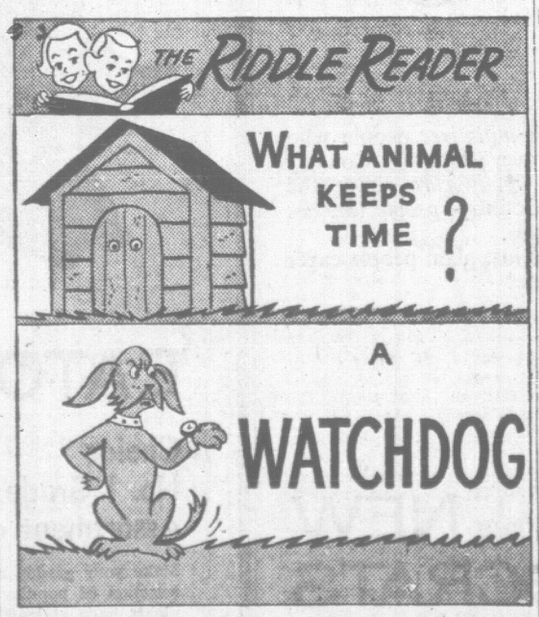

As a means to publicize the idea practically all the member-countries making up the U.N. have brought out issues similar to the colonial stamps mentioned above.

On Oct. 17 Zanzibar marked the development of agriculture in that country with four postage stamps in bi-colored litho which were printed in Leipzig. The 20c and 2sh50c illustrate the planting of rice, while the 30c and 1sh30c show two hands holding rice grains.

The idea of planting rice in Zanzibar did not come into effect until 1963. Previous to that the island's economy depended almost entirely on cloves and, to a lesser extent, copra.

It is hoped to eventually make the country self-supporting as regards the rice crop.

UNKINDEST CUTS BY ROMANS

Hairy Ones Fight Scissor Brigade

ROME (Reuters) — Italian students armed with scissors descended Friday on 15 long-haired foreign beatniks to give them haircuts and a wild fracas developed.

Rush-hour traffic stopped as crowds gathered to stare. Police rushed in to break up the battlers on the picturesque Spanish Steps in the heart of Rome.

Friday, about 30 students attacked the beatniks lounging on the steps—"to teach them a lesson," one said.

After the Tuesday brawl Rome police told some beatniks they had to leave by midnight Friday night—and gave them transportation tickets. The Italian news agency Italia commented:

EYE STRAIN

Your eyes may be tired, sore or red or they may ache. Your eyelids feel heavy. Your head may be aching. All of these may be a result of what we commonly call eye strain.

Eye strain may be caused by improper glasses, improper co-ordination of the two eyes or any one of a large number of eye defects. This common and very troublesome condition can be relieved by the fitting of proper glasses or by visual training or both.

Have your eyes examined at least every two years to avoid eye strain and visual discomfort, and to be sure that you are obtaining maximum visual efficiency.

DEEP FREEZE DAMAGES $110,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A ship's steward has won $100,000 damages in federal district court because he was locked in a meat freezer 2½ hours.

Witnesses testified Ortus Benschop, 43, Oakland, Calif., suffered brain damage as a result of the experience on the freighter Mormacwave, Dec. 18, 1963.

The jury also was told that the father of 11 children became impotent as a result.

Benschop said vibration of the ship loosened a hook that held the door open, the release device on the inside of the freezer was broken and the alarm was short-circuited.

He was discovered by chance. Those who carried him out said he was frozen stiff by the six-to-12-degree temperatures.

Cash Set for Liberals Denis Witness Alleges

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal business agent Guy Masson testified Friday he informed Raymond Denis in June last year that $60,000 was available for the Liberal party if anything could be done for Lucien Rivard.

He also said at Denis' preliminary hearing before Magistrate Glenn Strike that he received two sums of money—one of $1,000 and the other of $800 to $1,000—when he came to Ottawa to see Denis about Rivard.

He said he got the first $1,000 before coming here with his business associate Robert Gignac to see Denis and he got the second payment after he conferred in a motel room with Denis, former executive assistant to the federal immigration minister.

Rivard, since convicted in the United States as the key figure in a huge narcotics smuggling conspiracy, was in a Montreal jail at the time awaiting disposition of a U.S. request that he be extradited to Texas to face the narcotics charges.

Denis is accused of offering a sum of money to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, counsel for the U.S. in the Rivard extradition case, to drop his opposition to bail for Rivard.

A second charge says Denis wilfully tried to obstruct the course of justice by attempting to dissuade Mr. Lamontagne from opposing bail for Rivard.

Mr. Masson said he can't remember whether he told Denis that Gignac showed him a trust company deposit slip for $60,000. Earlier evidence was that Gignac and Mrs. Rivard made such a deposit June 25, 1964.

Mr. Masson said that he had tried to get an appointment to see a Senator Gelinas to tell him about the $60,000 the day after his June 22 conference with Denis.

When he told Denis the appointment had been refused, Denis had said "he would see about it." However, he never got an appointment.

Mr. Masson testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act which means he cannot be prosecuted on the basis of it except for perjury.

He said he and Gignac met Mrs. Rivard and Eddie Lechasseur at Gignac's office June 22, 1964, the day he and Gignac came to the capital. Gignac gave him $1,000 to pay expenses and compensate for interrupting his vacation to see Denis about Rivard, Mr. Masson said.

At a motel in neighboring Hull, Que., he introduced Gignac and Denis. After Gignac withdrew to the next room, he had told Denis that Gignac had informed him of the availability of the $60,000.

He said that Gignac wakened him about 3 a.m., June 23 when leaving for Montreal and dropped an envelope with $800 to $1,000 on his motel room bureau for him.

The purpose of his trip, Mr. Masson said, was to learn from Denis details of the charges against Rivard, possibilities of bail for Rivard and Rivard's chances of being extradited.

Denis had told him extradition was a matter for the justice department, that he didn't know about the Rivard case and that he would try to find out about it.

At a later meeting Denis informed him Rivard's case was "serious" and that bail was not usual in narcotics cases, Mr. Masson said.

After explaining extradition procedures, Denis had said he had never heard of a justice minister refusing to sign extradition papers where a judge had granted an extradition application.

Crackdown on Reds Set by Indonesians

JAKARTA (CP) — President Sukarno told his cabinet ministers today he will take action against the Indonesian Communist party for its involvement in the abortive Oct. 1 coup.

Sukarno did not say what type of action or when it will be taken.

The president's statement was conveyed to reporters by Foreign Minister Subandrio following a four-hour cabinet meeting.

It was the first time Sukarno has promised action against the Communists as a result of the coup attempt, observers said.

The statement aroused speculation that the dissolution of the Communist party is imminent, or that Sukarno will cut the party down to a politically ineffective "rump" led by previously unknown Communists.

This second possibility seems perhaps the more likely in the light of Subandrio's added remark that the president had said his solution will "not change the basis of the Indonesian revolution" which was based on a combination of nationalism, religion and socialism.

But there were 70 victims treated as a result of traffic accidents, an increase of four over the previous month.

The total of 899 persons treated was a drop of 47 over October, 1964, and a decrease of 48 from September of this year.

JERUSALEM (CP) — Premier and Mrs. Jean Lesage of Quebec arrived in Jerusalem today for a two-day visit to Israel.

why not vote for people who are really concerned with where this country is going!

Time after time the old-line politicians have asked us for our votes — full of pious promises and vows of reform. Time after time they've told us that all they're really interested in is the welfare of the Country.

And time after time they've shown us that what really concerns them is their own political welfare and the silly feuds they insist on having with each other. Not to mention the fumbling and bumbling with which we're so familiar by now.

We think this Country deserves to be led by people with initiative; people who are concerned over where this Country is going; who really care about the future of our Country; people who are not just politicians.

Two Seek Re-Election In Central Saanich

MOLLARD
. . . asks third term

Two Central Saanich councillors, Charles W. Mollard and Philip Benn, whose terms of office expires next month, will seek re-election on Dec. 11.

Coun. Mollard, chairman of the finance committee, has served two terms on council. He retired recently as secretary-manager of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association.

Coun. Benn, Brentwood postmaster, has served one term.

Three seats are to be contested. The third is held by Coun. Ray Lamont who has not yet decided if he will run again.

TWO YOUTHS PAY $1,000 TO FIGHT

LADYSMITH—Two Duncan youths were fined heavily Friday following street fighting incidents.

Robert Earl Eckert, 18, was fined a total of $700. He pleaded guilty to charges of assault and obstructing a police officer.

Bolton was also put on a $200 bond to keep the peace for six months.

Gun Found Near Man RCMP Probe Death

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — RCMP are still investigating circumstances of the death of Leonard B. Westlake, 1017 Burdett Ave., Victoria, whose body was found Friday near railroad tracks here.

Constable William Saunders said police are assuming the bullet wound was self-inflicted.

A gun was found near the body.

Constable Saunders said Westlake had no apparent reason to be in the Shawnigan Lake district. No details were known of the dead man's family.

B.C. Not Ready Yet, Claims Indian Agent

Referring to Mr. Campbell's idea to give the provincial government complete jurisdiction over B.C.'s Indians, Mr. Homan said:

"It's a great idea. But I don't think the provinces are informed enough or are ready yet to put their idea into operation."

LITTLE MONEY

With little if any money, no jobs and large families, the Indians are a burden on the community.

No longer eligible for federal welfare assistance once off the reserve, they have to apply for provincial assistance.

Said Mr. Homan, who has been with the Indian Affairs branch the past 19 years:

MAXIMUM ALLOWANCE

"They get the maximum provincial allowance, have televisions and can often buy food in super markets cheaper than in their home village.

"Many of them live in slums that Port Alberni allows to exist. They're no asset to the community or themselves."

Referring to Mr. Campbell's statement that "the fact that they have made this move (to the city) is an indication of a new determination among the Indian people," Mr. Homan said:

"We have this problem every winter. But the Indians have got to learn how to raise their living standards or the people won't tolerate them.

"The citizens of Port Alberni can't be expected to be too pleased if an Indian family throws its fish heads in the back yard."

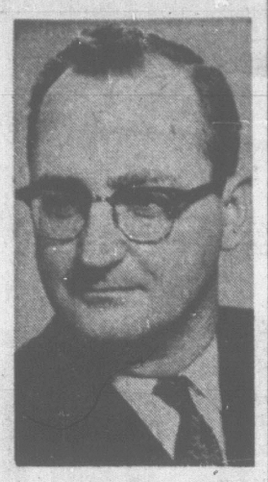

HOUSING NEEDED

He agreed with Mr. Campbell that there is a need for some form of housing development to accommodate Indians who genuinely wish to settle in a city job.

But he does not believe in being too soft on the Indians.

"These people come here on their own volition. Often they have an adequate home and furniture on their reserve.

"Usually they have a school and supplies are sent through each week, either by road or by boat."

He entered no plea. The charge arose from an incident Oct. 28 at the home of Mrs. Claribel Callum, 76, of 8 Esplanade, Ladysmith.

SPCA Asks Doubling Of Grant

NANAIMO—Council has been asked to double its grant to the SPCA.

The society is seeking $6,000 as opposed to the $3,300 asked for last year.

Liaison officer Mrs. R. Creighton said the dog pound cost $7,140 to operate during the year.

Although some of the cost was offset by boarding and adoption fees, the kennel was still run at a loss.

The society is also asking for the bylaws to be updated to enable tickets to be issued to owners of unlicensed dogs.

Five Teenagers Each Fined $25 For Damage

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Five Victoria youths were each fined $25 here Friday and ordered to stay out of the Leechtown area one year.

The boys, aged 16 and 17, had pleaded guilty to wilful damage of a grader machine belonging to Victoria Plywood Company.

Magistrate Lance Heard told them: "It's types like you who spoil public access to private properties."

Victoria Plywood had to send in a truck and pumping unit to make three graders operable after the tires were let down the weekend of Oct. 3.

Social Event Cancelled By Hepatitis Outbreak

Senior Metropolitan Board of Health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said this step would not be necessary.

The area is only considered epidemic because of the small number of people living in the community.

Fifteen cases have been reported on Latoria Road, close to Happy Valley Road.

But while schools remain open, social events have been cancelled.

A church supper, at which most of the food would have been prepared in local homes, has been called off.

Happy Valley is west of Langford.

WILL CANADIAN TROOPS BE FIGHTING IN VIET NAM AFTER THE ELECTION?

WHAT KIND OF SUPPORT FOR THE AMERICAN WAR IN VIET NAM DID PRESIDENT JOHNSON ASK OF PRIME MINISTER PEARSON IN HIS LETTER OF JULY 26th?

At a press conference, Mr. Pearson indicated that Mr. Johnson had asked for token military aid. External Affairs Minister Paul Martin immediately denied this, saying Johnson had only asked for non-military assistance. (Ottawa Journal, July 31.)

WHO IS TELLING THE TRUTH — PEARSON OR MARTIN?

We don't know. The contents of the letter have been suppressed, at President Johnson's insistence. (Ottawa Citizen, Aug. 16.)

WHY IS THERE A REAL POSSIBILITY CANADIAN TROOPS MAY BE SENT TO VIET NAM AFTER THE ELECTION?

Mr. Pearson has declared that, while he has reservations about the conduct of the war in Viet Nam, he supports the purposes and objectives of U.S. military actions in that country. (Press statement, Aug. 14.) So does Conservative leader John Diefenbaker. (Hansard, May 28.)

The longer Americans fight in Viet Nam, the more support they will want from their allies.

WILL A MAJORITY GOVERNMENT IN CANADA RESIST U.S. PRESSURE FOR CANADIAN TROOPS TO FIGHT IN VIET NAM?

BUT ISN'T PRIME MINISTER PEARSON OFFICIALLY OPPOSED TO SENDING TROOPS TO VIET NAM?

Yes. But don't forget . . . Mr. Pearson opposed nuclear arms for Canada—and turned around and accepted them. He then promised to get rid of these weapons by renegotiation—but has failed to do so. Can we trust him not to bow to U.S. pressure again?

WHAT DO OTHER POLITICAL PARTY LEADERS SAY ABOUT THE WAR IN VIET NAM?

John Diefenbaker (PC): "If the United States stands firm in Viet Nam, the casualties may well be colossal. But if the U.S. retreats, then communism will sweep in waves over Southeast Asia" (Ottawa Citizen, May 6.)

T. C. Douglas (NDP): "The attempt to make the war in Viet Nam a holy crusade against communism is an invitation to swallow propaganda wholesale and shut one's eyes to the facts . . . There is a racial revolution going on in the world. This revolution, demanding the right of self-determination, has nothing to do with communism. The history of Viet Nam is the story of a people who have been struggling for self-government for centuries . . . We in this party are prepared to support collective security to resist aggression, but we do not believe any country has the right to use military power to force dictatorships and discredited regimes upon people who are seeking the right of self-determination. We do not want some new form of colonialism masquerading as an anti-communist crusade." (Hansard, May 28.)

HELP END THE WAR IN VIET NAM BY ADVOCATING THE FOLLOWING POLICIES:

(1) A military solution is impossible. The support of the South Vietnamese peasants cannot be won by bombing their villages.

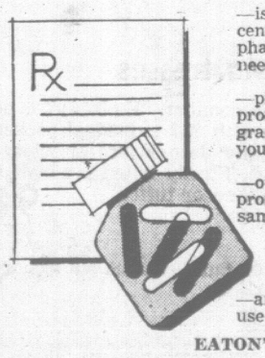

(2) Decrease tension and increase chances for negotiation by:
(a) Stopping the bombing of North Viet Nam;
(b) Recognizing the National Liberation Front of South Viet Nam as an independent party entitled to separate representation at peace negotiations.

(3) Gradually withdraw all foreign troops and replace them by a UN or other international peace force to ensure free elections and eventual reunification of the country by the Vietnamese themselves, as called for by the Geneva Agreement of 1954.

(4) Provide economic aid to rebuild both North and South Viet Nam after the ravages of war.

REGENSTREIF

Analyst Sees Grit Majority

By PETER REGENSTREIF

OTTAWA — A Liberal majority is in the offing for November 8.

Prime Minister Pearson's forces should be somewhat in the 137-150 seat range as a result of this country's fifth general election in the last eight years.

It would take an unbelievable catastrophe — one beyond that which even the Liberals in the palmiest moments could conjure up — to blow the deal now.

The Conservatives should score somewhere in the 80's or low 90's, the NDP, in spite of a fantastic increase in popular vote, will probably be just short of 20, leaving Social Credit and the Creditistes with a smattering of support, the former in Alberta and British Columbia, the latter in Quebec.

The major factor, perhaps the only one in this campaign, was that of leadership — or, more correctly, the lack of leadership. The electorate had no positive preference for either of the two leaders of the major parties. A simple question posed to voters across the country as to their choice for prime minister among the four party leaders irrespective of party label evoked the voluntarily-offered response, "none of them," "they all stink," "we need new blood," or some variant, over one-quarter of the time.

★ ★ ★

In this leadership preference race, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas ranked highest of all the leaders when measured against the performance of their respective parties in terms of actual votes. Robert Thompson of the Socreds also performed reasonably well in this area.

This single finding, probably more than any other, underlines the deep disaffection of the public with the course of this country's politics.

Pearson's popularity has never been very high and since taking office in 1963, he has been plagued by all sorts of misadventures. The public continues to see him as an indecisive man.

This is why the majority government argument of the Liberals has fallen flat. They are winning in spite of themselves.

As I've pointed out so often, in these columns and elsewhere, for an appeal for majority government take hold, the electorate must be able to ascertain which political party has the best chance of obtaining that majority and it must have a firm and pronounced preference for the leader of that party for the post of prime minister.

★ ★ ★

Both elements are essential. They operate simultaneously. One is useless without the other.

This is obviously not the situation this time. The effect of an appeal for majority government for the Liberals is to involve them in a silly numbers game. All they can do is claim that they are the ones with the best chance at the majority.

But this is a game in which any number of people can play. Diefenbaker has joined in and has succeeded in convincing some sectors that the Conservatives have a real chance of forming a minority government.

All the evidence is against such an outcome.

As for John Diefenbaker himself, his standing is at an incredible low. That his party should be doing so well in spite of this handicap is a tribute both to his own past performance on the prairies and in some rural sectors elsewhere and to the quality of his party's organizational machinery in Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

If this election proves anything, it is this: There are no votes in scandal-mongering. The Liberals found this out fighting Maurice Duplessis in Quebec in the 1950's and John Wintermeyer made no head-way against John Robarts in Ontario with the issue in 1963.

★ ★ ★

Diefenbaker has harped so much on the topic of corruption in this campaign that he has alienated potential Conservative voters.

He is losing support right in his own backyard. A Saskatoon housewife who was uphappily deserting the Conservatives

GALLUP POLL SHOWS LIBERALS WELL AHEAD

Party Chiefs Make Their Final Pleas

FIVE LEADERS in Monday's general election present voters with great contrast in platform styles. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has been described as the last of the old-time, thunderous campaigners. Prime Minister Pearson's trade mark has been a grin and relaxed approach. Tommy Douglas stirs his audience with his appeal for social justice. Real Caouette, a thundering, two-fisted orator, works up a hearty perspiration during his speeches while Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson makes a quiet appeal in a well-modulated baritone. 10 Million Eligible To Vote on Monday

By The Canadian Press

Political exhortations have passed the climax and party leaders are homeward bound to await the outcome of Monday's vote in Canada's 27th general election.

Voting hours for some 10,200,000 persons eligible to cast ballots Monday are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. The turnout is expected to be lighter than the near-record 79.6 per cent in 1963. The record is 79.8 per cent in 1958.

Today Prime Minister Pearson makes for Ottawa from Toronto with final campaign stops along the north shore of Lake Ontario.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, are in their home ridings of Burnaby-Coquitlam, British Columbia, and Red Deer, Alberta, respectively.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is in Quebec's Labelle riding for a speaking engagement on behalf of his candidate son, Gilles, before returning to his home constituency of Villeneuve.

Mr. Pearson told a cheering, overflow crowd in a Hamilton theatre Friday night that he will go anywhere, including Viet Nam, in search of peace.

'Almost Sweep to Liberals'

Earlier, in Kitchener, he said "there is a swing, almost a sweep," to the Liberals and that a vote for the New Democratic Party could accomplish no more than another Diefenbaker minority government.

Mr. Douglas said in a statement at Vancouver that Mr. Pearson was resorting to "scare tactics" in urging voters not to support the NDP.

"The facts are that Mr. Diefenbaker has no chance of forming any kind of government," Mr. Douglas said. "The battle in this campaign is between the NDP, which has a program, and the Liberals, who have only their record."

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Regina rally that the Liberals are trying to encourage votes for third parties in an attempt to defeat Conservative candidates.

"I am asking you to vote for yourselves," he said in an appeal to the crowd to "stand with us again."

At Vancouver, Mr. Thompson said there were no major national issues in the election other than that the election should not have been called.

At Quebec City, Mr. Caouette repeated his charge, frequently denied by Mr. Pearson, that the government has made an agreement with the U.S. to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam.

The electorate has 1,011 candidates to pick from, 12 fewer than 1963's record, in the fifth general election in 8½ years.

The Liberals and Conservatives are contesting all 265 seats with a minimum of 133 required for a bare majority. The NDP has 255 candidates, Social Credit 86 and the Quebec-based Creditistes 77. There are another 63 running under various other labels.

In at least 60 of the 265 seats,

'Bomb' Found At Empress

By DESMOND BILL

It consisted of a flashlight case containing a white powder taped to a clock and two batteries.

Lt.-Cmdr. Ward Palmer of the RCN Diving School said the clock had run down. He described the device as "an amateurish affair" but confirmed that it was rigged as a homemade bomb.

Lt.-Cmdr. Palmer said police are going to make an examination of the powder found in the flashlight case to determine if it is an explosive substance.

The bomb disposal expert said the device was set up to complete an electrical circuit that could trigger an explosion if the substance in the case was explosive.

'JOKE?'

Roland Lindner, 144 Eberts, a foreman gardener at the Empress, found the device in a brown paper bag in the conservatory near the bathroom.

He opened the bag and saw what was in it. Said Mr. Lindner, "I thought it was a joke but of course you never know with these things.

"I decided I better get it out of there. I took it to the steps outside (leading to the garden) and dropped it over the wall."

Mr. Lindner later told police about his discovery. They found the bag lying on concrete near some undergrowth. They called th bomb disposal squad which removed the object and carried it away in a truck.

Flaming Collision Claims Seven Lives

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE (CP)—The death toll in a flaming collision between a car and a semi-trailer carring a fertilizer chemical rose to seven Friday night when the sole survivor died en route to hospital in Winnipeg.

Holly Hope Kosiuk, of Grandview, Man., was critically injured in the accident which killed four other members of her family.

Police identified the other victims as truck driver Charles Hallet, 35, of Winnipeg; Fred Kostiuk, 46, of Grandview, his wife Rose, 39, his mother Mrs. Olga Kostiuk, about 60, his son Theodore, 8, and Robert Hykawy of McGregor, Man.

An inquest opened today.

Police said the two vehicles collided as the car travelled south on Highway 4 and the truck travelled east on the Trans-Canada Highway seven miles west of here. The impact hurled the vehicles 100 yards apart and both burst into flames.

All but one of the six cars passengers were thrown from the vehicle and the truck driver was trapped in his burning unit.

Rhodesia Commission Project Near Collapse

U.K. Poised To Deal With Split

LONDON (Reuters) — British government machinery went on a stand-by basis this weekend in case Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith seizes independence against repeated British warnings.

Prime Minister Wilson, attending a family wedding in Cardiff, Wales, today, will have an air force plane ready to fly him back to London at a moment's notice.

Opposition Conservative Leader Edward Heath, on a speaking tour in Scotland, also has a special charter plane standing by and members of Parliament were warned to be ready for any snap summoning of Parliament. They will be asked to approve sanctions against Rhodesia if the white minority government declares independence unilaterally.

SALISBURY (CP)—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith took another step toward seizure of independence today by rejecting the latest British proposals to resolve the crisis.

Smith told British Prime Minister Wilson he had imposed so many conditions on his proposal for a royal commission to solve the independence issue that it was difficult to believe it was seriously intended.

The proposal for a royal commission on the Rhodesian crisis emerged from Wilson's emergency trip to Rhodesia late last month in an attempt to avert Rhodesia's threatened seizure of independence.

Britain had proposed that a royal commission should test whether all Rhodesians—250,000 whites and 4,000,000 Negroes — favor independence linked to the colony's 1961 constitution.

"I regret to say the impression you left with us (during Wilson's recent visit to Salisbury) of a determined effort to resolve our constitutional problems has been utterly dissipated," Smith said in a letter to Wilson.

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door you

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1965—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Since about all that remains in a most curious and depressing federal election is to cast our votes and hope for the best, I hereby declare in this corner, a cooling-off period.

We will assume that the fellow-Canadians for whom we will mark our ballots are neither skunks nor heroes, and talk for a while about certain problems facing this country they wish to represent.

It is a good country. Regardless of which elderly character grabs

the gold ring on Monday, it will keep on being one of the best of earth's lands in which to dwell.

Only Australia exceeds it in percentage of able-bodied men employed on paying jobs. We may, off and on, turn up the occasional hungry family or individual. But our communities are well fed; we have no famines, and few bad floods or droughts.

Amazingly, we have no confirmed enemies. Not many nations can make that claim, these days.

All in all, we have it pretty good here. By retaining a minimum of sense, we should be able to keep ourselves in better-than-average trim.

★ ★ ★

We can't afford to be smug, though, and when the election is out of the way, I hope we will settle down to serious consideration of the problems that face us.

One of these is how we, a country of close to 20 million, can escape being painlessly and even pleasantly absorbed by a neighbor which claims close to 193 million population.

I have taken it for granted, correctly, I hope, that we do want to retain our national identity. For any number of reasons, many of them personal and even selfish, I myself have no wish to see the two countries merge.

Estimates of the American stake in Canadian industry range to 60 per cent, a figure which doesn't disturb those who insist that very generous infusions from the United States are vital to Canada's economy.

It may well be that we must continue so, or even permit the percentage to increase, if we are to maintain our present very high standard of living.

However, the figure startles me, and I'm by no means clear as to whether a nation so committed may make genuine claims to independence.

It seems to me that few problems are more in need of answering than this of American industry's amiable and perhaps even beneficial infiltration of Canada. Is it bad or good, and where's the sticking-point?

A related question which, to the best of my knowledge, has never been seriously tackled either provincially or federally, draws from the vast amount of Canadian real estate now owned by American citizens.

Here on the West Coast this trend is dramatically illustrated. I would venture a guess that today more whole small islands now belong to American and German nationals than to Canadians.

Virtually alone among our provincial legislators, NDP chief Bob Strachan has risen in the House to call attention to this mass ownership, by foreigners, of Canadian land.

★ ★ ★

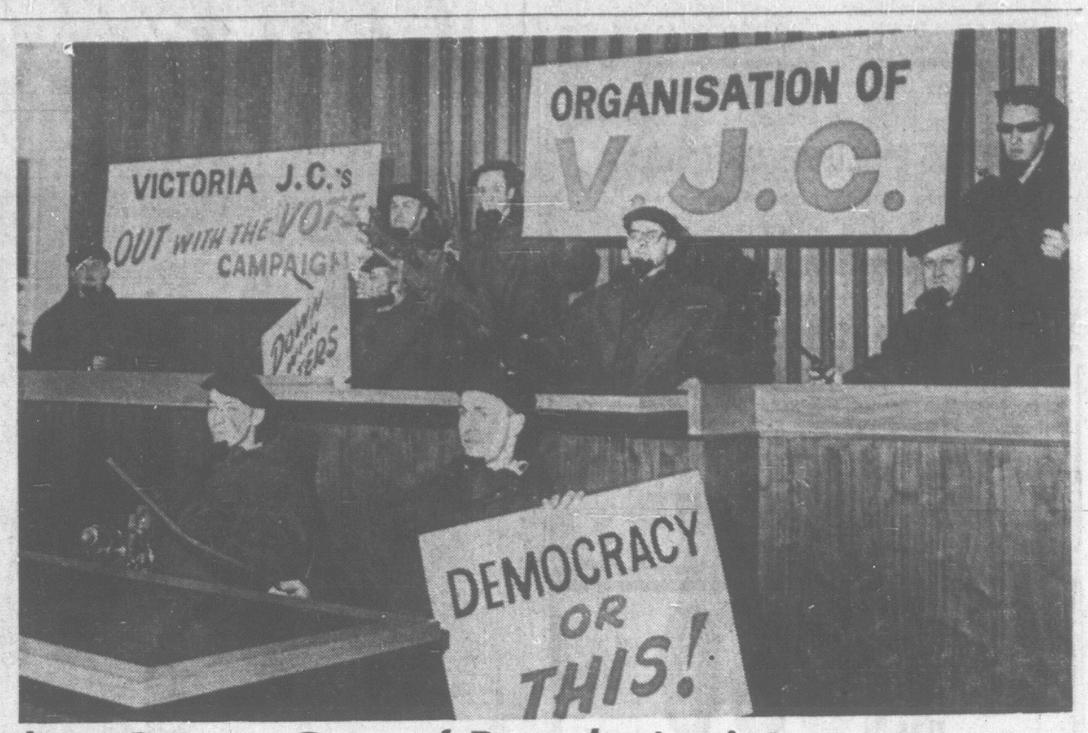

There are numerous other matters that can't wait too long for government attention and decision.

How much water can we spare from the tremendous sponge of our northland for the country below? And under what controls and provisions of international law will water be allotted?

Over-riding all are our domestic problems. Quebec must be persuaded through fair dealing and generous aid that her home lies within Confederation; English Canada, by the same token, must not be splintered in the process. We must also reach a balance-point between tight centralization and a loosely-joined chain of province-kingdoms.

Although these issues bear directly on our national future, they cannot be discussed rationally in the heat of an election campaign. The time for that is when the poll-dust has settled.

Martial Law Proclaimed as City in Grip of Revolutionists

Hands aloft, city council members, Mayor R. B. Wilson, and Aldermen Mrs. Lily Wilson, Millard Mooney, Cecil Parrot and Robert Baird, were taken into custody of revolutionists in front of City Hall today. Martial law was proclaimed throughout Greater Victoria. The rebels (members of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce) took over civic offices to protest against persons who don't vote in municipal elections. Victorians are ruled by a minority because they don't exercise their franchise, the Jaycees said. (Halkett Photos.)

'Armed Force' Invades City To Halt Election Apathy!

By RON SUDLOW

A "subversive force" took over City Hall this morning.

It was a blue-clad army of revolutionists led by a chap named Fiddle Astro which placed Mayor R. B. Wilson and city council members under arrest.

They were armed with guns, grenades, placards and a proclamation.

The group, called the New Party of Anarchy and Corruption, promised to shoot without a trial anyone who disagreed with its actions.

The mayor and council members were led at gunpoint into city hall's legislative wing and watched helplessly as the new dictator assumed office.

His first edicts were to cancel citizens' voting franchises and establish a 9 p.m. curfew.

Then the rebel leader removed his beard and identified himself.

It was city Jaycee president Brian Small.

They pointed out ratepayers were actually ruled by a minority as indicated by a 13 per cent turnout in the last municipal election.

They simply decided to speak for the silent majority and take over the government.

"Too often we take this privilege for granted."

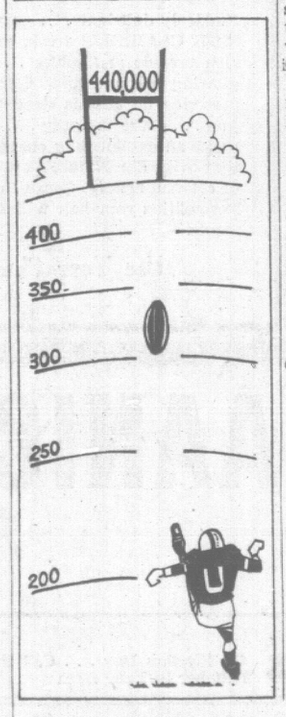

AGE-OLD pigeon banger imported from England gets apprehensive appraisal from Wendy Denee. But she won't light it because under new fireworks bylaw the cannon crackers suspended from fuse rope are illegal. Idea is to hang rope in popular pigeon cornice and intermittent blasts as rope detonates crackers startle the birds. Reflecting discs also scare pigeons off.

SAANICH LOSES COURT FIGHT

Further Action Up to Council

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said today he will discuss the future of the Swan Lake courtroom with municipal lawyer Douglas Patterson.

The move follows rejection in Supreme Court Friday of Saanich's application for a writ compelling Magistrate William Ostler to sit at the now-empty Swan Lake courtroom, or direct another magistrate to do so.

"It is a matter for review by the council," Reeve Curtis said. "It will be discussed at the next meeting, but I don't want to imply that necessarily we will do anything."

The courtroom, built by the municipality three years ago, has been empty since Magistrate Ostler moved to the new central magistrate's court on Fisgard Street.

In Supreme Court Friday afternoon, Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins of Vancouver ruled that Magistrate Ostler is under no obligation to sit in Saanich municipality, or to appoint another magistrate to hold court there.

He observed that the transfer did not appear to have involved any delay in the disposal of Saanich criminal cases, and he suggested that the hearing of such cases in Victoria might mean less expense for the municipality.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Aikins said the municipality had failed to prove that Magistrate Ostler was legally compelled to sit in Saanich.

He said he had considered the fact that the municipality built its own courthouse and lockup out of duty and also paid a share of Magistrate Ostler's salary.

HELP SCORE FAIR SHARE GOAL

United Appeal total this morning had risen to $337,891, topping the three-quarter mark of the $439,210 goal.

Helping to push the figure over the mark was a donation of $2,900 from employees of Canada Safeway Ltd.

Employees of more than 90 local firms have received United Appeal citizenship awards.

Campaign officials say they expect to present 150 of the awards before the end of the drive.

Any firms which feel their employees have contributed an exceptional amount are invited to apply for one of the four United Appeal awards.

Award of excellence: 100 per cent participation and a "fair share" equivalent of one day's pay) from each employee, for firms with 10 employees or more.

Plaque award: 80 per cent participation and equivalent of half a day's pay from each employee, for firms with 10 employees or more.

Citation award: same as the plaque award, for firms with less than 10 employees.

Achievement award: 80 per cent participation, with a 15 per cent increase over contributions the previous year.

'Bird's Eye View' Of Birth Control Eyed

Birth control is for the birds.

That's one of the ideas anyway, that is being put forward to curb the pigeon nuisance in Victoria.

A committee set up to curb billing and cooing and less acceptable pigeon skylarks is sending a report to council.

Based on years of study in other cities, the report lists various steps which have been more or less effective—shooting, wire barriers, intermittent explosions, recordings of pigeon distress calls, high frequency sound waves, whirling discs, revolving lights, nets, firecrackers, electric shock and gooey repellants.

And then there is the birth control pill—not on the market yet but held to be a likely solution and one which the SPCA considers acceptable.

MIXED WITH SEEDS

The pills would be mixed with birdseed and fed to the pigeons who would then lay no more fertile eggs. As the current crop of pigeons succumbs to old age there would be no new generation to deface monuments, buildings and sidewalks.

Red Chevron Group To Hold Annual Meet

Vancouver Island Red Chevron Association will hold its annual Armistice meeting eWdnesday at 8 p.m. in the ANAF Vet's Hall, 1001 Wharf Street.

The meeting will be followed by refreshments and a singalong. The association has asked its members to wear their berets.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the address of the Research Council of B.C., S. T.

A. You can write to the council in care of the University of British Columbia.

Q. Are there any special educational qualifications necessary for one to teach kindergarten in B.C.? D. M.

A. Yes, says the provincial education department.

For instance, in kindergartens operated by a school board, teachers must have Grades one and two teaching certificates.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

80,000 Likely To Cast Vote

Mild Temperatures Forecast on Island

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 100,000 residents on southern Vancouver Island are eligible to vote in Monday's federal election.

And if the 1963 federal election is any guide, something like 80,000 will vote in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich constituencies.

The heavy advance poll one week ago may be an indication of a greater-than-usual interest in an election some people wrote off as unnecessary.

Polling starts at 8 a.m. and closes at 7 p.m. Anyone who isn't sure where to cast a ballot should telephone his returning officer whose number will be provided by information (113).

As usual, liquor stores, beer parlors and cocktail lounges will be closed during voting hours. The legal anachronism dates from the days when canidates plied voters with drinks, hoping the favor would be returned in votes.

Seeking re-election are Liberal David Groos in Victoria, who had a majority of 1,538 at the last election, and Progressive Conservative George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich, who had an edge of 2,585 in 1963.

Most of the nine candidates in both constituencies headed for the streets and shopping centres today in a final round of wooing the voters. The two Social Credit candidates were on their way back from convention in Vancouver.

The candidates were asked what last words they have for the voters.

Mr. Groos and Mr. Chatterton were brief: "Vote on Monday."

So was Len Stephenson, New Democratic Party candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Vote for me!" he declared.

The other replies were longer.

Frank Hunter, Victoria Social Credit: "There is great confidence on very hand. The indications are very good."

★ ★ ★

Rev. Clifford Waite, Victoria Progressive Conservative: "The single objective of government is the well-being of people. Were I to get in, I would keep faith with all the people."

J. Lloyd Brereton, Victoria New Democrat: "The lection is more or less over but the war in Viet Nam is going on. Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion yesterday he would go to Viet Nam is such nonsense because everyone knows he will be regarded there as an American puppet. A strong NDP vote in my view is the best guarantee Canada will play her part in bringing this to an end."

W. S. E. Morrison, Victoria Communist: West Coast shipbuilding must be expanded and a merchant marine established. "Step by step" Canada is being dragged into the Viet Nam war. Liberals broke promise to renegotiate acquisition of Bomarc missiles.

James Gorst, Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal: Country needs stability to plan ahead and keep economy moving. Liberals are best qualified to do this.

24-HOUR FAST, VIGIL AT MEMORIAL

The fast will start at 5 p.m. Wednesday and end 5 p.m. Thursday, league president Mavis Payne said. The vigil will be carried out in groups of five taking turns standing at the monument during the night.

"We will stand in silence to express the hope that there will be no more wars," Mrs. Payne said.

Girl Injured On West Saanich By Hit, Run Car

A 17-year-old girl was thrown into the ditch and injured by a hit-and-run driver as she walked along Old West Saanich Road shortly before 5:30 Friday evening.

Lorraine Clifford, 5206 Old West Saanich Road, is in good condition today at Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken hand and severe bruises to her legs and body.

Saanich police said Miss Clifford was walking north on the east side of the road when a car coming from behind struck her and kept on going.

Police are looking for the hit-and-run car of which they obtained a description.

Remembrance Theme Planned by Bonner

The meeting will have a Remembrance Day theme.

Members will meet at 12:05 p.m. in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

BUT IT WON'T TELL PEOPLE HOW TO VOTE

VoW Conduct Aggressive Campaign

By PETE LOUDON

The Voice of Women wants an end to Viet Nam warfare.

It wants Red China seated in the United Nations.

But it won't tell people how to vote to further these aims.

National president of VoW, Mrs. Kathleen Macpherson, said in an interview here today that the organization will remain non-partisan in the election.

"We hope people are intelligent enough to decide which way to vote," she said.

For weeks, across Canada, the organization has been asking candidates for their opinions on these issues. And the women have been giving all the publicity they can to the replies.

But further than that they won't go, said Mrs. Macpherson.

She said the main objective of the international body is world peace. The United Nations can't progress in peace talks when a third of the world is excluded from the talks, she said.

"We recognize China by trading with her. We might as well make it official," she adds.

She arrived here Friday and was to meet some of the 130 VoW members of Greater Victoria at a tea this afternoon. Sunday she goes to Nanaimo and then back across Canada. Her home is Toronto but in her three years as VoW president much of her time has been taken by travelling.

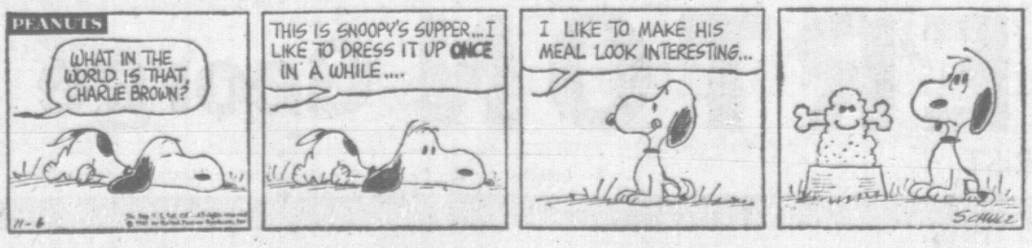

KATHLEEN MACPHERSON
. . . membership growing

The figures are uncertain but she believs her trip has caused VoW membership to grow. She estimates there are up to 4,000 women now on the VoW mailing list—with many more active supporters.

She says workers for peace, such as those who demonstrate against use of nuclear weapons for national security, are often accused of being disloyal.

"I would vehemently question that. It would be treasonable to all humanity to quietly face another war," Mrs. Macpherson states.

Mrs. Macpherson is the wife of a university professor and is herself a physiotherapist and the mother of three children. In December last year she was one of 15 VoW representatives jailed for three hours in Paris when they attempted to get an interview with the NATO secretary-general.

REGENSTREIF

Analyst Sees Grit Majority

By PETER REGENSTREIF

OTTAWA — A Liberal majority is in the offing for November 8.

Prime Minister Pearson's forces should be somewhat in the 137-150 seat range as a result of this country's fifth general election in the last eight years.

It would take an unbelievable catastrophe — one beyond that which even the Liberals in the palmiest moments could conjure up — to blow the deal now.

The Conservatives should score somewhere in the 80's or low 90's, the NDP, in spite of a fantastic increase in popular vote, will probably be just short of 20, leaving Social Credit and the Creditistes with a smattering of support, the former in Alberta and British Columbia, the latter in Quebec.

The major factor, perhaps the only one in this campaign, was that of leadership — or, more correctly, the lack of leadership. The electorate had no positive preference for either of the two leaders of the major parties. A simple question posed to voters across the country as to their choice for prime minister among the four party leaders irrespective of party label evoked the voluntarily-offered response, "none of them," "they all stink," "we need new blood," or some variant, over one-quarter of the time.

★ ★ ★

In this leadership preference race, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas ranked highest of all the leaders when measured against the performance of their respective parties in terms of actual votes. Robert Thompson of the Socreds also performed reasonably well in this area.

This single finding, probably more than any other, underlines the deep disaffection of the public with the course of this country's politics.

Pearson's popularity has never been very high and since taking office in 1963, he has been plagued by all sorts of misadventures. The public continues to see him as an indecisive man.

This is why the majority government argument of the Liberals has fallen flat. They are winning in spite of themselves.

As I've pointed out so often, in these columns and elsewhere, for an appeal for majority government to take hold, the electorate must be able to ascertain which political party has the best chance of obtaining that majority and it must have a firm and pronounced preference for the leader of that party for the post of prime minister.

★ ★ ★

Both elements are essential. They operate simultaneously. One is useless without the other.

This is obviously not the situation this time. The effect of an appeal for majority government for the Liberals is to involve them in a silly numbers game. All they can do is claim that they are the ones with the best chance at the majority.

But this is a game in which any number of people can play. Diefenbaker has joined in and has succeeded in convincing some sectors that the Conservatives have a real chance of forming a minority government.

All the evidence is against such an outcome.

As for John Diefenbaker himself, his standing is at an incredible low. That his party should be doing so well in spite of this handicap is a tribute both to his own past performance on the prairies and in some rural sectors elsewhere and to the quality of his party's organizational machinery in Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

If this election proves anything, it is this: There are no votes in scandal-mongering. The Liberals found this out fighting Maurice Duplessis in Quebec in the 1950s and John Wintermeyer made no head-way against John Robarts in Ontario with the issue in 1963.

★ ★ ★

Diefenbaker has harped so much on the topic of corruption in this campaign that he has alienated potential Conservative voters.

He is losing support right in his own backyard. A Saskatoon housewife who was uphappily deserting the Conservatives

GALLUP POLL SHOWS LIBERALS WELL AHEAD

The final sampling of voter opinion in Canada by the Gallup poll, taken on Wednesday, shows the Liberals well out in front in popular support, but short of 50 per cent of the vote. (Turn to Page 5 for the details.)

FIVE LEADERS in Monday's general election present voters with great contrast in platform styles. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has been described as the last of the old-time, thunderous campaigners. Prime Minister Pearson's trade mark has been a grin and relaxed approach. Tommy Douglas stirs his audience with his appeal for social justice. Real Caouette, a thundering, two-fisted orator, works up a hearty perspiration during his speeches while Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson makes a quiet appeal in a well-modulated baritone. Party Chiefs Make Their Final Pleas

10 Million Eligible To Vote on Monday

By The Canadian Press

Political exhortations have passed the climax and party leaders are homeward bound to await the outcome of Monday's vote in Canada's 27th general election.

Voting hours for some 10,200,000 persons eligible to cast ballots Monday are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. The turnout is expected to be lighter than the near-record 79.6 per cent in 1963. The record is 79.8 per cent in 1958.

Today Prime Minister Pearson makes for Ottawa from Toronto with final campaign stops along the north shore of Lake Ontario.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, are in their home ridings of Burnaby-Coquitlam, British Columbia, and Red Deer, Alberta, respectively.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is in Quebec's Labelle riding for a speaking engagement on behalf of his candidate son, Gilles, before returning to his home constituency of Villeneuve.

Mr. Pearson told a cheering, overflow crowd in a Hamilton theatre Friday night that he will go anywhere, including Viet Nam, in search of peace.

'Almost Sweep to Liberals'

Earlier, in Kitchener, he said "there is a swing, almost a sweep," to the Liberals and that a vote for the New Democratic Party could accomplish no more than another Diefenbaker minority government.

Mr. Douglas said in a statement at Vancouver that Mr. Pearson was resorting to "scare tactics" in urging voters not to support the NDP.

"The facts are that Mr. Diefenbaker has no chance of forming any kind of government," Mr. Douglas said. "The battle in this campaign is between the NDP, which has a program, and the Liberals, who have only their record."

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Regina rally that the Liberals are trying to encourage votes for third parties in an attempt to defeat Conservative candidates.

"I am asking you to vote for yourselves," he said in an appeal to the crowd to "stand with us again."

At Vancouver, Mr. Thompson said there were no major national issues in the election other than that the election should not have been called.

At Quebec City, Mr. Caouette repeated his charge, frequently denied by Mr. Pearson, that the government has made an agreement with the U.S. to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam.

The electorate has 1,011 candidates to pick from, 12 fewer than 1963's record, in the fifth general election in 8½ years.

The Liberals and Conservatives are contesting all 265 seats with a minimum of 133 required for a bare majority. The NDP has 255 candidates, Social Credit 86 and the Quebec-based Creditistes 77. There are another 63 running under various other labels.

In at least 60 of the 265 seats,

LINDNER . . . opened the bag

'Bomb' Found At Empress

By DESMOND BILL

It consisted of a flashlight case containing a white powder taped to a clock and two batteries.

Lt.-Cmdr. Ward Palmer of the RCN Diving School said the clock had run down. He described the device as "an amateurish affair" but confirmed that it was rigged as a homemade bomb.

Lt.-Cmdr. Palmer said police are going to make an examination of the powder found in the flashlight case to determine if it is an explosive substance.

The bomb disposal expert said the device was set up to complete an electrical circuit that could trigger an explosion if the substance in the case was explosive.

'JOKE?'

Roland Lindner, 144 Eberts, a foreman gardener at the Empress, found the device in a brown paper bag in the conservatory near the bathroom.

He opened the bag and saw what was in it. Said Mr. Lindner, "I thought it was a joke but of course you never know with these things.

"I decided I better get it out of there. I took it to the steps outside (leading to the garden) and dropped it over the wall."

Mr. Lindner later told police about his discovery. They found the bag lying on concrete near some undergrowth. They called th bomb disposal squad which removed the object and carried it away in a truck.

Flaming Collision Claims Seven Lives

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE (CP)—The death toll in a flaming collision between a car and a semi-trailer carring a fertilizer chemical rose to seven Friday night when the sole survivor died en route to hospital in Winnipeg.

Holly Hope Kosiuk, of Grandview, Man., was critically injured in the accident which killed four other members of her family.

Police identified the other victims as truck driver Charles Hallet, 35, of Winnipeg; Fred Kostiuk, 46, of Grandview, his wife Rose, 39, his mother Mrs. Olga Kostiuk, about 60, his son Theodore, 8, and Robert Hykawy of McGregor, Man.

An inquest opened today.

Police said the two vehicles collided as the car travelled south on Highway 4 and the truck travelled east on the Trans-Canada Highway seven miles west of here. The impact hurled the vehicles 100 yards apart and both burst into flames.

All but one of the six cars passengers were thrown from the vehicle and the truck driver was trapped in his burning unit.

Rhodesia Commission Project Near Collapse

U.K. Poised To Deal With Split

LONDON (Reuters) — British government machinery went on a stand-by basis this weekend in case Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith seizes independence against repeated British warnings.

Prime Minister Wilson, attending a family wedding in Cardiff, Wales, today, will have an air force plane ready to fly him back to London at a moment's notice.

Opposition Conservative Leader Edward Heath, on a speaking tour in Scotland, also has a special charter plane standing by and members of Parliament were warned to be ready for any snap summoning of Parliament. They will be asked to approve sanctions against Rhodesia if the white minority government declares independence unilaterally.

SALISBURY (CP)—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith took another step toward seizure of independence today by rejecting the latest British proposals to resolve the crisis.

Smith told British Prime Minister Wilson he had imposed so many conditions on his proposal for a royal commission to solve the independence issue that it was difficult to believe it was seriously intended.

The proposal for a royal commission on the Rhodesian crisis emerged from Wilson's emergency trip to Rhodesia late last month in an attempt to avert Rhodesia's threatened seizure of independence.

Britain had proposed that a royal commission should test whether all Rhodesians—250,000 whites and 4,000,000 Negroes — favor independence linked to the colony's 1961 constitution.

"I regret to say the impression you left with us (during Wilson's recent visit to Salisbury) of a determined effort to resolve our constitutional problems has been utterly dissipated," Smith said in a letter to Wilson.

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door you

Martial Law Proclaimed as City in Grip of Revolutionists

Hands aloft, city council members, Mayor R. B. Wilson and Aldermen Mrs. Lily Wilson, Millard Mooney, Cecil Parrot and Robert Baird, were taken into custody of revolutionists in front of City Hall today. Martial law was proclaimed throughout Greater Victoria. The rebels (members of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce) took over civic offices to protest against persons who don't vote in municipal elections. Victorians are ruled by a minority because they don't exercise their franchise, the Jaycees said. (Halkett Photos.)

Arthur Mayse

Since about all that remains in a most curious and depressing federal election is to cast our votes and hope for the best, I hereby declare in this corner, a cooling-off period.

We will assume that the fellow-Canadians for whom we will mark our ballots are neither skunks nor heroes, and talk for a while about certain problems facing this country they wish to represent.

It is a good country. Regardless of which elderly character grabs the gold ring on Monday, it will keep on being one of the best of earth's lands in which to dwell.

Only Australia exceeds it in percentage of able-bodied men employed on paying jobs. We may, off and on, turn up the occasional hungry family or individual. But our communities are well fed; we have no famines, and few bad floods or droughts.

Amazingly, we have no confirmed enemies. Not many nations can make that claim, these days.

All in all, we have it pretty good here. By retaining a minimum of sense, we should be able to keep ourselves in better-than-average trim.

★ ★ ★

We can't afford to be smug, though, and when the election is out of the way, I hope we will settle down to serious consideration of the problems that face us.

One of these is how we, a country of close to 20 million, can escape being painlessly and even pleasantly absorbed by a neighbor which claims close to 193 million population.

I have taken it for granted, correctly, I hope, that we do want to retain our national identity. For any number of reasons, many of them personal and even selfish, I myself have no wish to see the two countries merge.

Estimates of the American stake in Canadian industry range to 60 per cent, a figure which doesn't disturb those who insist that very generous infusions from the United States are vital to Canada's economy.

It may well be that we must continue so, or even permit the percentage to increase, if we are to maintain our present very high standard of living.

However, the figure startles me, and I'm by no means clear as to whether a nation so committed may make genuine claims to independence.

It seems to me that few problems are more in need of answering than this of American industry's amiable and perhaps even beneficial infiltration of Canada. Is it bad or good, and where's the sticking-point?

A related question which, to the best of my knowledge, has never been seriously tackled either provincially or federally, draws from the vast amount of Canadian real estate now owned by American citizens.

Here on the West Coast this trend is dramatically illustrated. I would venture a guess that today more whole small islands now belong to American and German nationals than to Canadians.

Virtually alone among our provincial legislators, NDP chief Bob Strachan has risen in the House to call attention to this mass ownership, by foreigners, of Canadian land.

★ ★ ★

There are numerous other matters that can't wait too long for government attention and decision.

How much water can we spare from the tremendous sponge of our northland for the country below? And under what controls and provisions of international law will water be allotted?

Over-riding all are our domestic problems. Quebec must be persuaded through fair dealing and generous aid that her home lies within Confederation; English Canada, by the same token, must not be splintered in the process. We must also reach a balance-point between tight centralization and a loosely-joined chain of province-kingdoms.

Although these issues bear directly on our national future, they cannot be discussed rationally in the heat of an election campaign. The time for that is when the poll-dust has settled.

'Armed Force' Invades City To Halt Election Apathy!

By RON SUDLOW

A "subversive force" took over City Hall this morning.

It was a blue-clad army of revolutionists led by a chap named Fiddle Astro which placed Mayor R. B. Wilson and city council members under arrest.

They were armed with guns, grenades, placards and a proclamation.

The group, called the New Party of Anarchy and Corruption, promised to shoot without a trial anyone who disagreed with its actions.

The mayor and council members were led at gunpoint into city hall's legislative wing and watched helplessly as the new dictator assumed office.

His first edicts were to cancel citizens' voting franchises and establish a 9 p.m. curfew.

Then the rebel leader removed his beard and identified himself.

It was city Jaycee president Brian Small.

They pointed out ratepayers were actually ruled by a minority as indicated by a 13 per cent turnout in the last municipal election.

They simply decided to speak for the silent majority and take over the government.

AGE-OLD pigeon banger imported from England gets apprehensive appraisal from Wendy Dance. 80,000 Likely To Cast Vote

Mild Temperatures Forecast on Island

By ROGER STONEBANKS

More than 100,000 residents on southern Vancouver Island are eligible to vote in Monday's federal election.

And if the 1963 federal election is any guide, something like 80,000 will vote in Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich constituencies.

The heavy advance poll one week ago may be an indication of a greater-than-usual interest in an election some people wrote off as unnecessary.

Polling starts at 8 a.m. and closes at 7 p.m. Anyone who isn't sure where to cast a ballot should telephone his returning officer whose number will be provided by Information (113).

As usual, liquor stores, beer parlors and cocktail lounges will be closed during voting hours. The legal anachronism dates from the days when canidates plied voters with drinks, hoping the favor would be returned in votes.

Seeking re-election are Liberal David Groos in Victoria, who had a majority of 1,538 at the last election, and Progressive Conservative George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich, who had an edge of 2,585 in 1963.

Most of the nine candidates in both constituencies headed for the streets and shopping centres today in a final round of wooing the voters. The two Social Credit candidates were on their way back from convention in Vancouver.

The candidates were asked what last words they have for the voters.

Mr. Groos and Mr. Chatterton were brief: "Vote on Monday."

So was Len Stephenson, New Democratic Party candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"Vote for me!" he declared.

The other replies were longer.

Frank Hunter, Victoria Social Credit: "There is great confidence on very hand. The indications are very good."

Rev. Clifford Waite, Victoria Progressive Conservative: "The single objective of government is the well-being of people. Were I to get in, I would keep faith with all the people."

J. Lloyd Brereton, Victoria New Democrat: "The election is more or less over but the war in Viet Nam is going on. Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion yesterday he would go to Viet Nam is such nonsense because everyone knows he will be regarded there as an American puppet. A strong NDP vote in my view is the best guarantee Canada will play her part in bringing this to an end."

W. S. E. Morrison, Victoria Communist: West Coast shipbuilding must be expanded and a merchant marine established. "Step by step" Canada is being dragged into the Viet Nam war. Liberals broke promise to renegotiate acquisition of Bomarc missiles.

James Gorst, Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal: Country needs stability to plan ahead and keep economy moving. Liberals are best qualified to do this.

24-HOUR FAST, VIGIL AT MEMORIAL

The fast will start at 5 p.m. Wednesday and end 5 p.m. Thursday, league president Mavis Payne said. The vigil will be carried out in groups of five taking turns standing at the monument during the night.

"We will stand in silence to express the hope that there will be no more wars," Mrs. Payne said.

Girl Injured On West Saanich By Hit, Run Car

A 17-year-old girl was thrown into the ditch and injured by a hit-and-run driver as she walked along Old West Saanich Road shortly before 5:30 Friday evening.

Lorraine Clifford, 5206 Old West Saanich Road, is in good condition today at Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken hand and severe bruises to her legs and body.

Saanich police said Miss Clifford was walking north on the east side of the road when a car coming from behind struck her and kept on going.

Police are looking for the hit-and-run car of which they obtained a description.

Remembrance Theme Planned by Bonner

The meeting will have a Remembrance Day theme.

Members will meet at 12:05 p.m. in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

SAANICH LOSES COURT FIGHT

Further Action Up to Council

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said today he will discuss the future of the Swan Lake courtroom with municipal lawyer Douglas Patterson.

The move follows rejection in Supreme Court Friday of Saanich's application for a writ compelling Magistrate William Ostler to sit at the now-empty Swan Lake courtroom, or direct another magistrate to do so.

"It is a matter for review by the council," Reeve Curtis said. "It will be discussed at the next meeting, but I don't want to imply that necessarily we will do anything."

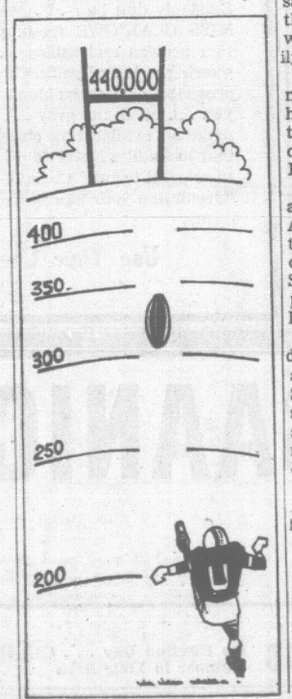

The courtroom, built by the municipality three years ago, has been empty since Magistrate Ostler moved to the new central magistrate's court on Fisgard Street.

In Supreme Court Friday afternoon, Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins of Vancouver ruled that Magistrate Ostler is under no obligation to sit in Saanich municipality, or to appoint another magistrate to hold court there.

He observed that the transfer did not appear to have involved any delay in the disposal of Saanich criminal cases, and he suggested that the hearing of such cases in Victoria might mean less expense for the municipality.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Aikins said the municipality had failed to prove that Magistrate Ostler was legally compelled to sit in Saanich.

He said he had considered the fact that the municipality built its own courthouse and lockup out of duty and also paid a share of Magistrate Ostler's salary.

HELP SCORE FAIR SHARE GOAL

United Appeal total this morning had risen to $337,891, topping the three-quarter mark of the $439,210 goal.

Helping to push the figure over the mark was a donation of $2,900 from employees of Canada Safeway Ltd.

Employees of more than 90 local firms have received United Appeal citizenship awards.

Campaign officials say they expect to present 150 of the awards before the end of the drive.

Any firms which feel their employees have contributed an exceptional amount are invited to apply for one of the four United Appeal awards.

Award of excellence: 100 per cent participation and a "fair share" equivalent of one day's pay) from each employee, for firms with 10 employees or more.

Plaque award: 80 per cent participation and equivalent of half a day's pay from each employee, for firms with 10 employees or more.

Citation award: same as the plaque award, for firms with less than 10 employees.

'Bird's Eye View' Of Birth Control Eyed

That's one of the ideas anyway, that is being put forward to curb the pigeon nuisance in Victoria.

A committee set up to curb billing and cooing and less acceptable pigeon skylarks is sending a report to council.

Based on years of study in other cities, the report lists various steps which have been more or less effective—shooting, wire barriers, intermittent explosions, recordings of pigeon distress calls, high frequency sound waves, whirling discs, revolving lights, nets, firecrackers, electric shock and gooey repellants.

And then there is the birth control pill—not on the market yet but held to be a likely solution and one which the SPCA considers acceptable.

MIXED WITH SEEDS

The pills would be mixed with birdseed and fed to the pigeons who would then lay no more fertile eggs. As the current crop of pigeons succumbs to old age there would be no new generation to deface monuments, buildings and sidewalks.

Red Chevron Group To Hold Annual Meet

Vancouver Island Red Chevron Association will hold its annual Armistice meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the ANAF Vet's Hall, 1001 Wharf Street.

The meeting will be followed by refreshments and a sing-along. The association has asked its members to wear their berets.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the address of the Research Council of B.C., S. T.

A. You can write to the council in care of the University of British Columbia.

Q. Are there any special educational qualifications necessary for one to teach kindergarten in B.C.? D. M.

A. Yes, says the provincial education department.

For instance, in kindergartens operated by a school board, teachers must have Grades one and two teaching certificates.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

BUT IT WON'T TELL PEOPLE HOW TO VOTE

VoW Conduct Aggressive Campaign

By PETE LOUDON

The Voice of Women wants an end to Viet Nam warfare.

It wants Red China seated in the United Nations.

But it won't tell people how to vote to further these aims.

National president of VoW, Mrs. Kathleen Macpherson, said in an interview here today that the organization will remain non-partisan in the election.

"We hope people are intelligent enough to decide which way to vote," she said.

For weeks, across Canada, the organization has been asking candidates for their opinions on these issues. And the women have been giving all the publicity they can to the replies.

But further than that they won't go, said Mrs. Macpherson.

She said the main objective of the international body is world peace. The United Nations can't progress in peace talks when a third of the world is excluded from the talks, she said.

She arrived here Friday and was to meet some of the 130 VoW members of Greater Victoria at a tea this afternoon. Sunday she goes to Nanaimo and then back across Canada. Her home is Toronto but in her three years as VoW president much of her time has been taken by travelling.

KATHLEEN MACPHERSON
. . . membership growing

The figures are uncertain but she believs her trip has caused VoW membership to grow. She estimates there are up to 4,000 women now on the VoW mailing list—with many more active supporters.

She says workers for peace, such as those who demonstrate against use of nuclear weapons for national security, are often accused of being disloyal.

"I would vehemently question that. It would be treasonable to all humanity to quietly face another war," Mrs. Macpherson states.

Mrs. Macpherson is the wife of a university professor and is herself a physiotherapist and the mother of three children. In December last year she was one of 15 VoW representatives jailed for three hours in Paris when they attempted to get an interview with the NATO secretary-general.

OIL WORKERS THREATEN WALKOUT ACROSS B.C.

REGENSTREIF

Analyst Sees Grit Majority

By PETER REGENSTREIF

Prime Minister Pearson's forces should be somewhat in the 137-150 seat range as a result of this country's fifth general election in the last eight years.

It would take an unbelievable catastrophe — one beyond that which even the Liberals in the palmiest moments could conjure up — to blow the deal now.

The Conservatives should score somewhere in the 80's or low 90's, the NDP, in spite of a fantastic increase in popular vote, will probably be just short of 20, leaving Social Credit and the Creditistes with a smattering of support, the former in Alberta and British Columbia, the latter in Quebec.

The major factor, perhaps the only one in this campaign, was that of leadership — or, more correctly, the lack of leadership. The electorate had no positive preference for either of the two leaders of the major parties. A simple question posed to voters across the country as to their choice for prime minister among the four party leaders irrespective of party label evoked the voluntarily-offered response, "none of them," "they all stink," "we need new blood," or some variant, over one-quarter of the time.

★ ★ ★

In this leadership preference race, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas ranked highest of all the leaders when measured against the performance of their respective parties in terms of actual votes. Robert Thompson of the Socreds also performed reasonably well in this area.

This single finding, probably more than any other, underlines the deep disaffection of the public with the course of this country's politics.

Pearson's popularity has never been very high and since taking office in 1963, he has been plagued by all sorts of misadventures. The public continues to see him as an indecisive man.

This is why the majority government argument of the Liberals has fallen flat. They are winning in spite of themselves.

As I've pointed out so often, in these columns and elsewhere, for an appeal for majority government to take hold, the electorate must be able to ascertain which political party has the best chance of obtaining that majority and it must have a firm and pronounced preference for the leader of that party for the post of prime minister.

★ ★ ★

Both elements are essential. They operate simultaneously. One is useless without the other.

This is obviously not the situation this time. The effect of an appeal for majority government for the Liberals is to involve them in a silly numbers game. All they can do is claim that they are the ones with the best chance at the majority.

But this is a game in which any number of people can play. Diefenbaker has joined in and has succeeded in convincing some sectors that the Conservatives have a real chance of forming a minority government.

All the evidence is against such an outcome.

As for John Diefenbaker himself, his standing is at an incredible low. That his party should be doing so well in spite of this handicap is a tribute both to his own past performance on the prairies and in some rural sectors elsewhere and to the quality of his party's organizational machinery in Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia.

If this election proves anything, it is this: There are no votes in scandal-mongering. The Liberals found this out fighting Maurice Duplessis in Quebec in the 1950s and John Wintermeyer made no head-way against John Robarts in Ontario with the issue in 1963.

★ ★ ★

Diefenbaker has harped so much on the topic of corruption in this campaign that he has alienated potential Conservative voters.

He is losing support right in his own backyard. A Saskatoon housewife who was uphappily deserting the Conservatives

FIVE LEADERS in Monday's general election present voters with great contrast in platform styles. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has been described as the last of the old-time, thunderous campaigners. Prime Minister Pearson's trade mark has been a grin and relaxed approach. Tommy Douglas stirs his audience with his appeal for social justice. Real Caouette, a thundering, two-fisted orator, works up a hearty perspiration during his speeches while Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson makes a quiet appeal in a well-modulated baritone. 'Bomb' Found at Empress

By DESMOND BILL

It consisted of a flashlight case containing a white powder taped to a clock and two batteries.

Lt.-Cmdr. Ward Palmer of the RCN Diving School said the clock had run down. He described the device as "an amateurish affair" but confirmed that it was rigged as a homemade bomb.

Lt.-Cmdr. Palmer said police are going to make an examination of the powder found in the flashlight case to determine if it is an explosive substance.

The bomb disposal expert said the device was set up to complete an electrical circuit that could trigger an explosion if the substance in the case was explosive.

He opened the bag and saw what was in it. Said Mr. Lindner, "I thought it was a joke but of course you never know with these things.

"I decided I better get it out of there. I took it to the steps outside (leading to the garden) and dropped it over the wall."

Mr. Lindner later told police about his discovery. They found the bag lying on concrete near some undergrowth. They called th bomb disposal squad which removed the object and carried it away in a truck.

Party Leaders In Final Pleas

By The Canadian Press

Political exhortations have passed the climax and party leaders are homeward bound to await the outcome of Monday's vote in Canada's 27th general election.

Voting hours for some 10,200,000 persons eligible to cast ballots Monday are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. The turnout is expected to be lighter than the near-record 79.6 per cent in 1963. The record is 79.8 per cent in 1958.

Today Prime Minister Pearson makes for Ottawa from Toronto with final campaign stops along the north shore of Lake Ontario.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker is en route to hometown Prince Albert from Regina

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, are in their home ridings of Burnaby-Coquitlam, British Columbia, and Red Deer, Alberta, respectively.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is in Quebec's Labelle riding for a speaking engagement on behalf of his candidate son, Gilles, before returning to his home constituency of Villeneuve.

Mr. Pearson told a cheering, overflow crowd in a Hamilton theatre Friday night that he will go anywhere, including Viet Nam, in search of peace.

'Almost Sweep to Liberals'

Earlier, in Kitchener, he said "there is a swing, almost a sweep," to the Liberals and that a vote for the New Democratic Party could accomplish no more than another Diefenbaker minority government.

Mr. Douglas said in a statement at Vancouver that Mr. Pearson was resorting to "scare tactics" in urging voters not to support the NDP.

"The facts are that Mr. Diefenbaker has no chance of forming any kind of government," Mr. Douglas said. "The battle in this campaign is between the NDP, which has a program, and the Liberals, who have only their record."

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Regina rally that the Liberals are trying to encourage votes for third parties in an attempt to defeat Conservative candidates.

"I am asking you to vote for yourselves," he said in an appeal to the crowd to "stand with us again."

At Vancouver, Mr. Thompson said there were no major national issues in the election other than that the election should not have been called.

At Quebec City, Mr. Caouette repeated his charge, frequently denied by Mr. Pearson, that the government has made an agreement with the U.S. to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam.

The electorate has 1,011 candidates to pick from, 12 fewer than 1963's record, in the fifth general election in 8½ years.

The Liberals and Conservatives are contesting all 265 seats with a minimum of 133 required for a bare majority. The NDP has 255 candidates, Social Credit 86 and the Quebec-based Creditistes 77. There are another 63 running under various other labels.

In at least 60 of the 265 seats,

Deadline Nov. 15 For Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' Union (CLC) today threatened to strike the entire oil-gas industry in British Columbia unless there is a settlement of their dispute with oil companies by Nov. 15.

The Nov. 15 deadline was set by R. T. Philp, the union's international representative. He said the action was forced on the union because under provisions of the labor relations act they must either strike within 90 days of the taking of a government-supervised strike vote or forfeit the right to do so.

He said that in the eight weeks since the union struck against British American Oil Co., plants from B.C. to Clarkson, Ont., the industry had "not made any real attempt to resolve the dispute but rather sat back waiting for settlement by BA Oil."

The union earlier served notice on BA, Shell, Texaco, Imperial and subsidiary companies.

STRIKE ACTION

BA was struck almost immediately after the taking of the government-supervised strike vote more than eight weeks ago. Strike action was extended for the first time to Imperial Friday night when 130 men struck that company's suburban Port Moody refinery.

The union said strike action against Imperial was because the company refused to grant seniority rights to 35 men returning to work after being suspended for five weeks.

The union seeks job security in the face of automation in the industry and an increase of 50 cents an hour over two years. Present basic wage in the industry is $2.75 an hour.

There was no immediate reaction from oil companies to the union's Nov. 15 deadline for an industry-wide tieup.

Commission For Rhodesia Near Collapse

SALISBURY (CP)—Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith took another step toward seizure of independence today by rejecting the latest British proposals to resolve the crisis.

Smith told British Prime Minister Wilson he had imposed so many conditions on his proposal for a royal commission to solve the independence issue that it was difficult to believe it was seriously intended.

The proposal for a royal commission on the Rhodesian crisis emerged from Wilson's emergency trip to Rhodesia late last month in an attempt to avert Rhodesia's threatened seizure of independence.

"I regret to say the impression you left with us (during Wilson's recent visit to Salisbury) of a determined effort to resolve our constitutional problems has been utterly dissipated," Smith said in a letter to Wilson.

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door you

Flaming Collision Claims Seven Lives

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE (CP) —The death toll in a flaming collision between a car and a semi-trailer carring a fertilizer chemical rose to seven Friday night when the sole survivor died en route to hospital in Winnipeg.

Holly Hope Kosiuk, of Grandview, Man., was critically injured in the accident which killed four other members of her family.

Police identified the other victims as truck driver Charles Hallet, 35, of Winnipeg; Fred Kostiuk, 46, of Grandview, his wife Rose, 39, his mother Mrs. Olga Kostiuk, about 60, his son Theodore, 8, and Robert Hykawy of McGregor, Man.

An inquest opened today.

GALLUP POLL SHOWS LIBERALS WELL AHEAD

The final sampling of voter opinion in Canada by the Gallup poll, taken on Wednesday, shows the Liberals well out in front in popular support, but short of 50 per cent of the vote. (Turn to Page 5 for the details.)

for the Liberals spoke for many when she pointed out: "If Diefenbaker would stop all this attacking everybody and just say what his program is, what he will do, I might still vote for him but . . ."

Furthermore, it is bad politics to attack a prime minister. Pearson found himself in this predicament in 1962 and 1963. The public seemed to resent his criticisms of the Conservative performance in office because they implicitly involved an attack on a national institution: the prime minister. Diefenbaker benefitted.

Now the shoe is on the other foot. The more vehement Diefenbaker is in his attacks on Pearson, the worse the situation becomes for the chief.

The Liberals have one thing going for them: prosperity. It murders the Tories in B.C. and hurts them badly in Ontario. It does the same to the Creditistes in Quebec. It holds up defections to the NDP across the country.

Nevertheless, the conclusion must be that the Liberals are winning this election by default. The Conservative problem is that their leader is no longer an acceptable alternative to Prime Minister Pearson; the NDP is still saddled with the third-party image.

★ ★ ★

With regard to the Conservatives, the remark: "If the Conservatives had anyone else in there but Diefenbaker, I'd vote Conservative in a minute" was heard so often that it can be considered the most succinct summing up of public motivation for casting a non-Tory ballot.

What about the NDP?

This exchange with a retail clothing store clerk in Montreal indicates just how powerful a motivation the need to elect a government is for voters and explains why Douglas cannot transform what personal popularity he has into votes for his party.

The salesman, a 1963 Liberal supporter, moaned: "I don't know what to do," when asked about his vote intentions.

I probed: "Why?"

He replied: "The whole situation. All the political corruption that's been coming up an so on."

★ ★ ★

I continued: "Well, if you won't vote Liberal, will you vote Conservative?"

He blurted: "No! I wouldn't vote Conservative. I can't support Diefenbaker."

"What about the NDP?"

He concluded: "If they had a chance, I would but I don't think they do. The few people I've spoken to feel the same way about the situation as I do."

He ultimately came down for the Liberals again.

Finally, turn-out is an important variable. All signs point to a lower rate of voting than in 1963 — and this takes into account the fact that some 250,000 people refused to be enumerated in September, a fantastic indicator in itself. This will undoubtedly help the Liberals, transforming marginal and doubtful seats into victories for them.

It is clear, then, that the Diefenbaker interlude is at an end. Not so the Conservative party. The Liberals may have won this battle, but the war goes on.

The Tory chieftan's effect will be exceptionally long-lasting even after he has passed into history and folklore. The Conservative party outside Quebec is in a solid position as a party to challenge the Liberals next time. With a new leader, even the Quebec obstacle can be overcome.

In the last few years and in this campaign, the Liberal party has drawn upon its last reserve of credit remaining from the King and St. Laurent years with the public.

A new era in Canadian politics is under way.

claimed publicly to have opened," Smith said.

Wilson made his proposal in a letter to Smith Wednesday.

Smith's reply said:

"I regret to tell you that the only conclusion to be derived from your letter is that it is tantamount to, and can only be interpreted as, a rejection of the proposals (regarding a royal commission) agreed with you in Salisbury.

Smith's letter said an agreement by Britain that the proposed commission should test Rhodesian opinion was "hedged with such conditions as to make it difficult to believe that it was seriously intended."

Smith also turned down a proposal which the British premier sent to Salisbury this week that the Rhodesian government's case for independence be put to a referendum by all the people of Rhodesia.

"Such a suggstion at this stage would be a negation of the understandings reached with you," Smith said.

Wilson had proposed that before the three-man commission —one Briton and two Rhodesians—went to work, there must first be agreements on how the soundings were to be made. He reserved Britain's position about the final outcome.

Today's message comes only 24 hours after the government declared a three-month nationwide state of emergency, giving the authorities sweeping powers of detention and restriction.

Speculation was rife here today the state of emergency was a prelude to a unilateral declaration of independence.

Justice Minister Desmond Lardner - Burke said Friday night the state of emergency was enacted because of threats by African nationalist saboteurs. It gives the government wide powers to detain any person, to prohibit gatherings and to censor newspapers.

The white-ruled colony has rejected Rhodesia's current constitution, drafted in 1961, as a basis for independence because it is unsatisfied with the rights the document grants to the country's African population.

Britain refuses to grant independence without being satisfied with arrangements for full political voice for the colony's 4,000,000 Negroes.

White Rhodesian authorities also face the prospect of a rebel black government being formed inside the country.

Police announced that they had seized a number of pamphlets saying that the banned Zimbabwe African People's Union will form a government if Britain did not break off negotiations with Smith by Nov. 16.

Smith said in his reply a proposal by Wilson that the commission should submit a unanimous interim report on how it proposed to determine acceptability "shows a singular lack of confidence in the commission."

REJECTED CONDITION

He also rejected the British leader's condition that the final report of the commission be unanimous.

Smith originally proposed the commission decide whether all Rhodesians want independence on the basis of an amended present constitution.

Gun-Toting 'Tiger Lady' Shot to Death

SAIGON (UPI)—Mme. Ho Thi Que, the pistol-packing "Tiger Lady" of the South Vietnamese army, was shot and killed Thursday during a jealous argument with her husband, it was reported Friday.

A high-ranking Vietnamese army official, who asked not to be identified, said Mme. Que, 38, became infuriated with her husband, Maj. Nguyen Van Dan, for paying too much attention to another woman.

Mme. Que, the official said, pulled a pistol on Dan while the other woman looked on in horror. Dan struggled with Mme. Que for the pistol and it went off, fatally wounding her.

600 Applications Received In B.C. During JEFF Week

First reports from centres throughout the province indicate that between 500 and 600 applications from prospective foster parents have been received during JEFF week.

JEFF, the Joint Effort For Fostering week, was proclaimed from Oct. 24 to 30.

Objective of the drive was 1,000 foster homes, 100 receiving and observation homes, 20 group homes and treatment centres for emotionally disturbed children.

Nanaimo Local Council of Women has decided to sponsor a receiving home and three groups in Prince Rupert intend to help establish group homes.

'Instant Tree' Planted; 20 Firs Removed

The trees, some of which are 300 years old, were considered dangerous due to the threat of falling dead limbs.

At the same time, an "instant tree" was planted in Centennial Square Friday.

The tree, one of several arbutus force-grown by Victoria parks department, was uprooted from Gorge Park and set in a ready-made hole at the square.

The trees were planted two years ago and have since been fed through severed roots on a rich mixture.

Punching Waiter Brings Jail Term

A man who punched a beer waiter and broke his nose was given a three-months jail sentence for assault today.

Evidence was that the waiter accidentally bumped against Bowcott's chair. Bowcott stood up, hit the waiter, knocking him unconscious and breaking his nose.

. . . 10 MILLION ELIGIBLE TO VOTE

the contest is expected to be extremely close. These marginal seats are scattered across the country but most of them are in Ontario, which returns 85 MPs, and Quebec, which elects 75.

The main battleground throughout the campaign has been Ontario where the Liberals won 52 seats in the 1963 election compared with the Conservatives' 27 and the NDP's six.

Mr. Pearson called the election Sept. 7 with the statement that he wanted a majority government to provide stable government for four or five years. He never wavered from that theme throughout the campaign and in some speeches touched on little else.

He said at one point that if the Liberals didn't get a majority there would be another election in 12 or 18 months. The opposition accused him of threatening the electorate. He denied any threat.

Mr. Diefenbaker predicted that his party would win a majority.

STRESSES UNITY

Mr. Diefenbaker also dwelt on the issue of national unity, promising a new Confederation conference to bring about needed changes in the constitution.

Mr. Pearson said only the Liberals could achieve such unity and he asked for a strong central government to deal with the legitimate but growing demands of the provinces.

The three minor party chiefs argued that most of the better legislation passed by Parliament in recent years resulted from compromises forced on a minority administration.

Mr. Douglas pledged to back a minority winner if agreement could be reached to include NDP policies in the legislative program. He came out for free university education, a universal medical care program, $100-a month old-age pensions at 65 and legislation to protect consumers.

Mr. Thompson called for an end to patronage and for a voluntary medical care program.

MAKES PROMISE

Mr. Diefenbaker said the latter meant a means test and he promised $100-a-month pension at age 69—the present pension is $75—to be paid out of the Canada Pension Fund.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in an attempt to recapture the big-city vote which he lost in 1962 and 1963, promised deductions of up to $500 to home-owners who pay municipal property taxes.

In the 1963 election, the Liberals won 129 seats, the Conservatives 95, Social Credit 24 and the NDP 17.

At dissolution in September, the standings were: Liberals 127, Conservatives 92, New Democrats 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine, independent two and vacant four.

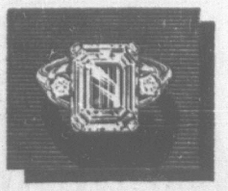

The advance polls, to be counted election night, were held Saturday, Oct. 30, and Monday Nov. 1. The results of the service vote, held this week, are expected to be announced Saturday, Nov. 13.

As required by law, radio and television appeals by candidates ended at midnight Friday night.

DEAR VOTER:

Now the tumult of the campaign is over we have a brief moment to decide what the shouting was all about. I believe now, as I did at the beginning, that the only big issue in this election is stability in Government. Do we or do we not want to give our nation a Parliament which can get on with the job of running the country for a full four years? Only a very few want to sentence Canada to another "Parliament of Minorities" like the last one. The time has come when you can help set matters right.

Things are going well in Victoria these days. The same is true all across Canada. Business is booming and unemployment is lower than it has been for many years. In these complicated times things like this don't just "happen." The Government must work to create the climate in which our country can prosper. There is much more to be done and it isn't all going to be easy. We will need in Ottawa a strong central government that can't be "pushed around." I believe the Liberal party is in the best position to provide such a government. All the public opinion polls show this. Furthermore, I sincerely believe the Liberal policies and plans, which I have outlined in this campaign, will greatly benefit Canada and all Canadians. As the Liberal Candidate in Victoria, my election will strengthen the Government and support its policies. It will also give Victoria a voice in the Government.

I am grateful for the opportunity you gave me in 1963 to represent you in Ottawa. I have tried my best to live up to the trust you placed in me then, and now I earnestly ask you again for your support so that I may carry on working with you and for you in the next Parliament.

Sincerely,

David Groos

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A vigorous Pacific storm centred about 300 miles off the Washington coast will move slowly northward during the next 48 hours. A surge of moisture that has moved out of the disturbance was expected to produce light rain over the south coast today and bring showers to the southern interior tonight. Arctic air will continue to blanket the northern interior but is not expected to spread any further south than Williams Lake. In the cold air snowflurries will persist and afternoon temperatures are expected to hover near the 30 above mark.

Firm Employs Children, Charges IWA

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Indian agent's refusal to investigate charges that a lumber company is employing under-age Indian children will be protested by the British Columbia Federation of Labor.

The charges were disclosed here Thursday by secretary Pat O'Neal in an address to the labor body's convention.

He said the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) complained in a letter to authorities about the employing of Indian children by a northern B.C. lumber company.

He read a letter from R. M. McIntyre, Indian superintendent at Burns Lake, which he said denied the request for an investigation.

Mr. O'Neal said a portion of the letter read:

PLACEMENT

"One of the objects of our department is the placement of Indian labor into industries adjacent to Indian Reserves. We do this to help improve the economic and social conditions of the reserves and we have had excellent co-operation from this firm . . . since we are encouraging Indians to work, regardless of age, I have not investigated this matter, nor do I intend to."

Mr. O'Neal said the federation's executive would ask federal authorities whether this

Jury to Get $1.5 Million Libel Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York Supreme Court justice refused Friday to dismiss the $1,500,000 invasion of privacy suit by Russian Prince Felix Youssoupoff against the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Judge Wilfred A. Waltemade said the matter would have to go before the jury of nine men and three women hearing the case.

He was acting on a motion by Carleton G. Eldridge Jr., defence lawyer.

Youssoupoff, 79, has based his suit on a Jan. 5, 1963, telecast by CBS of a play, If I Should Die, which deals with the assassination of the Mad Monk, Rasputin, in Youssoupoff's St. Petersburg Palce in Russia Dec. 16, 1916.

Justice Waltemade said: "We deal, not with a public official, but with a private citizen whose individual rights should not be the subject of public retaliation."

The suit was not founded on Youssoupoff's having been a co-conspirator in Rasputin's assassination, the judge said, but that CBS breached his right of privacy in that the broadcast "contained fictionalized dialogue and actions in recreating" his role in the historical event.

The CBS lawyer maintained that the Princess Irina, Youssoupoff's wife, was used as a bait or lure to bring Rasputin to her husband's palace and to his death.

Eldridge said television enjoyed the same rights as their communications media, such as newspapers, and added: "Today's news is tomorrow's history. The story of the assassination is in the public domain."

Lawyer Herbert R. Zelenko described the telecast as a "sex drama," which smeared the prince as a "panderer."

The case will go to the jury Monday.

'Adam, Fallen Man'

Scriptural readings on Adam and Eve and Cain and Abel are examined in Christian Science church services this week. The subject is "Adam and Fallen Man."

The Golden Text is from Ecclesiastes: "Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions."

U.K. Poised To Deal With Split

LONDON (Reuters) — British government machinery went on a stand-by basis this weekend in case Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith seizes independence against repeated British warnings.

Prime Minister Wilson, attending a family wedding in Cardiff, Wales, today, will have an air force plane ready to fly him back to London at a moment's notice.

Opposition Conservative Leader Edward Heath, on a speaking tour in Scotland, also has a special charter plane standing by and members of Parliament were warned to be ready for any snap summoning of Parliament. They will be asked to approve sanctions against Rhodesia if the white minority government declares independence unilaterally.

NDP LEADER WILL STAY IN PROVINCE

VANCOUVER (CP) — NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, who moved to British Columbia after losing Regina City riding in the 1962 federal election, said Friday night he will remain in politics in his adopted province for the rest of his life.

At an evening rally Mr. Douglas criticized a newspaper editorial which he said had suggested he would move somewhere else after the redistribution of federal electoral ridings.

The NDP leader said when he and his wife came here at the invitation of the riding association they made "a compact until death do us part."

Skydivers Protest Bid To Control Activities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency was warned Tuesday by a parade of crew-cut witnesses that a proposed rule banning parachuting from controlled airspace would wipe out the fast-growing sport of "skydiving."

The rule has been requested by the Air Transport Association, representing the scheduled airlines, and the Air Line Pilots Association.

Both organizations expressed fears that a major air disaster is possible unless sports chutists are kept out of airspace used by commercial planes. They called for a ban on skydiving in controlled areas and in off-airway space used frequently by airliners.

The FAA Thursday heard from about 15 members of the Parachute Club of America. All of them denounced the proposed restriction as illegal, unnecessary and a threat to the sport's growing existence.

FESTIVAL MAY MOVE TO CITY

The Vancouver International Film Festival may pack up its film cans next year and move to the McPherson Playhouse in Victoria.

Festival president Charles Marshall, who lives here at 2612 Victor, said today Victoria may have a "better climate" than Vancouver in which to stage an international film festival.

Mr. Marshall said the move to Victoria is being contemplated largely on the basis of a request for the festival last year by former McPherson Playhouse manager Bob Ellison.

'UNCO-OPERATIVE'

"If Vancouver loses out to Victoria it will be because of the unco-operative attitude of the city fathers there," he said.

He was referring to Vancouver city council's refusal of a festival request for a grant.

The festival showed an operating loss of $3,000 this year and asked the city to cover the amount.

The Victoria request last year was for the Vancouver Festival to extend itself to the McPherson Playhouse.

The request was refused at the time because the international control of film festivals does not allow satellite showings.

The move this time would be made lock, stock and barrel, said Mr. Marshall.

Victoria city council has previously supported a non-graded international film festival and last year co-sponsored the Beacon Hill Park summer cinema with the National Film Board of Canada.

Medicare Statements Under Fire

CALGARY (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Friday night cabinet ministers have been making contradictory statements about the proposed government medicare plan.

While Health Minister Judy LaMarsh was telling political meetings that the plan was a universal one — everyone must be included in it whether they wished to or not—other cabinet ministers were saying this was not so.

"It makes me ashamed of my fellow politicians," said Mr. Thompson.

The Social Credit leader spoke to about 400 persons in the Jubilee Auditorium here. It was his last speech of the election campaign. Today Mr. Thompson visits the Banff, Alta., riding before attending a wedding in Rocky Mountain House. He returns to Red Deer later and will remain there in his farm home for the election results Monday.

U.K. HANGING

Christian Burial Ordered

LONDON (AP) — The body of Timothy Evans, whose hanging led to abolition of the death penalty in Britain, will be exhumed and given a Christian burial, the home office announced Friday.

Evans' body will be removed from the exercise yard of London's Pentonville prison probably next week and delivered to his 66-year-old mother.

Evans was hanged in 1950 after being convicted of killing his infant daughter. He also was charged with killing his wife but was not tried on that count.

Evans said the killer was John Reginald Halliday Christie, a mild-mannered London clerk who shared a two-family house with Evans. Three years after Evans was hanged, Christie was exposed as a mass murderer and admitted he killed Mrs. Evans, but would not admit killing the baby.

Evans' case more than any other lay behind a Commons vote last month to abolish hanging and substitute life imprisonment as the penalty for murder. The decision becomes law Tuesday when Queen Elizabeth gives her formal assent.

Gold Rush Film Released Soon

Distribution is also planned in the United States and Britain through the National Film Board and the Canadian government travel bureau.

The film tells of the 150 overlanders who crossed the prairies to the Cariboo gold fields in 1862, and travelled with their animals by raft down the Fraser River to Quesnel and the North Thompson River to Kamloops.

It was directed and filmed by Wilf Gray of the government photographic branch in Victoria and is one of a continuing series of productions aimed at depicting the life of the people of British Columbia.

Loyalists Seek Young Members In New Plan

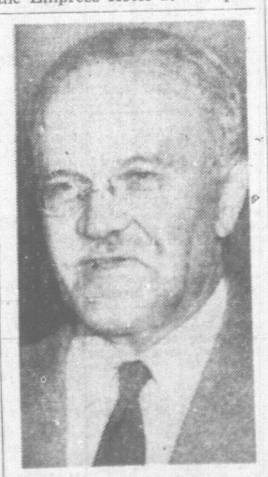

Victoria branch of the United Empire Loyalists has received a new lease on life, says Col. J W. D. Symonds, president.

"We are going after young people to increase our present membership of 45."

Col. Symons said the rejuvenated branch plans to sponsor scholarships and various competitions to promote interest in Canada's history.

Mrs. O. D. Wilson was elected vice-president of the branch, with Miss Eleanor Watson, secretary-treasurer, and Barclay Fisher and R. P. Wilmot, counsellors.

The branch will meet on the first Thursday of each month in the Empress Hotel at 7:30 p.m.

RETURN of Vyaschelav Molotov to the political life of the Soviet Union was reported Friday by East European diplomats. After eight years in the doghouse Molotov is reported working behind the scenes as Soviet Premier Kosygin's personal adviser on foreign affairs.

EXERCISE SOCKEYE

Good Guys Win War On Sandspit Beach

The manoeuvre was designed to test amphibious landing capabilities of Canada's three forces.

The combined landing warded off an invasion by the imaginary nation of Fantasia comprised of the second battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry of Edmonton.

The exercise began at midnight Monday when troops and Pacific command warships Stettler, Antigonish and St. Croix were dispatched to the area.

Turning point in the war occurred Wednesday when an enemy ambush backfired and four prisoners were captured.

The prisoners were interrogated and the counter-attackers learned important enemy positions and tactics.

The good guys, men of second battalion, Queen's Own Rifles from Calgary, received naval gunfire support from HMCS Stettler and air support from a T-33 jet trainer which bombed and strafed the area.

Blank ammunition was used in all fighting.

He was assisted by Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling, flag officer Pacific Coast, and Air Commodore R. C. Weston, senior air officer, Paciifc.

NEAR LEGISLATURE

Gov't Shelves Plan To Block High-Rise

The cost of buying properties adjoining those now held for government expansion is too high, Works Minister W. N. Chant indicated Friday.

Recently, James Mace of Mace Homes and Investments Ltd., applied to city hall for rezoning of a block bounded by Young, Michigan and Toronto Streets for a multi-storey apartment.

The city approved the application but it was pointed out at the time that the province might negotiate for the land or land options held by the firm.

Mr. Chant said B.C. was willing to negotiate but "the price seemed to be too high." He added, "We'll let the matter stand in abeyance."

He said he felt the city was wrong in permitting large permanent buildings to encroach on the legislative precinct because in a few years the government building will need more space.

Johnson Agrees To Withdraw Nomination

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—Francis X. Morrissey of Boston, whose nomination to be a U.S. district court judge stirred a storm in the Senate, asked President Johnson Friday to withdraw his nomination. Johnson said he would comply.

Morrissey, a long-time friend and political ally of the Kennedy family, told Johnson in a letter received Friday: "To prevent further anguish to my family and further harassment to you and to those who have supported me so loyally, I respectfully request that my nomination to the federal bench be withdrawn."

"I shall always be grateful for the confidence you showed in nominating me, but, notwithstanding the merits of that nomination, I do not want to be the cause of diverting your time and energies from the important programs of your great administration."

A municipal court judge in Boston, Morrissey has been close to the head of the Kennedy and the rest of the family.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) backed Morrissey's qualifications, and Kennedy wound up by asking in an emotion-packed Senate speech that the nomination be re-submitted.

25-54 Age Group Main Voting Force

OTTAWA (CP) — This time they are casting a slightly smaller shadow but people in the 30-year age span from 25 to 54 still form the decisive voting force for Monday's federal election, as they have in every countrywide vote since 1921, the first year for universal suffrage at 21.

They comprise 63.5 per cent of the people of voting age, their lowest point since 1921 when they hit their high of 68.6 per cent. The previous low was 64.1 per cent in 1941 and their proportion in the 1963 election was 64.2 per cent.

Since voters' lists for federal elections don't show ages of eligibles, these proportions are worked out from census reports and population estimates of various age groups.

DIFFER WIDELY

There are wide differences between number of eligibles on voters' lists and the population in the voting age group, 21 and older.

Details announced this week on the latest available population estimate shows 10,976,500 Canadians 21 or older last June 1. The preliminary voters list for Monday's election listed 10,191,825 eligible voters. Final official figures won't be known for months, but revisions may bring the total to around 10,250,000.

Jean Davies Awarded Bursary

Jean Davies, 19, of 372 Maywell Place, was recently awarded a $50 bursary by Victoria West Parent-Teacher Association.

Each year the PTA group awards a bursary to a former pupil of Victoria West School who is attending University of Victoria.

More Eskimos Set For Naden Course

Hopes that young men from Canada's northland might come to the RCN's Pacific Command for boatbuilding courses "for at least several years" were expressed here Thursday.

Commenting on the success of this year's pilot project was George O'Neill, district superintendent of vocational training for the northern affairs department.

He arrived here this week to meet RCN personnel who were involved in a recently-completed 26-week boatbuilding course for a group of Eskimos and Indians.

Mr. O'Neill praised the boatbuilders and the men who instructed them.

The craft — launched a week ago—was constructed in HMCS Naden's Fleet School.

The department official announced another group of six to eight Eskimos will arrive here early in 1966 for another similar course.

Some of the eight grads from this year's course are already fully employed in boat repair and maintenance work.
